$1,000,000 Refund, Rate Cut in Phones Win Approval

Utility and D. C. Officials Practically Agreed Upon Proposals.

Interest of 6 Pct. With Cash Planned

$453,000 Reduction in Annual Bills Here Is Predicted.

Refund of approximately $1,000,000, with interest to February 15, and reduced telephone rates effective with the rendering of the next monthly bills, were substantially agreed upon yesterday at conferences attended by officers of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., the Public Utilities Commission and the people's counsel.

The commission is to meet again at 10 a. m. today to go over the company's figures. There are some minor points to be studied, but these are expected to be resolved on the side of approval of the new rates proposed to the commission by the company yesterday.

"The company, I believe, has made a substantial effort to conform to the commission order," Riley E. Elgen, chairman of the commission, said after the lengthy conference which lasted into the evening.

"I believe the company has endevored, in good faith, to comply with the commission order to reduce rates and return excess charges to telephone users," Richmond B. Keech, another member of the commission, said. "The order of the commission has been sustained in the courts. There are one of two seemingly minor points to be studied. I do not, however, wish to commit the commission to any course of action."

In addition to the $1,000,000 refund, the new rate is to mean a reduction of about $453,000 in the annual telephone bills of the National Capital. That is the estimate made by the company. It is approximately $13,000 more than the company would have had to make to comply with the 10 per cent reduction order of the commission. Other estimates vary.

Approval today of the proposed reduction schedule will mean that telephone users will get the benefit of reduced rates in the next bills. It also will mean that refunding of the excess charges collected by the company in the last two years will be begun before December 15.

Telephone users from whom excess charges have been collected are to get back their money in cash, with 6 per cent interest until February 15, no matter when the date on which they receive their refunds. This arbitrary interest date was fixed in the court decree.

Just who will benefit most from

Break Nearing In Wilson Case

Valuable Evidence Found, Officers Back From West Report.

Lieut. John Fowler, head of the special police squad investigating the murder of Allen B. Wilson, newspaper route agent, returned to headquarters yesterday, following a mysterious trip which took him "several thousand miles" across the country.

With him was Detective Earle P Hartman. Neither would comment, other than confirm reports they had gathered additional evidence which may aid in eventual solution of the crime.

The investigators reported immediately to Maj. Ernest W Brown, police superintendent, and were closeted with him for several hours. Nature of the new evidence was not disclosed, but it was learned that tangible clews have developed and members of the special squad are working overtime.

"We feel that a solution to Wilson's slaying is considerably nearer," Maj. Brown declared. "Investigation has now developed to a slow, but very sure, progress. It may be only a matter of days before we obtain a definite 'break.'"

Lieut. Fowler and Detective Hartman were absent from headquarters for nearly two weeks. It is believed they visited several Midwestern cities, including Chicago.

British Workers Flail U. S. Efficiency Experts

London, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—Five British workmen employed by the Manchester Wire Works today applied to chancery court in London for an injunction to restrain their employers from using American efficiency experts.

They set forth that the experts had sought to speed "the ancient and noble craft of wire-drawing * * * standing above us with notebooks and stop-watches, almost breathing down our necks." The workmen alleged using these methods constituted a breach of contract.

Business Set To Go Ahead, Roper Assures

Secretary Sees President, Hints of Changes in Relief Set-up.

By Leon Dure, Jr.
(Post Staff Writer).

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 27.—The double-barreled assurance that the Administration is anxious to taper off heavy Federal expenditures and has no new taxes in mind was "all that business is waiting for," Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper declared here today after a visit to President Roosevelt.

At the same time, he gave a hint of the new relief program now being formulated by asserting that local governments will be given an enlarged part in dispensing funds, with the idea of both reducing relief rolls and insuring an honest day's work from all those drawing Federal funds.

Mr. Roper was summoned here by telegram from Texas, where he was visiting the ranch of Vice President John Nance Garner during a trip into the Midwest. He immediately added his voice to the growing chorus of those who have been telling the President of improved conditions.

"The only thing that disturbs business," Secretary Roper readily conceded, "is the matter of Government expenditures, both in volume and in the manner of administering expenditures."

Says Relief Must Be Local.

In a formal statement, dictated at the luncheon table, the President's chief business spokesman and conciliator, continued in happy vein:

"There is a conviction that the individual localities, the States, counties and municipalities, must take a more intimate interest and become more intimately identified with relief expenditures to make sure that only the worthy needy get relief and the interest of the people generally shall be preserved.

"People want the needy taken

Chicago Building Wrecked by Blast

Chicago, Nov. 27 (AP).—A terrific explosion shortly before 6 p. m. today shattered a three-story frame building at 1226 Washburn street. Several persons were reported trapped in the building, located on Chicago's West Side.

Fire department squads rushed to the scene. First reports said the building, housing several families, crumpled with the blast, showering debris about.

Marina Meets Britain's Elite At a Reception in Buckingham

Final Rehearsal Held for Royal Wedding Tomorrow; King Gives Tea for His Servants; Binghams to Attend the Nuptials.

London, Nov. 27 (AP).—Princess Marina of Greece, the future Duchess of Kent, tonight met the elite of Britain's social, diplomatic and political circles at an elaborate reception in Buckingham Palace.

The affair followed the princess' most strenuous day since she reached London. Final rehearsals for the state wedding ceremony Thursday were held. All concerned—from the royal bridal couple to the spanking grays which will draw the honeymoon carriage—participated.

United States Ambassador and Mrs. Robert W. Bingham, who will be the only Americans to attend the Abbey service, were among the more than 800 persons present at the reception, which followed another family dinner party at the palace.

Mrs. Bingham will also attend a reception to be held at St. James Palace tomorrow.

Guests Received.

King George and Queen Mary, who spent part of the morning watching the final smoothing out of the arrangements for the Abbey service, received their guests this evening in the state reception rooms, where Marina was given her first introduction to the capital's notables.

The Duke of Kent and his bride-to-be went this afternoon to St. James's palace, where they mingled with the servants of Buckingham, Sandringham and Windsor castles. The servants as tea guests of the King viewed the wedding presents.

Thence the couple hurried to the private chapel of Buckingham Palace, where Archbishop Strinopoulous Germanus guided them through rehearsal of the intricacies of the 1,100-year-old Greek Orthodox ceremony that will follow the state ceremony at Westminster Abbey.

Brothers Assist.

King George, Queen Mary and Marina's eight bridesmaids were spectators at the ceremony, in which the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York followed their younger brother in part of the elaborate ritual. Their task, as Kent's supporters, was to walk behind the bridal couple and pass thrice around a table.

With wedding gifts still arriving hourly, the engaged couple already had received enough to set up a wholesale jewelry store and furnish a small hotel—the latter with an elephant tusk in the lobby for ornament.

There were also enough pictures to start a small gallery.

Almost 1,000 presents, with another room still to be unpacked, were viewed for the first time to-

Japan Warned U. S. Is Ready For Navy Race

(Associated Press.)

In pointed words, the Congressional leader on Naval legislation warned yesterday that if existing treaties are scrapped he will insist, in any ensuing Naval race, upon American construction of "five ships for each three laid down by Japan."

Chairman Vinson (Democrat) Georgia, of the House Naval Affairs Committee was the spokesman.

The Japanese already have given unofficial notice that they intend to withdraw from the Washington treaty because the United States and Great Britain will not set aside the existing 5-5-3 ratio and grant Japan actual equality on the seas.

Vinson Warns Japan.

Yesterday, as Japan was inviting France and Italy to join her in renouncing the treaty, Vinson said:

"I sincerely and honestly hope it won't be necessary to scrap the treaty, but it seems we can not hope very strongly now for anything else.

"We can not grant naval equality to Japan at any price. If the Tokyo government does insist upon wrecking the treaty, I will insist that the

Ace U. S. 'Microbe Hunter' Victim of Mysterious Disease

(Associated Press.)

A mysterious new disease, unlike anything known before, ironically has struck as its first victim one of the ace "microbe-hunters" of the Public Health Service.

He is Dr. Charles Armstrong, a veteran experimenter on all kinds of diseases for almost 20 years. Now nature has picked him for an experiment of her own with a strange malady that has the best doctors of the Public Helath Servic baffled after three weeks of intensive study.

Whether Dr. Armstrong has a brand-new disease, or a new manifestation of one of the diseases with which he has been experimenting is a mystery so far. All kinds of diagnoses and tests have failed to reveal even a clew.

He has a skin eruption that appears only on the sides of his body, and is not typical of any known disease. He runs a mild temperature, and at time is irrational. He is under constant observation at the Naval Hospital.

Many Public Health Service physicians and scientists in the past have contracted diseases with which they were experimenting. This has happened twice to Dr. Armstrong who had parrot fever, or psittacosis, and dengue fever.

Since the outbreak of sleeping sickness in St. Louis last year,

Nazis Drilling As Feud With Army Gains; Leaves Ended

Even Nuptials Put Off as Internal Strife Mounts.

Official Denials Printed in Papers

New Liberalism of Spirit Needed, Declares von Fritsch.

Berlin, Nov. 27 (AP).—Despite official denials of "malicious lies" concerning unrest in the Reich, reliable sources today disclosed that the German army and police forces are being held under emergency orders.

A long smoldering feud between the Reichswehr (regular army) and the Schutz Staffel (blackshirt picked Nazi guards) was believed responsible for the orders, which involved suspension of Christmas furloughs for soldiers and military police.

Drilling of Nazi storm troops has increased, reports said, while all marriages of army men and police set for the Christmas holidays, popular wedding period for Germany's military men, have been postponed.

Berlin newspapers today printed a denial, issued by the official news agency, from "responsible quarters" in which "malicious lies" abroad concerning popular unrest in the Reichswehr and government leaders were assailed.

It was learned that the reference was to certain articles printed in French, British and American newspapers, but the denial—which was not unexpected—did not specify which was meant.

The extraordinary orders given the armed forces were not motivated by any international considerations, informed persons said, but solely by the internal situation created as a result of the friction between the regular army men and picked Nazi troops.

There also have been rumors of discord in the ranks of the Sturm Abteilung (Storm Troops), whose leaders were summarily executed in Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's "blood purge" of last June, and it was considered significant that Hitler, now as then, apparently depends on men his Nazis consider "reactionary" to stave off trouble.

Reports from Coblenz said Heinrich Himler, leader of the Schutz Staffel, in an address there over the week-end, alluded to bad feeling between his group and the regular army.

Baron Werner von Fritsch, Reichswehr chief, wrote Hitler that something must be done about the bad blood between the two groups. Discussing Nazi suppressive methods, Von Fritsch declared the government would face opposition from all sides unless new liberalism of spirit be injected.

Observers here did not believe the virtual state of emergency had anything to do with the approach

Neglect of Pedestrian Is Charged to Police

Board of Trade Unit Resolution Condemns 'Utter Lack of Protection' From Shortcomings of Motorists.

The Metropolitan Police Department yesterday was charged with "almost universally" leaving pedestrians without protection, with the result that "their rights and safety are usually utterly disregarded by motorists."

The charge was made in a resolution unanimously adopted by the traffic committee of the Board of Trade, meeting at the Harrington Hotel.

The resolution was brought before the meeting by Col. Lawrence Crawford, chairman of the committee's subcommittee on law enforcement, who prefaced its reading by saying that he meant no general criticism of the police department or other District law enforcement officials.

"It has been my observation, however," Col. Crawford said, "that the pedestrian rarely is given an even break. I believe our traffic officers should warn the motorist when he violates the right of pedestrians. I have never seen this done."

Col. Crawford called the committee's attention to the District's rising accident toll, and expressed the belief that at least part of the blame is due to lack of motorist consideration of pedestrian rights.

Wallace Robinson, chairman of the committee, declared that "many accidents are caused by pedestrians themselves."

"There is a lack of appreciation on the part of the Police Department of the necessity of protecting pedestrians," the resolution began.

"The absence of specific orders on this point has resulted in a situation in which pedestrians are almost universally left without protection by police officers, and, as a result, their rights and safety are usually utterly disregarded by motorists.

"It is urged that the traffic committee be requested to bring this situation to the attention of the proper authorities with a view to remedial action."

At the suggestion of Robinson, action on the proposal of the Traffic Advisory Council to ban parking

Probers Say 3 Girls Were Suffocated

Clew to Identity Given by Woman Operator of Tourist Camp.

Carlisle, Pa., Nov. 27 (AP).—Suffocation was advanced tonight as "possibly" the cause of the death of three little girls whose bodies were found by woodsmen last Saturday.

The announcement, though ocial, was indefinite, and was followed by another official statement that State police were told by a tourist camp keeper that a couple with three children whose descriptions corresponded with those of the mystery girls left her place last Wednesday after stopping for several days.

Police said the camp proprietor is Mrs. Gooden Dills, of South Langhorne, near Philadelphia, and that the names she said were given by the couple were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Malone, of Vallejo, Calif.

Identity Still Mystery

"Murder and suicide" was the police verdict in the case of a man and a woman shot to death at Duncansville the same day the three fair-haired girls were found 100 miles away. The identity of the five is equally mystifying and police are looking for evidence linking all to a single tragedy. One trail led to San Francisco.

Coroner A. E. Haegele announced that while the theory that the children died from carbon monoxide has been discarded he has not definitely accepted suffocation as the cause and he will not until he has seen "in black and white" the report of Dr. George R. Moffitt, Harrisburg pathologist. Coroner Haegele said Dr. Moffitt's examination is still in progress.

Dr. Moffitt at Harrisburg confirmed the suffocation theory and said he is searching for traces of cyanide or arsenic poisoning. He is examining the brains of the children.

Suffocation Evidence.

Blood found in the noses of the children, and evidences of hemorrhages and intense congestion in the brains, Dr. Moffitt said, led him to believe in the theory of death by suffocation.

He added he has found no trace as yet of cyanide, arsenic, chloroform, carbon monoxide, or similar poisons.

At the request of Dr. Moffit, Coroner Haegele reexamined the children but reported he found no evidence of strangulation. Dr. Moffitt said in death in that manner the eardrums sometimes burst, but Dr. Haegele said the children's eardrums were intact.

Maj. C. M. Wilhelm, deputy superintendent of State police, said that while Mrs. Dills' description of the man and woman who stopped at her place is not complete, it could fit a man and a woman found shot to death in a railroad shanty near Duncansville on Saturday morning, about the same time

N. Y. Aldermen Pass 60 Million Aid Levy

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—After a personal plea from the floor by Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, the board of aldermen late today passed the $60,000,000 relief levy, including a 2 per cent sales tax, from which food is exempted.

Despite the protests of business organizations, the levy seemed certain to pass the board of estimate after a public hearing tomorrow, and become law. The sales tax is expected by the administration to raise $40,000,000.

'Out of Town,' Dunn, Berlin Alibi in Trial

Former in Richmond, Four Witnesses Say; Case to End Today.

John (Slim) Dunn and Sam Berlin, alleged members of the notorious "tri-State" gang, will learn today whether a jury of 12 men believes they were among half a dozen men who sauntered into the office of the Heurich Brewing Co. October 5, 1933, and "lifted" 'a $1,600 cash bag.

Determined to speed the trial, Justice James M. Proctor, in the District Supreme Court, yesterday informed attorneys he would sit until all testimony had been taken. That point was reached late yesterday after Dunn and Berlin had taken the stand to deny any participation in the robbery.

Pair Denies Crime.

Immediately thereafter Justice Proctor announced a recess. Today will be given over to arguments of counsel and the charge to the jurors. A decision is expected in the early afternoon.

Complete denials that they were in any way connected with the Heurich "job" were made yesterday by both Dunn and Berlin. Dunn's defense was an "alibi." He showed by four witnesses that he was in Richmond, Va., listening to the World Series baseball game between Washington and the New York Nationals when police charged he was here acting as a "spotter" and "getaway" man for the gang.

Berlin, soft-spoken and powerful physically, swore he was in Baltimore when the employes of the Heurich Brewery were overpowered and robbed. Berlin twisted up a portion of his alleged associate's tes-

Ousting of 900 Agents May Cost U. S. Millions in Revenue

The Federal Government is threatened with the loss of millions of dollars in alcohol tax revenue during the approaching December holiday season as a result of the dismissal Friday of 900 investigators of the alcohol tax unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau, it was learned yesterday.

Treasury officials admitted that the staff of investigators will be far below par and may even be as low as half of the quota set for the unit.

"It will be impossible to do more than hit the high spots," one official commented.

The duties of alcohol tax investigators are similar to those of the revenue agents who preceded the prohibition agents, except that the illegal sale of spirits has become much more widespread than it was before the passage of the prohibition amendment.

The quota of the alcohol tax unit is 1,800 men, although at present it has but 1,400. On Friday, between 900 and 1,000 of these will be dropped from the rolls either as outright dismissals or on furlough.

While this will leave approximately 1,400 vacancies, an authorization has been issued to employ only 700 at present, and this task will run over well into the first of the year, Treasury officials said.

Although there are approximately 2,800 on the Civil Service eligible

H. E. Hollis Dead, S. P. Cowley Shot; Both Educated Here.

Pistols Silenced By Machine Guns

'Go and Get Them,' Says Purvis, Starting Big Illinois Manhunt.

Chicago, Nov. 27 (AP).—The machine gun of George (Baby Face) Nelson, Dillinger desperado and Public Enemy No. 1, late today took the life of another Federal agent—an agent revealed by a coworker as one of the actual slayers of John Dillinger.

A squad of agents from the command of Melvin H. Purvis, head of the Chicago division of the Bureau of Investigation, sought to trap Nelson, another man and their woman companion near suburban Barrington.

Gangster guns blazed and Agent Herman E. Hollis, 26, graduate of Georgetown University, was killed. Samuel P. Cowley, of Washington, chief assistant to Purvis, dropped, critically wounded, with bullets in his abdomen. Cowley is a graduate of George Washington University.

Cowley and Hollis, long on the trail of the Dillinger mobsmen, had been with their chief when John Dillinger and his elusive killers shot their way through a troop of Federal agents at the little Bohemia resort in northern Wisconsin last April 22.

At that time Agent W. Carter Baum, of Washington, was slain. The Department of Justice blamed Nelson as the slayer.

"Hollis Killed Dillinger."

Cowley was rushed to a hospital in nearby Elgin, Ill., and surgeons performed an emergency operation in efforts to save his life, but they were doubtful as to his chances.

Another agent, apprised of Hollis' death, blurted out in the heat of his emotion:

"Damn them! Hollis killed Dillinger and now they got him."

Previously it had been assumed that either Purvis or Cowley, along with Indiana police, fired the shots that killed Dillinger.

Federal authorities believed the woman in the car was wounded. The gangster machine sped away.

All Federal agents in the vicinity, sheriff's deputies, State police and police of the suburbs and Chicago joined in the most intensive manhunt since Dillinger was shot down.

The battle took place after occupants of both cars got out of their machines. The desperado trio, after their machine gun blast, leaped into the Federal agents' car and roared away, abandoning their own car.

Purvis, who was not present at the gun battle, said he was certain the automobile contained Nelson and reports made by the agents to Washington corroborated his assertion.

Feared by Underworld.

He rushed to the hospital where Cowley was taken and stood in the operating room as surgeons probed for the bullets that struck Cowley.

Mild-mannered, looking more like a football player than a sleuth, Cowley had a name that was as feared by the underworld that dared

Russell King Shot in Row

Farm Laborer Kills Self After Wounding Son of Commissioner.

Russell King, 32, of Clarkesburg, Md., son of Charles E. King, recently elected Fusionist Party commissioner for Montgomery County, was shot and critically wounded last night, allegedly by a disgruntled farm hand who had been discharged from his father's farm.

The shooting took place in front of Barr's store, Clarkesburg, only a few hours after the elder King has taken the oath of office as county commissioner.

Witnesses said Russell King drove up in front of the store about 8 p. m. and prepared to enter when he was approached by a colored man, later identified as John Brown, 20, of Clarkesburg.

After the exchange of a few words between the men, Brown allegedly drew a .32-caliber revolver and fired five times at King. One shot entred King's back, while the other entered his hip. He was removed to the Barr home adjoining the store. Dr. Upton Nourse was summoned.

The assailant's body was found soon after the shooting on the front porch of the home of William Burdette, about 300 yards from the scene. He was thought to have shot himself in the head, and was dead when found.

King was taken to the Frederick City Hospital, where his condition was reported serious.

Senate Group Maps Control Plan for Arms

Government Regulation Is Reported Favored by President.

By Robert C. Albright.

Legislation for control of the munitions industry, with proposals varying from a mild form of license to sweeping nationalization, yesterday was being discussed informally by returning members of the Senate's special armament investigating committee.

Strong probability that the measure finally evolved will have Administration backing was hinted by members. A preliminary committee conference was ordered for Monday. Tuesday another procession of munitions makers will open a month of testimony before the Senate group.

A barrage of surprises was promised by members at the outset of hearings, which are expected to run through January 1. After that, the committee will make specific recommendations to Congress, it was learned. At the same time, an extension of hearings and additional funds will be sought.

Publicity Protest.

Some difficulty with the War and Navy departments over publicity of data unearthed has been encountered by investigators, and at least one Government department will air its protests at Monday's conference of the committee.

On the whole, there has been no flagrant lack of cooperation since the committee had it out with department chiefs during the last hearings, it was stated in one committee quarter. At that time the White House was reputed to have interposed in behalf of the senatorial inquisitors.

Representations from a number of countries where officials were heavily involved in testimony last summer led to departmental efforts to soft-pedal data of a confidential nature. Secretary of State Cordell Hull made several trips to Capitol Hill. Agreement was reached to hold one or two communiques out of the record. Since that incident, a committee source said yesterday, the State Department has been "most cooperative."

Proposed Legislation.

Sentiment for new legislation varies from Chairman Gerald P. Nye's proposal to nationalize the principal lines of munitions production to more conservative suggestions for licensing of armament manufacture and shipments. Officials of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., makers of gunpowder, themselves have come forward with a licensing proposal that Chairman Nye insists does not go far enough. Senator James P. Pope, of Idaho, and Senator Homer T. Bone, of Washington, stand with him for nationalization, or virtual Government operation of armament plants, but there is strong committee sentiment against such a step.

An international convention for licensing shipments of munitions abroad was ratified last June by the Senate, but its promulgation still hinges on approval of all party nations.

Plan Thorough Probe.

Much of the cross-examination and testimony at hearings opening Tuesday will be shaped toward developing a background for any legislation proposed.

"As a matter of fact, we have enough information on the books to proceed right now," one member said. "But we want to go further, examine other phases of the munitions trade, and find out whether all branches of the industry behave the same under given conditions."

After a few days, it is expected hearings will narrow down to routine repetition of much that has gone before, with emphasis laid on the sale of arms and secret processes to other nations, the effect of this in inciting wars, and profits from the trade.

Belief of members that the President himself will champion a control bill was based on a broad hint in this direction thrown out by the President in his last message to Congress.

Old Shell Explodes, Blinds Boy for Life

Anniston, Ala., Nov. 27 (AP).—Sometime, somehow, a shotgun shell was lost in the box of chips beside the fire at Chester Foster's home. Today, Cecil Foster, 4, was playing in front of the fire. His mother threw some chips on the fire and the shell exploded. Cecil was brought to a hospital here. Both eyes were punctured by shot and he never will see again.

Between You and Me

U. S. Adherence to World Court in Next Few Months Is Forecast.

By Raymond Clapper

A STRONG possibility exists that the United States will take action within the next few months to join the World Court.

Even some of the most bitter Senate irreconcilables admit that they are being worn down after a decade of opposition and expect that the Administration will easily muster the votes to push it through.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has an agreement to report out the resolution of adherence early in January.

Pressure for American adherence will be stronger this winter than ever because of the disturbed world situation, the breakdown of the naval limitations treaties and the tendency now among nations to split up into balance of power arrangements.

All of this, friends of the Court contend, makes it more important than ever that the United States throw its strength into this agency of international justice at this time. Opponents of the Court argue these very dangers constitute all the more reason why the United States should not become entangled internationally.

The agony could go on interminably but it is likely to be ended by a Senate vote.

Such action now would have far greater world significance than earlier because of the revival of discussion as to whether the United States should enter the League of Nations. The court, set up under auspices of the league, has always been regarded by opponents as a backdoor entrance to the league. Friends of the court have insisted that adherence to the World Court would not involve the United States in league affairs.

Regardless of the technicalities of the question, in which the constitutional lawyers of the Senate revel, favorable action on the World Court protocol now would be taken throughout the world as an indication that this Government still had faith in the possibility of organizing international affairs despite the discouraging post-war experiences, particularly at London within the last few weeks. In that respect our action would have far greater significance than the limited juridical powers of the court might otherwise indicate.

* * * *

Such action likely would be followed by a strong campaign to join the League of Nations.

President Roosevelt—as were Harding, Coolidge and Hoover—is committed to join the World Court. The Administration has indicated no attitude with regard to reconsideration of the League of Nations issue. Democrats have ducked the questions in recent years.

Officially, the situation remains where it was left one November night in 1920, when Warren G. Harding, having just received the news of his election as President of the United States, stood on the front porch of his home at Marion, Ohio, and told his neighbors that the league was dead, so far as the United States was concerned. Unofficially we have cooperated in many ways with the league, have had "observers" or unofficial ambassadors at Geneva, and in recent weeks have been quietly thinking over the pros and cons of a more formal affiliation.

* * * *

On the World Court issue President Roosevelt probably will be deserted by Senator Hiram Johnson of California, Progressive Republican, who was just reelected with Administration indorsement. With Senator Borah, he led the battalion of death against the league in 1919, and they have been twin foes of the court. Senator Norris, of Nebraska, another pro-Roosevelt Republican, also was one of the same group. The World Court vote will find some of Mr. Roosevelt's regular allies on the Republican side of the chamber opposing him on this issue. It will be the first opportunity to shine the "agginers bloc" has had since Mr. Roosevelt became President.

* * * *

The temporary extension of Douglas MacArthur's tour of duty as Chief of Staff by President Roosevelt recently, brings to mind a little known story of the showdown between Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War under Hoover, and Gen. Pershing.

A little more than four years ago Hoover asked Hurley to recommend an officer to be named Chief of Staff.

Hurley, who already had made up his mind on the man he wanted, lost no time in laying the name of Douglas MacArthur on the President's desk.

MacArthur was just 50 years old then, with 14 years of active service in the Army ahead of him before he would be required to retire. Hoover, thinking of this and that perhaps it would be a better idea to name an officer who would not have another chance to be chief, called on Gen. Pershing for a recommendation.

The veteran commander of the A. E. F. suggested another name. The President called Pershing and Hurley to the White House to talk it over.

The conversation was brief.

Hoover told Hurley that another name had been submitted to the one he had recommended, and then asked what he thought of this nomination.

"When I served in France," Hurley said, "I learned one important lesson, among other things, from Gen. Pershing. That was to make my estimate of the situation, then, after carefully considering every detail, to follow with my decision.

"And once the course of action had been determined upon I was taught to push forward with all the strength at my command. Mr. President, I still adhere to the lessons that Gen. Pershing taught me. Douglas MacArthur is my choice."

To which Pershing replied:

"I commend my former junior officer for his adherence to the tactical principles that I was privileged to teach him.

"Good day, gentlemen."

It was all very soldierly.

Since Japan turned its back on the 5-5-3 naval ratio and began demanding parity, attaches at the Japanese Embassy here have switched to a British cigarette called "Five-Five-Five."

"We like them very much," said one attache offering a little round tin of them to an American friend. "But if you prefer, we have 'Navy Cut' cigarettes here too."

President Proves Gracious Host To Invalids at Warm Springs

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—As Capt. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, commander of the steamship "Paral" of the Brace lines, the President tonight presided over "the most stupendous social event of the season" at the Warm Springs Foundation.

It was an annual affair, beginning with a dinner and ending with a dance, to which patients, friends and other guests of the colony were invited. "Capt." Roosevelt sat at the head of the huge dining hall, immensely enjoying the fun.

The party was held this year to commemorate the maiden voyage of the good ship "Paral" (contraction of paralysis) to the "A. B. (able-bodied) land." As chief officer for the trip, the captain had "Gas Generator Gennerich," presidential bodyguard, who is a favorite with the patients.

Aboard were 80 "passengers"—the infantile paralysis patients themselves, who whirled themselves about in their wheel chairs in a hub-hub of excitement. "Paral" and "Polio" are the terms they commonly apply to themselves.

Earlier in the evening, the President attended a play, "The Sailor's Sweetheart," given by the children from 6 to 12. As he took his place in the Warm Springs playhouse, a storm of applause quieted down and made audible the thin voice of one little girl who cried, "Daddy," and set up a chorus of laughter.

The play had to do with the adventures of various comic strip characters. The President sat throughout the two acts, applauding frequently, with Mrs. Roosevelt and others of his party.

Today's festivities were only the prelude to the Thanksgiving dinner which Mr. Roosevelt will attend Thursday night. As has been his custom for several years, he will carve the turkey at the head table, surrounded by the youngest patients.

On that day he will also dedicate the two new buildings which have been added to the Warm Springs Foundation as a result of the "birthday balls," given in honor of the President last January 30.

Lower Expense, No New Taxes Is Roper's Idea

Secretary of Commerce Has Long Conference With President.

care of, but they want them taken care of on worth-while work projects. Business feels that unless the relief rolls are lessened there is danger of increased taxation. The statement of Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, for a tapering off of Federal expenditures, with no tax increases, is very wholesome.

"This is all that business is waiting for. There is an immense reservoir of business which will move forward anyway, but these assurances of wise control of expenditures will make business move far more rapidly."

The Cabinet member, who was repeating, in part, the views on relief known to be held by the President, took occasion to warn against the creation of a leisure class composed of those who prefer relief work to the low pay of private jobs, saying:

"People Must Cooperate."

"No government can stand on the policy of increasing unemployment. To counteract such an increase we need a balanced attitude. The people must cooperate for the purpose of saving the Government from a policy which, if carried too far, will increase unemployment."

Secretary Roper followed Senator Robinson to the Little White House, taking up problems of the New Deal legislative program where the Arkansan majority leader left off in his conference with the President. The Senator had nothing to add to his statement of the day before, in which he indicated that Mr. Roosevelt is counting on Congress to balance the "normal" budget, to make little change in existing taxation, and to enact a "reasonably conservative" relief program.

Returning to the Warm Springs colony, Senator Robinson joined Mrs. Robinson and together they set out by automobile for their home at Little Rock, where he is due Thanksgiving Day to dedicate a new building. Shortly after they left, Mr. and Mrs. Edsel Ford, who were entertained on several occasions at the Little White House, likewise departed for Detroit.

Spending Danger Canvassed.

Mr. Roper passed 90 minutes making his report to President Roosevelt, following which he reemphasized the fact that the Administration is seeking as rapidly as possible to transfer the relief load back to the States and municipalities. This was seen as a definite attempt to assure business that the Government is aware of the dangers involved in continued heavy spending.

The theory behind the new relief plans, as outlined by the Secretary, is that local governments know better than Federal agencies who is entitled to relief, and that relief funds will be expended more carefully if they come from taxes raised locally than from the seemingly inexhaustible Treasury. With this transfer, the Administration hopes also to tighten up on work relief by providing jobs on more or less self-liquidating projects.

As he pondered the new plans, the number of visitors who have brought assurances to the little White House that times are changing definitely for the better began to be regarded as one of the most significant developments of Mr. Roosevelt's whole Southern trip.

Sentiment Is Changing.

Among this number have been Edsel Ford, son of the aloof manufacturer; Eugene Black, former governor of the Federal Reserve Board, and Rudolf S. Hecht, president of the American Bankers Association. Most of them—particularly the latter—were emphatic in declaring they meant what they said.

Mr. Roper's tour, prior to his summons to Warm Springs, was in connection with his studies on the coordination of transportation facilities, he said on departure. He will resume the surveys with his committee when he returns to Washington tomorrow night, and will have suggestions for legislation ready for Congressional committees when the new session is convened.

Meantime, Mr. Roosevelt began his participation in the annual Thanksgiving festivities at the Warm Springs Foundation by attending a children's play this afternoon and "the most stupendous social event of the season" tonight. No other formal engagements have been made until after Thanksgiving, but the President has invited a half-dozen officials to come here at any time.

In this group are Henry Morgenthau, jr., Secretary of the Treasury; Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator; James A. Farley, Postmaster General; James A. Moffett, housing administrator; Donald R. Richberg, coordinating director, and Frank C. Walker, former director of the National Emergency Council. Moffett is expected here Thursday as a trustee of the foundation, while the others are looked for some time this week.

U. S. Debates Further Action Against Insull

Decision on New Trial Left Up to Prosecutor in Chicago.

(Associated Press.)

In the hands of a youthful-appearing, prematurely grayed prosecutor, the United States yesterday placed the decision of whether aged Samuel Insull is to be free from further Federal prosecution—but no immediate answer was forthcoming.

The prosecutor, Dwight H. Green, United States attorney at Chicago, who failed to show the capitalist and 16 associates guilty of fraud in the erection of his defunct utilities empire, was enigmatic as to the Government's course. In any event, two State indictments charging embezzlement still stand against Insull.

For 30 minutes yesterday Green talked with Attorney General Cummings about whether a Federal indictment charging Insull and ten others with violating the bankruptcy act should be pressed—specifically whether $5,000,000 in assets of the ill-fated Corporation Securities Co. had been transferred when they knew bankruptcy was in prospect.

Afterward, the Attorney General said:

"The case is in his hands. Whatever course he seeks to pursue will have the approval of this office. I have every confidence in Mr. Green."

As to Green's decision, Cummings explained that it probably would not be made for "some time." He pointed out that Judge James Wilkerson, who presided at the fraud trial, has yet to rule on the defendant's demurrer to the indictment alleging violation of the bankruptcy act.

"The future disposition of the case will depend on what the judge does with the demurrer," Cummings said.

The Attorney General dismissed rumors of possible illegal influence of the jury at the Chicago trial by characterizing them as "nothing of consequence."

AAA Considers Molasses Order To Aid Farmer

Would Alleviate Shortage of Feed, Prove Boon to Sugar Producers.

Negotiations are under way by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration for the purchase of an immense quantity of Philippine, Puerto Rican and Hawaiian molasses, probably greatly exceeding 100,000,000 gallons, to alleviate the stock feed shortage in the drought area this winter, it was learned yesterday.

The plan, it was understood, will have the effect of killing two birds with one stone. It is designed to provide a market for the surplus of the all bankrupt sugar producers of the island possessions and provide a much needed stock food concentrate for cattle and farm animals of the Middle West this winter.

Officials of the AAA admitted the plan was under consideration, but were not ready for an official announcement. However, it was learned that negotiations are being made with the Molasses Products Co., of New York; the North American Import & Trading Co., of Philadelphia, and the United Molasses Co., Ltd., of Great Britain.

Purpose of Plan.

The plan under consideration, it was said, would provide for the production, transportation and marketing of the molasses to the farmers, who would use drought relief allotments for its purchase. It would provide an additional market to the sugar producers over the island's regular quotas allowed entrance to this country.

News of the proposal has alarmed American shipowners, who fear, because of Secretary Wallace's announcement that foreign purchasing power should be aided by letting foreign ships carry American products, that there will be no clause in the contracts requiring that American ships be used for at least part of the transportation.

Value to Shippers.

The quantity mentioned would represent at least 300 tanker loads, or several million dollars of ocean freight. Of course, American ships would have to be used from Hawaii and Puerto Rico, as they are considered in coastwise traffic and American bottoms must be used.

It was learned that Ferdinand K. Keilberg, representative of the United Molasses Co., Ltd., arrived in New York yesterday from London and will come to Washington to talk over the scheme with AAA officials. American shipowners fear the award of the contract to this firm, which owns 20 tankers and operates sugar holdings in Java, will mean they will lose any part of the carrying of the feed concentrate.

Police, who reported finding documents written in the Croat language in his possession, put the man at the disposition of Yugoslav authorities.

Oklahoma's Vote On Repeal Blocked

Ponca City, Okla., Nov. 27 (AP).—Gov.-elect E. W. Marland today scratched prohibition repeal from the list of constitutional amendments to be submitted at a special election next February or March.

"Our whole program of education, public welfare, revenue and taxation reforms is dependent upon constitutional amendments that may be enacted," Marland told a group of State Senators.

"This program is of such great importance to the State that I hope no question of prohibition repeal will be injected into the question of constitutional amendments."

Japan's Notice To Scrap Pact Waited by U. S.

Washington Weighs Plea of Saito for Reduction of World Navies.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Aspects of the situation which has developed in the wake of the deadlock in the London naval conversations, brought about by Japan's demand for absolute parity in fleet strength with the United States and Great Britain, yesterday continued to absorb attention in official circles at both ends of Pennsylvania avenue.

Although keeping the silence which they have maintained from the start of the naval conversations, State Department attaches worked on the problem of this country's attitude once Japan formally gives notice for termination of the Washington arms treaty. This Government must take the initiative in the moves following that action.

As they worked the State Department attaches took notice of a second article in the Christian Science Monitor weekly magazine by Viscount Admiral Makoto Saito, former premier of Japan, pleading for success of the naval limitation negotiations and contending that war between the United States and his country would be impossible to carry on.

Tokyo Solicits Rome, Paris.

They also noticed cables from Tokyo reporting the resignation of Finance Minister Sadanobu Fujii from the Japanese Cabinet following his defeat in attempting to restrain the militarists in the budget fight, and also reporting that the Japanese foreign office had requested the French and Italians to join them in terminating the Washington treaty.

Although the department had not yet been officially advised of the latter development, it was doubted here that either the French or Italians would join hands with the Japanese on the naval question. Cables from Paris during the day reported the French Chamber of Deputies had appropriated the equivalent of approximately $195,800,000 for the French navy and that at St. Nazire the keel was laid for a new 26,000-ton vessel designed to match Germany's "pocket" battleship.

Army and Navy officers are discussing plans for the expansion of their services and greater appropriations with more gusto than in many years. Their immediate plans, however, must await the return of President Roosevelt from Warm Springs, Ga., and his determination of the next budget.

Hope Pinned on President.

Each service has submitted larger estimates of expenditures than is usual, but the decision whether their requests will be granted rests solely with the President. Both Army and Navy chiefs are prepared to press vigorously their cases with Mr. Roosevelt between his return and January 1. They realize that if he turns them down, they have little hope on Capitol Hill.

In mapping the course which this Government will pursue when the Japanese renounce the Washington treaty, the State Department's experts are keenly interested in developments within the island empire. A change in government or a rift in the existing cabinet would alter all calculations here.

Consequently the significance of such events as the resignation of Finance Minister Fujii is being subjected to careful scrutiny. For the same reason the address Foreign Minister Koki Hirota will make to the extraordinary session of the Diet on Friday likewise will be examined with care. He is expected to discuss the government's policy and the naval conversations.

In the second article in the Christian Science Monitor under his name, Viscount Saito made no sensational statements such as appeared in the article a week ago, when he sharply assailed the jingoes in his country and contended the emperor would not permit the Japanese navy to undertake an unbridled building program.

Ridicules Attack on U. S.

In the second article the viscount goes to some length to demonstrate that Japan could not attack the United States with any hope of success. He labeled stories of how easily Japan could attack the Pacific coast and destroy the Panama Canal as "amusing" and the work of "ambitious fiction writers wanting in naval knowledge."

On the other hand, he contended that Japan has reason to fear air attacks by Soviet Russia, pointing out that Tokyo is only 700 miles or 4½ hours' flying time from Vladivostok, where the Soviets have a fleet of bombing and combat planes.

Discussing Japanese activities in Manchuria, Viscount Saito likened that operation to this country's suppression of Pancho Villa in Mexico. Just as the United States "did not tolerate the mosquito bites of Pancho Villa very long," Viscount Saito asserted, "Japan has declared that it is her mission in east Asia to be responsible for the maintenance of peace."

Pleads for Navy Cuts.

Urging elimination of offensive warcraft, reduction in the size of submarines and cruisers limited to the needs of each country to protect its maritime interests, the former premier made a strong plea for the reduction of all navies. He did not touch on the controversy regarding Japan's demand for parity.

"I plead for common sense," he said in conclusion. "I plead for understanding. Nothing will be gained by an unrestricted naval race. Another war will be deadly to civilization. Fifteen years after the World War we seem to be deeper in the mire than before."

He added that "the common man in every nation—the man who pays the bills—the man who suffers, is the person who should be saved at the forthcoming London conference and not the staggering armadas of fighting ships."

Paris Projects French "NRA" To Help Trade

Flandin Cites Methods of Roosevelt in Launching Recovery Program.

Paris, Nov. 27 (AP).—Premier Pierre-Etienne Flandin, speaking to the nation tonight, promised France something like the NRA to help her out of the industrial doldrums.

A program of "depression legislation" for adaptation of industrial production to consumption was outlined by the premier in an address before a banquet of commercial and industrial organizations. The speech was broadcast.

The legislation, the youthful premier said, "will legalize and render obligatory, only for the duration of the depression and under certain guarantees in favor of consumers, producers' agreements tending to regulate production.

A committee of experts will decide, moreover, what industries cost the country more than they yield and those which must be protected.

Details of the new plan were not disclosed.

Flandin, rejecting firmly the idea of devaluing the franc, said it no longer agrees with the facts since "deflation in France is nearly over" and "world prices in terms of gold are tending to reach the level of French prices."

Appealing to the people to quit listening to "the defeatists of 1934" and unite to fight "exploiters of civil war," Flandin answered demands for constitutional reform by citing the support obtained by President Roosevelt in the United States.

Cites Roosevelt Method.

He said:

"President Roosevelt did not convoke an assembly for reform of the Constitution before he went to work, allthough the American Constitution, if it hasn't the same defects as ours, has other defects. In the United States, as in England, the entire nation massed behind their chiefs. By neither censorship nor repressive law, but by simple patriotic reflex, paralyzing criticism was branded as cowardice and treason."

"Severe regulation" of agricultural production also was proposed by the premier, who reiterated his intention to cease fixing wheat prices.

"Our Christmas gift to poor children will be cheaper bread," he concluded.

Private Detective Held On Charges of Assault

Los Angeles, Nov. 27 (AP).—Ed Dudley, 52-year-old private detective, today went on trial in superior court on a charge of attacking Mrs. Ramona Winegar Alexander, 16, who alleged Dudley spirited her from her husband in West Virginia and brought her here to "get something on" District Attorney Buron Fitts and other city officials.

Dudley, at one time, was an investigator for Fitts, and also did work of a similar nature in Chicago.

St. Nick to Bring Best Liquor Since Repeal, Is Belief

Belief that the best liquor market since repeal will be available for the holiday season was expressed last night by Joseph H. Choate, jr., director of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration, the Associated Press reported.

He pointed to price reductions, improvements in quality and the Treasury's antibootleg campaign as indications that good liquor was available. Studies made by the Administration, he said, indicate that gin now being sold is as good as any before prohibition, that quality of blended whiskies has generally improved and that the amount of straight whisky in storage now approaches 80,000,000 gallons.

U. S. Is Warned By Ship Firm On Mail Pacts

Cancellation Would Slash Foreign Commerce, Grace Says.

(Associated Press.)

Blunt-speaking J. P. Grace, head of the shipping and merchandising firm of W. R. Grace & Co., warned the Government last night that if it disturbed its present ocean mail contracts American commerce with South and Central America would be dealt a serious blow.

At a night session of hearings by the Postoffice Department solicitor to determine whether the three mail contracts held by Grace interests should be modified or canceled, the head of the firm pictured foreign shippers making ready to seize American trade if aid to this country's Merchant Marine through mail contracts is withdrawn, and added:

"With our State Department working on trade agreements and with trade reviving in Central and South America, it seems to me that disruption of any of the facilities through which our foreign trade flows would be a particular misfortune at this time."

Preceding him on the witness stand was Harold J. Roig, vice president of the Grace company, who said that if its mail contracts were canceled it would be "obviously impossible to continue service" over the three lines now operating under mail contracts from the East and West Coasts of the United States to Central and South America, the Canal Zone and Havana.

Under questioning by Grenville Clark, counsel for the Grace interests, Roig asserted that counting the receipt of $8,284,928 in combined mail pay since the three Grace Lines began operating under mail contracts, their aggregate profits had amounted to $1,788,431 up until December 31, 1933. Without the mail pay, he said, the three lines—Grace Steamship Co., Grace Line, Inc., and Panama Mail Steamship Co.—would have lost $6,496,497 for the same period.

Grace cited what he said would be the advantages to American commerce and to national defense in continued operation of the Grace mail routes, but declared that England and Japan were constructing "much more commercial tonnage than we are in this country."

Pope Defends The Handling Of FERA Fund

Idaho Senator Takes Issue With Borah on Charges of Waste.

(Associated Press.)

Foreshadowing congressional debate to come, Idaho's Democratic Senator, James P. Pope, yesterday took direct issue with his Republican colleague, Senator William E. Borah, over the administration of Federal relief.

Borah has demanded a congressional investigation of what he terms the "shameful waste" of funds by the organization headed by Harry L. Hopkins.

Pope yesterday indicated he would not oppose an inquiry should any major charges be substantiated, but he added:

"There are undoubtedly some instances of waste and perhaps worse. It must be remembered that the Relief Administration has spent hundreds of millions of dollars and has cared for millions of the needy. But I personally have inquired into some of the charges made in my own State. There was some ground for criticism, but if I were to judge the Federal Relief Administration from what I learned, I would say it has done a pretty good job under very trying circumstanees."

Attack Renewed.

Borah's criticism of the Relief Administration was followed by requests from Hopkins for specific details of the allegations. The FERA chief contended the Idaho Senator had failed to back up his statements, but Borah renewed the attack. He cited two unnamed counties in which he contended around $500 was spent in each to dole out between $4 and $6 in relief funds.

Pope did not mention Borah by name, but it was plain that he referred to his colleague.

"The best course, it seems to me," Pope said, "would be to investigate if one thought there had been widespread misuse and waste of relief funds. If inquiry proved that conditions were bad, an investigation, and a thorough one, should be demanded and granted as a matter of course.

Criticism Held Easy.

"As I have said, it is very easy to make general charges; but very hard to make them stand up under impartial scrutiny."

Senator Borah said yesterday that he had given Hopkins the information he contended showed a maladministration of relief, but added that he had no recent word from the administrator.

"I am told there will be a report around January 1," Borah said, "but that information comes second hand."

Paris and Rome Cool to Japan's Navy Overture

British Again Deny Parity; Fail to Interest Tokyo in Pacific Pact.

London, Nov. 27 (AP).—American quarters here tonight were confident Japan would get no support from France or Italy in her renunciation of the 1922 Washington naval treaty.

The American delegates to tripower naval conversations here, which have reached the point of break-up over Japan's insistence on naval parity, understood both powers would back Great Britain and the United States in placing the responsibility for abrogation entirely on Japan.

Tokyo's request for French and Italian support was made informally some time ago. The formal request was made today. Britain and America, too, have been openly approached.

Parity Again Denied.

Meanwhile, Great Britain, through her foreign secretary, Sir John Simon, again declined to accede to Japan's demand for naval parity, and there remained to settle, it seemed, only the question as to the procedure involved in renunciation.

Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, Japanese delegate, who accompanied Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaira to the foreign office, indicated that Japan would compromise on many points of her original program for new methods of naval limitation if only the United States and Great Britain granted her naval equality.

Sir John made it clear, however, that Britain still stands with the United States in desiring continuance of the principles of the Washington treaty, including the 5-5-3 ratio which makes Japan's navy three-fifths the size of the British or American.

Matsudaira also told Simon the Japanese were willing to outline the full technical details of their proposals if the British and the Americans were interested. Simon will take the matter up with Norman H. Davis of the American delegation.

Full Figures Withheld.

The Japanese have never given full figures to support their proposals for limitation of navies on the global, or total, tonnage basis, instead of by categories.

Naval circles presumed the British and the Americans would give the Japanese an opportunity to make such explanations, although it was not expected the outlook for compromise would be made any brighter thereby.

Prime Minister MacDonald's statement in Commons today, in which he denied Great Britain would propose any Pacific pact to the United States, was regarded as having put the finishing touches on secret British moves recently to get Japan to agree to some new treaty guaranteeing the integrity of China and peace in the Pacific, in case there is no new naval treaty.

The Japanese rejected the suggested pact, refusing to consider political questions in connection with the naval conversations, so the British decided to carry the proposal no further and did not suggest it to the Americans.

MacDonald's statement, however, was interpreted as in no way interfering with the possibility of an Anglo-American accord on general naval policies if no new naval convention can be arranged.

Anglo-U. S. Talk Next.

The next meeting in the series of conversations probably will be between the British and the Americans, Norman H. Davis and Admiral William H. Standley. A date for terminating the conversations may be set then.

A question in the House of Commons as to whether Great Britain will propose to the United States an agreement for mutual assistance in the Pacific, along the lines of the Locarno treaty, brought prompt denial from Prime Minister MacDonald.

He said Great Britain desired to maintain friendly relations with both the United States and Japan, telling his questioner, Geoffrey Mander, of the Liberal Party, that he did not consider "it was useful to raise by question and answer such matters."

France Rushes Its War Budget To Enactment

Little Support Is Promised for Japan in Move to Scrap Treaty.

Paris, Nov. 27 (AP).—France's 12-billion franc ($790,000,000) national defense budget for 1935 today continued its high speed passage through Parliament.

The navy budget of 2,906,065,383 francs (about $161,862,000) and the aviation budget of 1,454,390,254 francs (about $95,989,000) were approved by the chamber of deputies today, after it heard the government advocate increased aviation development as essential to the French war machine.

Approved Friday were the army budget of 5,689,215,895 francs (about $374,337,000), while still to be approved are supplementary war credits amounting to 800,000,000 francs (about $52,640,000) and appropriations for military expenses in the colonies totaling 613,348,345 francs (about $40,481,000).

Demands Strong Navy.

Also to be voted are defense credits, comparatively unimportant, scattered among various ministries.

A government spokesman said yesterday, in presenting the naval budget to the chamber, that France's rights "will not be disregarded as they were at Washington" (when the Washington naval treaty was signed), and today Minister of the Navy Francois Pietri said "a weak navy would be heresy."

While he did not mention the 35,000-ton battleships Italy now has under construction, Pietri said he preferred stronger light warships unless bigger ones became "indispensable."

Meanwhile, informed sources indicated their belief Japan, which has formally requested French and Italian cooperation in her proposed renunciation of the Washington treaty, would get little support from the Paris government.

3-Year Aviation Policy.

Pietri promised the deputies the navy's aviation branch would be built up and Gen. Victor Denain, minister of air, announced a three-year plan to reorganize airplane manufacture.

Declaring the air force "full of obsolete" types of ships, Denain said the danger that enemy air raiders might destroy French aviation factories had determined him to reorganize the industry and scatter it over the country as has been done in Germany.

He also announced plans to develop aerial transportation in the colonies, the first squadron of transport planes to operate in Algeria.

Each aviation company will be required to be complete. Denain said, revealing the government will spend 250,000,000 francs (about $16,500,000) to help the industry in carrying out the policy of decentralization of factories.

Trolley Heads Repudiate Plan To End Strike

Workers' Right to Return 'Without Prejudice' Denied on Coast.

Los Angeles, Nov. 27 (AP).—The Los Angeles Railway Co. today rejected the proposal of union officials that striking trolley car canductors and motormen be permitted to return to their jobs without prejudice as one of the conditions under which the strike would be called off.

President Sam M. Haskins, of the street car company, issued a formal statement rejecting the proposal as he and other company officials went into conference with Mayor Frank L. Shaw. The mayor has been trying to pave the way for arbitration.

In a final effort toward conciliation, Dr. Towne Nylander, secretary of the Federal regional labor board, called a meeting of representatives of the opposing groups.

Meantime, the police commission asked the fire commission to make city firemen available to Police Chief James E. Davis for riot duty.

At a previous conference in the mayor's office, it was agreed upon to select a fact-finding committee to determine if the street car company is financially able to raise wages to meet the demands of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes.

Car service was maintained today throughout the city. There were no reports of fresh acts of violence such as the melee last night that involved street car operators, passengers, strikers and bystanders.

Mayor Shaw's peace conferences have smoothed out all disputed points save the return to their jobs of those who struck, estimated by the railway company to be less than 500 men, and by the union to be in the neighborhood of 2,000.

The short cut to find the right gift is in "Holiday Hints" in Post Classified Ads.

Glen Echo-Cabin John Unit Weighs Finances

Use of funds for extra-curricular activities and the purchase of athletic equipment, school radio, records for music instruction and auxiliary purposes is being studied by the Parent-Teacher Association of Glen Echo-Cabin John, Md. The association now has on hand funds raised by recent benefits.

A resolution urging removal of the school cafeteria from quarters adjacent to the school to the main building was adopted at the last meeting and a committee named to confer with the Board of Education on the subject.

on 33 main thoroughfare streets during the winter months was deferred to a special meeting to be held on December 13, two days before the proposed effective date of the prohibition.

Meanwhile, the committee voted to refer the no-parking plan to the parking subcommittee, of which Arthur J. Van Hagen is chairman, for study.

Several members of the Board of Trade committee are known to oppose the parking proposal. It was this group which last year forced modification of a proposal for absolute restriction of downtown parking, to be effective only during the evening rush hour.

Strict enforcement of existing speed regulations without change in speed limits until Congress adopts a compulsory auto inspection law was voted by the committee, following a report by Dr. Franklin J. Hilton, chairman of the operating regulations subcommittee.

Inspection Law Urged.

A resolution offered by Col. Crawford for the law enforcement subcommittee proposed an inspection law which would compel motorists to submit an inspection certificate from an authorized service station as a condition of tag issuance.

The committee voted to refer the resolution back to the subcommittee, however, when Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer opposed it in favor of a law which would compel regular inspection at central inspection points.

Segregation of the "traffic outlaw" by revocation of license or other means was urged by Corporation Counsel E. Barrett Prettyman, who addressed the meeting.

Grid Bus Bound Here Crashes; Three Hurt

Grafton, W. Va., Nov. 27 (AP).—A bus carrying the University of Oklahoma Band and other students from Norman, Okla., to Washington for a football game crashed into an embankment today, injuring three persons slightly.

The injured, all members of the band, were treated at Grafton City Hospital for minor cuts and bruises. The bus was one of three carrying the students to the Capital, where Oklahoma plays George Washington University Thursday.

U. S. Set for Navy Race, Japan Told

House Naval Affairs Committee and Congress make enough money available to build five ships for each three laid down by Japan."

Japan, he reminded, had once agreed to be satisfied with three warships for each five built by the United States or Great Britain.

"Officially and formally, she said that was all she needed," Vinson said. "Yet now she wants more."

He declined to give his ideas as to why Japan wanted parity.

Vinson declared that as soon as Japan gave formal notice of an intention to renounce the treaty, he would start the congressional machinery necessary to maintain the 5-5-3 ratio. It is Vinson's plan under which the United States now, for the first time since arms limitation talks in 1922, is building its fleet up to prescribed treaty limits.

New Construction Proposed.

Already, Vinson has suggested that the President's Aviation Commission recommend the construction of two new giant airships, a 15,000-ton aircraft carrier, a cruiser with landing decks and a number of aircraft tenders. His future plans in that connection, he said, will depend upon the commission's recommendation to the President.

In other quarters, meanwhile, Japan's request for Italy and France to join her in renouncing the Washington treaty was interpreted as simply a diplomatic maneuver to bolster the Japanese position. If those two nations did join Japan, it was said, the world at large might be inclined to put upon Japan less of the onus for ending the treaty.

There also was, yesterday, another reminder from Viscount Admiral Makoto Saito, former Japanese premier, that "if the London Conference fails utterly and a free-for-all naval race starts, the tax situation in all nations will become intolerable."

He spoke in an article in the Christian Science Monitor, written before the triparty naval conversations started in London.

Earthquake Recorded On G. U. Seismograph

An earthquake of moderate intensity was recorded early yesterday at Georgetown University, beginning at 1:33:26 a. m., according to the Associated Press. It reached the maximum at 1:37 a. m., and ended at 4 a. m.

The distance was placed at 9,500 miles away in an uncertain direction. The earthquake was described as being very deep in the earth.

PWA Studies Vast Program Of Homesteads

Plan Embracing Billion and a Half Embodies U.S.-Financed Idea.

(Associated Press.)

An unprecedentedly large subsistence homesteads program, calling for Federal spending of between $500,000,000 and $1,500,000,0000 over the next five years, was reported under serious consideration yesterday as part of a new public works program.

The proposal would furnish opportunity to Secretary Ickes to carry out his Government-financed housing idea. The PWA chief's recent exposition of a Federal low-cost housing plan brought so strong an objection from James A. Moffett, housing administrator, that White House intervention was necessitated. At that time, however, Ickes did not mention the homestead plan as what he had in mind.

Reports of the subsistence homestead plan were heard coincidentally on Capitol Hill and in the executive section of Washington. In one Government quarter it was said that the $1,500,000,000 development was under consideration.

Hearty Approval Forecast.

Representative Fulmer (Democrat), South Carolina, said he had heard of a proposal to spend $100,000,000 a year for five years in this work. He said he believed it would receive hearty congressional approval.

Meanwhile, Ickes' already operative subsistence homestead organization was disclosed to be selling homes to families in the low income class at 3 per cent interest, giving them 30 years in which to pay.

The present efforts of Housing Administrator Moffett to encourage home building with private funds are based upon Government-issued 5 per cent mortgages. He had declared that Ickes' previously expanded plan would wreck the national housing act.

To Follow FCA Interest Rates.

Relief officials also were revealed yesterday to be as anxious as Ickes to continue Government activities in the field of low-cost housing. They said, however, that they had decided to follow the interest rates of the Farm Credit Administration—ranging from about 5 to 5½ per cent—in determining the rentals to be charged occupants of homes built with relief funds for destitute families.

Officials in both the Interior Department and the relief administration asserted there was a tremendous need for Government-financed housing in rural and suburban areas to encourage the decentralization of industry and enable low-income families and those on relief to raise a part of their living. They contended this would not interfere with Moffett's efforts to spur private capital into urban home building.

A Government-assisted movement back to the land, they added, is essential to provide some income for these people in times of slack employment.

American Protests Czech Deportation

Ohio Languages Instructor Charges Mistreatment.

Imre Domonkos, Oberlin, Ohio, languages instructor, protested to the State Department yesterday against his arrest and deportation from Czechoslovakia last month, the Associated Press says.

He informed officials he had gone to that country to study German dialects in preparation of a thesis for a degree at Cornell University. Although he said he had a letter of introduction from the country's minister of education and all required passport indorsements, he was arrested in a small town in the mountains, held incommunicado in "filthy jail quarters" and, "after a so-called hearing," was deported.

Domonkos is a native of Czechoslovakia and a naturalized American citizen.

Police, Firemen To Attend Mass

Following examples set by New York, Baltimore and other cities, Catholic members of the District police and fire departments will observe the first annual Communion Sunday when they meet in full uniform at St. Patrick's Church on Sunday at 8 a. m.

With approval from Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Chief Engineer Charles E Schrom, and District Commissioner George E. Allen, plans call for an assembly of members from both departments in the St. Patrick's Parish Hall at 7:45 a. m., from where they will march to the church for the mass. Tentative arrangements have been made for the American Legion Post Band of the Police Department to attend.

Nazis Ordered To Soft-Pedal Saar Campaign

Hitler Shuns Disturbance After His Agreement With France.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

Saarbrucken, the Saar, Nov. 27.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler today gave the "cease firing" order to the heavy guns of the Nazis' pre-plebiscite propaganda battery.

In line with his reported agreement with France's foreign minister, Pierre Laval, that Germany would pay for French mining properties in the Saar if France abandoned her campaign to keep the Saar under League of Nations jurisdiction, Hitler instructed Nazi leaders here to soft-pedal their activities.

Disturbances must be avoided, the orders said, and Nazis must depend largely on the press to keep the swastika flying in this disputed territory until the plebiscite January 13.

[The Saar, taken from Germany after the World War, will vote whether to remain under League of Nations administration, join France or rejoin Germany.—EDITOR].

A report here today said the plebiscite might not be necessary in view of the reported understanding between Hitler and Laval, which has not yet been officially confirmed, but this prospect was believed unlikely.

One result of the instructions from Hitler was to end the unwillingness of Nazis to cooperate with plebiscite authorities in their effort to insure an impartial vote.

"We are now assured of a large favorable vote," one Nazi leader said in commenting on the Franco-German understanding. "We can now coast along."

Prince Georges Club Will Hold Yule Party

A Christmas party will be held December 20 by the Prince Georges County (Md.) Kiwanis Club, it was decided last night at a dinner meeting at the Beaver Dam Country Club. Children of members and their friends will be entertained. Dr. Charles L. Mackert was named chairman of the arrangements committee.

E. G. Duncan, chairman of the committee in charge of the dance to be given by the club December 6 at the Beaver Dam Club, reported progress of plans. Addresses were made by Arthur C. Keefer, president, J. R. Dawkins and S. C. Helfer.

of the Saar plebiscite, except that Hitler might be planning to use regular army men if necessary to prevent impulsive Storm Troopers from crossing into the disputed territory.

Full Arms Parity Price Of Germans' Amity

Berlin, Nov. 7 (U.P.).—A new conciliatory attitude and willingness to return to the League of Nations was apparent in Nazi quarters today, on the major consideration that France and the other allied powers in the World War overlook the Reich's rearmament.

Joachim von Ribbentrop, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's special envoy, is reported to be returning from London this week to report on progress of his secret mission in this connection there.

Then he is to proceed to Paris the first of next week to confer with Foreign Minister Pierre Laval along similar lines, in the second of what is regarded as one of the most significant Nazi moves toward an arms understanding made since the German delegation walked out of the arms conference at Geneva last year.

Results of the British visit were believed fairly favorable, leading British statesmen, including Jan C. Smuts, of South Africa, having publicly declared in favor of permitting Germany to return to the family of nations on a basis of equality.

However, German circles frankly admitted they feared difficulties in Paris, on the next phase of these vital negotiations for arms equality, such as a demand by France that Hitler agree to the Reich's entry into an eastern Locarno accord, guaranteeing peace in eastern Europe. Hitler has looked upon this move with disfavor, inasmuch as it requires guarantees of mutual assistance, and Von Ribbentrop's task may run into snags on these issues.

Firemen's Dance Friday.

Plans have been completed for the annual fall dance of the Silver Spring (Md.) Volunteer Fire Department Friday night at the Indian Spring Golf Club.

Vienna Armed Against Threat Of Nazi Putsch

Students Stone Offices of Newspapers; Reich Sentiment Grows.

Vienna, Nov. 27 (AP).—Vienna took on a martial aspect tonight as authorities prepared to deal with any recurrences of the day's student riots which, it was feared, would develop into a Nazi putsch.

Motor trucks filled with steel-helmeted police and auxiliary forces rumbled through the streets, supplementing heavy details of mounted police on patrol, ready to suppress any further demonstrations.

Fears of a Nazi putsch grew out of street demonstrations, which, starting as anti-Czech manifestations, quickly assumed anti-government and pro-Nazi proportions. Throngs of students, inflamed by recent anti-German riots at the university in Praha, capital of Czechoslovakia, attacked the Czechoslovak Legation, shouting "Down with Czechoslovakia! Avenge our fellow students in Praha!"

Repulsed by Police.

They were repulsed by police, who battered them with swords and clubs. Previously, the uncontrolled crowds of students had bombarded with bricks and stones the Czech-controlled newspapers, Der Tag and Die Tunde, smashing almost every window in the plants, wrecking the interior of the offices, and terrorizing editors and printers.

Repulsed by authorities, the demonstrators began displaying marked Nazi sympathies. So serious did the situation become that authorities closed the Ballhausplatz district, where the government offices are located. It was there that the abortive Nazi putsch, which culminated in the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss, started last July.

Nazis Are Bolder.

The outbursts and riots were regarded by observers as indicating clearly that the Nazi movement in Austria was increasing in boldness and strength. Nazi propaganda, in the form of handbills denouncing the government as a "government of hangmen which murdered 13 of our Nazi comrades" have been widely distributed of late, especially in the provinces. The circulars also urged Nazi followers to rally again for the final battle against the government.

Today's disorders were regarded as significant also because they occurred at the moment the new State Council replaced the Parliament and held its first sessions.

In May, 1930, he was placed on the retired list due to physical disability incurred in line of duty.

Children Died Of Suffocation, Probers Think

Clew to Identity Is Given by Proprietor of Tourist Camp.

To View Bodies.

Mrs. Dills told police the party was traveling in a black sedan with California license plates.

Mrs. Dills is expected to arrive in Harrisburg tomorrow, and after a conference with police will go to Carlisle to see the children's bodies.

She reported the campers also left a small piece of green cloth and she will bring it with her to the Capital. Investigators said they will check it against articles of clothing in a traveling bag found about 4 miles from the children's mountain bier of leaves.

Boston Clew Fails.

Meanwhile, officers have broadcast a Nation-wide request to police to stop the California car and hold its occupants for questioning. They also are attempting to trace the Malones through California officials.

Mrs. Dills' camp is on the Lincoln highway, a main national thoroughfare which passes about 30 miles south of the point where the bodies of the children were found. Mrs. Dills said she does not know from what direction the travelers came or where they went.

Wilhelm said the possibility of the connection of a Boston woman and three children with the Carlisle babies and the Duncansville couple is "definitely out" in view of a message from Boston saying one of the children reported to have ridden a New York-bound bus last week "was only a baby."

Search for a woman and three children who left a bus at Cresson, in the western part of the State, is continuing in the vicinity of Portage, he added.

Man "Identified."

The San Francisco angle drew major attention when Larry Carney, of Philadelphia, looked at a photograph of the man found at Duncansville and said "that's Horace Hughes," a Salvation Army member with whom he lived in or near the Pacific Coast city six years ago.

Carney said he met Hughes on a Philadelphia street on Monday night of last week and that Hughes told him he came East with his three children. Carney added that the children were light-haired and that their ages corresponded with those of the mystery girls, who were believed to range in age from 7 to 16 years.

While the police worked on this as one of their best clews, San Francisco found a department store employe there named Horace Hughes, who said he left the Salvation Army nine years ago and that he did not know Larry Carney.

Guinea Pigs Yield To Squirrels in Test Of Tooth Aid Diet

Richmond, Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Squirrels will take over the customary duties of guinea pigs when the Virginia State board of health conducts experiments to decide whether their teeth grow faster on a diet of hard food or soft food.

The tests will be conducted at the State Game Farm near here. Two groups of the squirrels will be assigned to separate pens and then given the two different bills of fare.

Although the game commission has been able to produce six squirrels, Carl H. Nolting, chairman, says that it will be difficult to trap the full number desired, because food is so plentiful in the woods that they are not tempted to enter the traps.

L. S. U. Group Strikes to End 'Gag by Long'

Journalism Students Hit at 'Editorship' of Kingfish.

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 27 (AP). Rebuking the editorship of Senator Huey P. Long at Louisiana State University, journalism students today demanded freedom of the press by removal of the censorship Long forced on the Reveille, official campus publication. It resulted in suspension of the paper.

Some 40 members of the school of journalism laid down an ultimatum that they would not contribute one word to the Reveille until the editorial and managerial staff who resigned last night under enforced censorship are restored to their positions.

Petitions containing the challenge to the college officials were adopted in mass meeting resolutions and circulated about the campus while allied journalistic organizations were meeting to take joint action.

As a member of the board of supervisors of the college, Long had the censorship "gag" rule enforced in order to bar the publication of student criticisms of his management of State and college, Jesse H. Cutrer, of Kentwood, La., resigned as editor and business manager of the publication, declared.

Dr. James Monroe Smith, president of L. S. U., said he considered the question an academic one in which he reserved the right to have the last say over a student editor.

The school of journalism students set up an organization to be known as "Students of the School of Journalism" to foster their battle for "freedom of expression."

Demands Free Press.

"We as journalism students have listened to a lot of lectures on freedom of the press," Sam Montague, who was elected president, told the meeting. "If we don't do something about it we will be branded as cowards who are told what to do and a degree in journalism at L. S. U. will not be worth the paper it is written on."

"Huey Long says Louisiana should secede from the Union," declared L. Ray Godboudt, of Brookhaven, Miss. "I say we should divorce ourselves and edit our own paper."

Long had the university clamp down the censorship after he had taken practically the entire student body to the L. S. U.-Vanderbilt football game in Nashville, and then had staged a burlesque mass meeting on the campus in which Abe Mickal, L. S. U. football star, was named to the State Senate.

D. R. Norman, of Jamestown, a sophomore, contributed a letter to the Reveille branding the "election" of Mickal "a mockery of constitutional government and democracy," but in the next paragraph he concluded: "Yet that is all right. It was only a burlesque. What kept this action from moving out of the category of a burlesque into serio s mockery of our legislative body?

"The answer to this question lies in the intelligence of the so-called 'senator-elect' and the foresight of the athletic director of L. S. U."

Gen. Warfield's Rites Set Today

He Was Last Confederate Soldier in Alexandria.

The funeral of Brig. Gen. Edgar Warfield, who died Monday night in the Alexandria Hospital after a brief illness, will be held at 3 p. m. today at the home of his son, George E. Warfield, 116 Maple street. Services will be conducted by the Rev. Ernest W. Aaron, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and the Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, pastor of the Del Ray Methodist Episcopal Church South.

The casket of this last Confederate soldier in Alexandria is draped with a Confederate battle flag of the Seventeenth Virginia Regiment, captured by New York troops and only recently returned to the local Confederate veterans' organization through the efforts of Gen. Warfield.

Pallbearers will be Dr. O. A. Ryder, Dr. George E. Schlosser, Col. John H. Trimyer, R. Samuel Luckett, commander of the Robert E. Lee Camp, Sons of Confederate Veterans; Marl L. Price and William S. Jones. During the funeral all drug stores in Alexandria will be closed in honor of the deceased, the oldest druggist in the United States, president emeritus of the Virginia Pharmaceutical Society, and for many years a member of the examining board of that organization.

900 Alcohol Unit Ousters Leaves Bureau Open to Bootlegger Assaults.

list, the applicants must be examined carefully with regard to character qualifications, it was said. The hiring of new investigators will consequently progress slowly.

Actually the alcohol tax unit will have only about 400 experienced investigators on its rolls after Friday, these being employes who passed the second civil service examination required by the McKellar "patronage rider."

The 700 new investigators authorized have not been employed yet, it was authoritatively stated, and many of them will still be unhired when Congress convenes January 3 and decides whether the McKellar rider will be repealed and the 900 investigators will be reinstated.

Plan on Furloughs.

Because of the difference between the present enrollment of 1,400 and the quota of 1,800, it was said, Congress will be able to reinstate the 900 possibly without removing but a comparative few of the new employes. However, there would be no difficulty in releasing the latter as their appointments will be in accordance with the customary six months probationary rule of civil service.

Secretary Morgenthau, who Monday predicted that chaos will follow the dismissal of the 900 investigators, yesterday conferred with aids in the alcohol tax unit regarding the wisdom of placing the men on furloughs.

It was authoritatively stated that the Secretary is anxious to do whatever will be in the best interest of the men. If he is convinced that their claims to the jobs may be strengthened by a furlough order, it was said, he may substitute it for the dismissal order already issued.

While the McKellar rider was admittedly politically inspired, being designed to oust what the Tennessee Senator called "Hoover Republicans" formerly employed as prohibition agents. Democratic patronage seekers are understood to have encountered unforeseen obstacles in trying to place good Democrats in the jobs.

Select Appointees Carefully.

Numerous members of Congress are reported to have indorsed applicants only to be informed that the alcohol tax unit was following the strict wording of the McKellar rider and was selecting its appointees carefully from the civil service eligible list.

The National Federation of Federal Employes contends that many of those being dismissed are Democrats, and it is known that 150 of those required to take the recent civil service test were patronage appointees given jobs by the present Administration.

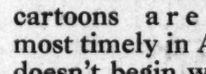
Brig. Gen. Samuel T. Ansell, who is counsel for some of the dismissed employes, said that he may recommend that the investigators offer to work without pay until Congress reconvenes.

Such an offer, if accepted by the Secretary of the Treasury, would relieve the Internal Revenue Bureau of the embarrassment of trying to enforce the liquor tax law with a wholly inadequate staff of investigators.

Treasury officials have previously complained that even with 1,400 trained men the task of eliminating the bootlegger is tremendous. With new men and the holiday season, they privately admit, the job of stamping them out will be impossible.

Willie, the Office Boy, talked out of turn again yesterday. "Why," demanded Willie, "doesn't The Washington Post charge half of Gene Elderman's salary to The Literary Digest? They reprint enough of his cartoons!"

Well, we can't answer that question, Willie, but we do think that the editors of The Literary Digest are smart, discerning men who recognize in Elderman one of the brightest, more interpretative cartoonists in the United States, and it gives us a glow of pride to see his work winning Nation-wide and world-wide acclaim. Many newspapers "lift" his cartoons, and you'll find them reprinted in The Review of Reviews, Current History, The London Review of Reviews, and other well-known magazines here and abroad. If all the Elderman cartoons reproduced in other publications were laid end to end, we know of at least ten other cartoonists who would turn green with envy.



Cartooning, we think, is a difficult job. First, you've got to think of an editorial, and then draw it. It must be clear, it must be original, and it must be up to The Post's high standards. But Gene Elderman scores on all three points seven days each week, and we think his editorial cartoons are the most timely in America. A day which doesn't begin with a chuckle over his drawing on the editorial page of The Post is a day starting wrong.

Elderman, who was only 22 when he began to draw cartoons for The Post two years ago, is somewhat of an Infant Prodigy . . . and, according to our records, he's the youngest editorial cartoonist in the Big Time. He's been drawing cartoons, he tells us, since grade school days, and his first recognized work was a caricature of Teacher. Teacher recognized it — and from that time on, Gene has bemoaned the cartoonist's lot as an unhappy one. But he continued to draw, and although he never took a lesson in his life, he has drawn editorial cartoons, sport sketches, and animated cartoons for the movies. To this day, he can't enjoy Mickey Mouse because he remembers those thousands of separate drawings necessary for each reel. Gene came to us from Kentucky, and we think he's the only living native of the Blue Grass State who isn't a Kentucky Colonel on Ruby Laffoon's staff. But then, he'd rather draw cartoons than drawl, "Another mint julep, suh?"

Turn to the editorial page right now and find out what Elderman thinks of this topsy-turvey world. His cartoon will give you a new interpretation of the goings-on you read about on Page One . . . and you'll look for Elderman's cartoon every day in

HINT FOR THANKSGIVING

A guest has been wittily defined as a person who drinks what his host serves — unless he packs a bottle of his own! Anyway, why not contribute something sumptuous on a sumptuous occasion . . . In addition to Sunny Brook, we particularly recommend Old Grand Dad and Old Taylor as feast-day gifts. Also Mount Vernon, Bourbon de Luxe and Blue Grass — all 12 to 18 years old. You can't find their double — and they'll double your welcome.

SOLD...our last case of pre-prohibition Sunny Brook

GREAT McKESSON & ROBBINS CHAIN OF WHOLESALE DRUGGISTS ACQUIRES ALL WE HAD LEFT OF THIS FAMOUS "VINTAGE" WHISKEY

DOWN in our great bonded warehouses at Louisville, and elsewhere, there was still quite a respectable supply, 3 or 4 months ago, of fine old pre-prohibition "vintage" whiskies.

Whiskey so rare as this is really "occasion" whiskey—not for the everyday cocktail or highball, but for the unusual occasion

They included the most famous whiskey names in America. They ranged in age from 12 to 18 years.

The government permitted us to hold them in wood far beyond the 8-year bottling limit, to serve medicinal needs during prohibition.

Ryes and bourbons so mellow and ripe with years had not been available before, and probably never will be again.

We announced these facts a few weeks ago in this and other publications.

The result was astonishing.

First every drop of our 16-year-old Old Taylor was grabbed up.

Old Grand Dad sold out next.

Then Black Gold.

And now McKesson & Robbins, to serve their nation-wide clientele, have taken every bottle of Sunny Brook not held by other stores and bars!

This leaves us with limited and dwindling supplies of superb Bourbon de Luxe, Blue Grass, Old McBrayer and Mount Vernon—all 12 to 18 years in oak.

They'll soon be gone too—not only from our warehouses but from the bars, shelves and lockers of retailers, ships and hotels.

The supply is so limited and the demand so great that they can't last long.

May we suggest that a few bottles, put under lock and key, will be prized possessions on special occasions later? They'll never be worth less than you pay for them now.

A Trump End-Play.

"The trumps didn't break, partner, so I had to go down one."

How often have I heard that remark made by a declarer to the dummy, who has not watched the butchery which has gone on.

It is undoubtedly true that bad divisions in either a plain suit or the trump suit being about the defeat of many otherwise makable contracts. However, many times these bad divisions can be counteracted by careful play, at the conclusion of which a seemingly sure trump trick of the declarer's left-hand opponent vanishes into thin air.

On the hand below Mr. Benedict Jarmel, of New York City, fulfilled a four-heart contract despite the bad trump division by the use of a trump end play.

In response to his partner's bid, West opened the spade Ace, and when his partner played an intermediate card, continued with the suit, although a diamond shift might have been better. East won the second spade trick with the Queen and, not realizing that his partner held two probable trump tricks, decided a club shift was necessary. Frankly, I believe East's return of the seven of clubs was a very bad play and I doubt whether the contract would have been fulfilled without it.

Mr. Jarmel covered the lead of the club seven with the ten and West's Queen was covered by dummy's Ace. The King of hearts was now played from dummy to test out the trump division, and after both players followed Mr. Jarmel quite correctly decided to abandon the suit, reasoning that West was almost certainly marked by the double with the three remaining trumps.

Mr. Jarmel further decided, because of East's overcall, that the diamond King was probably wrong. He therefore proceeded to run his club suit, returning to his own hand with the King and then taking the indicated finesse against West's nine. On the fourth club South's losing diamond was discarded and West had to helplessly follow suit.

The Ace of diamonds was now led from dummy and a second diamond trumped in South's hand. South now led his last spade, trumped with one of dummy's small hearts, and led another diamond, trumping with the heart nine in his own hand. West, of course, overtrumped, but now could do nothing but lead away from his heart Queen into the declarer's tenace.

The doubled contract was thus fulfilled, despite the bad division, by careful play, which reduced West's two apparent trump tricks to one.

As American as Thanksgiving

. . . these two fine old rye whiskies

THANKSGIVING is America's day for good food, good cheer and good will. It is fitting, too, that it should be your day for good American whiskey.

And of all the whiskies made, there is none quite so American in name, in tradition and in taste as Four Roses and Paul Jones.

Returning from the wars in 1865, Colonel Paul Jones first made the whiskey that bears his name. He made it as he had fought—with every last bit of his ability.

They're just as fine today

Four Roses and Paul Jones Whiskies are made today by the direct descendants of that original Paul Jones. And they are made just as he made them—made the only way truly great whiskey can be made—by the costly old-fashioned method of allowing grain to ferment slowly, naturally. For the makers of these whiskies know, as every honest whiskey-man knows, that there is no way to improve on Time and Nature.

Kentucky for Bourbon—
Maryland for Rye

Four Roses and Paul Jones are made in Kentucky and Maryland—and that's important to you. For only in these two fine old States can you find the limestone water that's necessary to give whiskey the full-bodied richness it should have.

Four Roses and Paul Jones are barrel-ripened in United States warehouses under the most rigid government supervision in the world. And they are all whiskey when you buy them—blends of mellow straight whiskies. Yet they cost no more than whiskies that aren't.

Invite them to your
Thanksgiving party!

Let Four Roses and Paul Jones help make your first Repeal Thanksgiving a day to remember. They're for sale everywhere. Mix your pre-dinner cocktails with them. Burn them on your plum pudding. Let them add their mellow flavor to your after-dinner highballs. When the day is done, we believe you'll admit that these two whiskies are the finest you've tasted since Repeal—and also that drinks made with them have a richer, more zestful flavor.

In hotels and restaurants, insist on having your drinks made with Four Roses and Paul Jones. For these are true American whiskies. And that's the kind of whiskey American drinks are supposed to be made with!

Try these other famous
Frankfort Whiskies

OLD OSCAR PEPPER—An old-fashioned whiskey at an old-fashioned price. MATTINGLY & MOORE—An extra-quality whiskey at an unusually reasonable price. SHIPPING PORT—The best straight whiskey at so low a price. WOLF CREEK—A fine, naturally aged Rye whiskey at a low price.

"IRVIN S. COBB'S OWN RECIPE BOOK," the greatest drinking guide ever published, describes nearly 100 selected recipes. And there's $100 worth of Mr. Cobb's best humor besides. Send 10c in stamps for your copy to Frankfort Distilleries, Dept. 236, Louisville, Ky.

Sunshine In The Saar.

If France is really abandoning her effort to prevent the Saar from again becoming German territory in the forthcoming plebiscite, as reports from Saarbruecken indicate, a long step toward improvement of European political conditions is being taken. In spite of all French opposition and in spite of many Saarlanders' dislike for the Nazi regime, that thoroughly German territory probably will vote heavily for amalgamation with the Third Reich. Continued French opposition would merely accentuate the bitterness already manifested in the Saar, and sharpen acerbity between Paris and Berlin.

Apparently Foreign Minister Laval has decided not to squander good will upon a hopeless cause. This is practical politics, for the most France can hope for is to secure a vote favorable to continuation of the league's control over the Saar. That outcome would leave the fundamental issue unsettled, without in any way strengthening the dwindling hope that the Saar will ever voluntarily accept French rule. By recognizing this reality France has an opportunity to remove a formidable source of irritation in Europe's body politic, as well as to negotiate a reasonable settlement of the future of the rich Saar mines.

The issue to be settled by the plebiscite in January is not a simple question as to whether this territory shall revert to Germany. If the latter country regains possession of the Saar, it must pay France for the coal mines of that region. These mines were given to France under the Treaty of Versailles as compensation for the destruction of French mines during the war. Satisfactory adjustment of this problem is far more important to France than keeping this spot of German soil detached from the Reich.

An amicable settlement of the Saar issue would not end the antagonism between France and Germany, but it would remove one fundamental cause of suspicion and antagonism. All Europe would breathe easier if the Saar plebiscite could be held under the influence of such amicable negotiations between Paris and Berlin as Laval and Hitler are said to have initiated.

A Major Coordinating Job.

The dispute between Secretary Ickes and Housing Administrator Moffett has had at least one constructive result. It has demonstrated the necessity for better teamwork among Federal departmental heads, particularly in the housing field, with which no less than 54 Federal agencies are said to be in some way concerned. In comparison with this task of coordination, the PWA-FHA conflict seems relatively easy of solution, even though many of the 54 agencies are merely concerned with their own housing needs.

But when all discount is made, the list of organizations which deal directly with housing problems is a formidable one, testifying to the planless program of the Congress that passed the emergency legislation. Instead of studying the problem of housing in all its ramifications, and then adopting a comprehensive law to deal with the situation, Congress in this, as in other cases, was content to meet a specific emergency by hastily establishing a new administrative agency. Then when another emergency arose, another agency was authorized. The result is a bewildering maze of new organizations, few of them possessing properly defined spheres of activity.

Conflicts of authority are inevitable under such conditions. But an Administration that has assumed responsibility for the better organization of our economic life can not afford to permit interdepartmental clashes of opinion and policy to continue much longer. It must take effective steps to solidify and coordinate related agencies, whether they are concerned with housing or with other activities.

Pronouncing Pumpkin.

The editor of the women's pages has sought the erudite advice of this department upon an important question. At this season of the year it far transcends in interest a somewhat similar one we settled for all time last spring in our animadversions upon the pronunciation of tomato. How, she asks, should she pronounce pumpkin, as in pie?

There is of course only one way to enunciate this ancient and admirable vegetable. And although the word is as Yankee as corned hake and pork scraps, its pronunciation is derived through that same British process which makes Chumley out of Cholmondeley. One pronounces it the easiest, which is the correct way, and this is "punkin."

To ask for pump-kin pie is to admit ignorance or to display affectation. Even a Hoosier knows this, as Mr. James Whitcomb Riley proved beyond a doubt in a familiar poem. But if you doubt our authority in this matter and are still uncertain as to the correct way to ask for that most delectable dish, there is a way out. Ask for squash pie. Unfortunately you will probably be served the same product, anyway.

A Change of Tactics.

A clear-cut fight on the issue of Government competition in the electric power business is foreshadowed by the action of the Edison Electric Institute. Two eminent constitutional lawyers have been retained to work out the case of the power interests against the Tennessee Valley Authority and other Federal agencies of a similar character. No doubt the controversy will eventually be carried to the Supreme Court to determine how far the Government can go in using public funds to force private enterprise out of business.

In bringing this vital issue to a climax the institute is, of course, acting in defense of the power interests. Nevertheless, it may render a public service by focusing attention upon an issue of far-reaching importance to the future development of the country. President Roosevelt has repeatedly intimated that the TVA experiment is only the beginning of a broad national program of Government ownership and operation in the utilities field. Before the Administration carries this objective any further it should welcome a test of its authority. The report that Newton D. Baker and James M. Beck consider the TVA act "palpably unconstitutional" certainly seems to demand court action.

The method thus adopted to fight encroachment by the Government upon private utilities stands out in emphatic contrast to their recent "educational" campaign in the colleges. The Federal Trade Commission has just sent to the Senate a report tracing the expenditure of $1,312,264 for dissemination of "good will" toward the utilities. Institutions from the "kindergarten to the university" were propagandized over a period of years. Part of the money was paid to students through scholarships and essay contests on subjects related to the power industry. Some of it went to poorly-paid professors called into the service of utility companies and associations during spare hours.

With these facts stated, no intelligent citizen will need to be warned of their invidious implications. Propaganda is especially obnoxious when it is injected into the schools under the deceptive mask of "education." Resort to such tactics is undoubtedly one reason why the utilities now need to employ Messrs. Baker and Beck. These interests would be in a far better position to press their case today if they had not so carelessly trifled with public confidence in a more giddy period.

Signs Of The Times.

The newest innovation on America's Great White Way is a holiday hostess without eyes, ears, nose or mouth! She is neither blonde, brunette nor titian. Her hair is pink, with a decided inclination toward cerise. And in spite of rain, snow or pelting hail, she undulates 24 hours a day in a low-cut evening dress on Broadway's busiest corner. Not one word of complaint has ever been heard to issue from the place where her lips should be.

This garish billboard lady is a composite daughter of the Brodaway Association. She glides, makes turns and waves her arms, which drape a black shawl behind her billboard shoulders. She is a superb product of this neon era.

But in effort to secure the model hostess, one who neither rebels at long hours, demands higher wages, nor shouts "Hello, sucker," the Broadway Association has placed itself in a precarious position with her competitors. In view of the recent efforts of professional models to limit the activities of society models, it will be interesting to see their reaction to this graceful robot, who threatens to outshine them all in welcoming holiday visitors to New York City.

Here is a sign-sister who blithely disregards all union rules. She is simply a model girl who speaks no evil, sees no evil, hears no evil. Broadway is to be congratulated upon having found one public figure who is above petty rivalry and who transcends all codes of fair competition. This is indeed a good sign.

A Matter Of Personnel.

Secretary Morgenthau is "terribly shocked" to learn that several employes of the Bureau of Internal Revenue have been "selling out the Government" in tax cases. He also has expressed fear that "confusion and disorganization are bound to result" from the dismissal of 900 civil service employes in the alcohol tax unit of his department. At first glance the two statements and the situations which prompted them may appear to have no logical connection. But they are not unrelated.

The Federal tax collecting machinery has not yet been divorced from the spoils system. Collectors of internal revenue, deputy collectors and a considerable number of attorneys handling tax collection matters are chosen because of their political influence. The position of collector has been a favorite plum for national committeemen. Secretary Morgenthau has attempted to divorce the tax-collecting machinery from active politics, but many key positions are still held by patronage appointees.

In these circumstances it is not surprising to find an outcropping of spoils psychology in the tax-gathering system. The employes who attempted to collect a fee from a taxpayer for "fixing" an income tax case have not yet been identified. It is reported that they were employed through civil service regulations. Even so, the atmosphere which is brought into an organization by selecting its chief officials on a spoils basis is unquestionably a demoralizing factor.

The conspiracies of internal revenue agencies can not be excused, of course, because a spoils system is superimposed upon them nor because Congress is unfair to a group of employes. The point which deserves emphasis is that by strengthening the patronage system Congress tacitly encourages loose conduct on the part of employes. The merit system can not be undermined by such vicious legislation as the McKellar amendment without weakening the whole personnel structure of the Government.

Too Broad An Outline.

An unofficial committee, headed by President Robert M. Hutchins of the University of Chicago, has been conducting an exhaustive inquiry into "National Policy in International Economic Relations." It concludes that the United States must endeavor to reverse the trend toward economic isolation and do everything in its power to remove impediments to world trade. Otherwise, the report states, "it must be prepared to accept a drastic dislocation and reorganization of industry and agriculture, of capital and labor." Proceeding from this sound assumption, the committee recommends various political and economic measures designed to facilitate a freer interchange of goods and services.

Unlike most official committees of investigation, the present body has neither been hampered by cramping terms of reference nor constrained to evade awkward political issues. Consequently, it has offered a frank and fearless statement which evidently reflects the studied and uncoerced consensus of thoughtful men.

Repeal of the Johnson act, which forbids loans to countries in default, final removal of the war debt shadow, and careful measures "to achieve a more wholesome balance in the international accounts," would all help to relieve international tension and would be in the interests of the United States as well as of the world at large. Certain other recommendations, however, seem much more debatable, not because they lack merit but because they cover a wide and less relevant range of topics.

The economic measures recommended, like the political, are so comprehensive that they can not be made the basis of a program of immediate action with much hope of securing positive results. In addition to their diffuseness, a few of the suggested reforms are highly debatable as to their merits. For example, in urging downward revision of tariffs the committee advocates elimination of all tariffs imposed exclusively for revenue, thereby ignoring the future budgetary needs of the Government.

A more eclectic and more pragmatic approach to a solution of the problems considered by the Hutchins committee would hold out greater hopes of positive accomplishment in the political field. Scholarly and fearless analyses are valuable aids to clear thinking. But they do little good if they appeal only to a select few, and thereby fail to impress the men who make and execute laws and policies. The recommendations lose much of their potential effectiveness because of the endeavor to solve too large a proportion of our problems at one jump.

Note For An Author.

Joseph Hergesheimer, at one time considered a great novelist, expresses himself on the eve of a long vacation at sea as having arrived at that state of mind wherein he hates all novels, his own the most. The obvious comment is that he has been reading some of his unfortunate Palm Beach effusions, and has suddenly been stricken with a rare critical understanding.

At one time Mr. Hergesheimer laboriously wrote some novels that were not as boring as he now says all novels are. "The Three Black Pennys" was an admirable study; even as comparatively recent an effort as "Balisand" was not without solid merits. But the truth is that Mr. Hergesheimer has gone a long distance from his early earnestness. Nor is it stretching honesty to say that, since he turned his talents to depicting fatuous people in futile situations, his novels have struck the nadir of mediocrity.

Yet, because Mr. Hergesheimer is bored with his own work, it does not follow that the art of novel writing has lost its vitality. While he is on his long voyage, contemplating what he imagines are the delights of writing a column, to which overworked profession he now admits an aspiration, he should find much leisure to spend with a good book. It might do him good if, while sprawling in his deck chair, he delved into one by, let us say, Albert Halper, William Rollins, jr., Robert Cantwell, or Jack Conroy. He might also read that recent admirable essay on the writers in the jungle by Mr. Robert Herrick, who was writing novels even before Mr. Hergesheimer.

Then he might rediscover an old truth: that when a novelist has an interest in living things and, writing of them, transcends in style what Hazlitt called the "accredited language of conventional impertinence," he is worth reading. Mr. Hergesheimer is bored with his own books because the life on which they are based is utterly boring. Let him talk a while with the sailors on his ship, instead of with the yachtsmen of his fraudulent Palm Beach; let him watch the stevedores, instead of the tennis and polo players. Then, perhaps, he will find that in the vitality of labor there is nothing that is boring for the intelligent and observant man.

Rosemary?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What short memories reporters have!

On your first page of November 27 they tell of bars and saloons and brawls and murder in this metropolitan district. Not infrequently we read of bootleggers and the large volume of their business, of great illicit distilleries, of Federal enforcement expenditures comparable to those more than two years ago, of the Coast Guard's need of new and faster vessels to deal with the rumrunners. Your leading editorial told us a few days ago of the toll of automobile accidents in the District this year, increased by more than 50 per cent over last year's record. Official reports from other cities tell of increases of drunken driving amounting to some three (Philadelphia), four (Cincinnati), even nearly five (Los Angeles) times. We read of a crime wave. The budget is not balanced. The depression is with us, so we hear.

Surely you remember that two years ago the people voted for repeal; and repeal was guaranteed to do away with all these ills, even with the depression and the deficit, according to Mr. Raskob's radio speech on the eve of election. The mandate was given.

What short memories reporters have!

Or can it be that somebody mislabeled the cartoonists' familiar figure of the hypocrite with his severe face, long coat and baggy umbrella? Could he have been—a wet? CHARLES L. CARHART.

Debts And Debtors.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: While Senator Borah and others are getting all "het up" over the proposition of "housing" the general public, I'm wondering whether they ever have stopped to think that, if the people were given a half-fair chance, they would do these things for themselves?

Despite the fact that our foreign neighbors refuse to pay back the "blood money" loaned to them in their hour of war-stricken need, and that America gave her sons as freely as she did her money, American tourists yearly spend enough money abroad to balance the Federal budget in this country. Therefore, why not put a stop to such practices by politely severing all relationships with such nations which refuse to pay their honest debts?

We might, at the same time, inaugurate a Nation-wide inspection of citizenship papers, letting it be known that all noncitizens must be deported to the country from whence they came.

The United States is overpopulated by at least 25,000,000 souls. If we are to endure every dollar must be kept within the jurisdiction of our Chief Executive, and all outstanding debts collected—regardless.

Our national freedom and liberty was won on the field of battle by our soldiers fighting and dying for it. They were not won by financial experts and pacifists howling for better times in the Halls of Congress. WILLIAM MEYERS.

Washington, Nov. 26.

The Poor Pedestrian.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why were so many "warning" lights removed from our streets? What does the traffic inspector expect pedestrians to do when red light suddenly switches to green, without a moment's warning, and one is caught in the middle of the street?

Conditions in this city are abominable. Although the poor pedestrian is supposed to have the "right of way" when the red light appears, he is harassed and imperiled by autos tearing around the corners and giving him no heed. Why isn't the law enforced? To add to the confusion, certain taxis have a habit of swooping down on everybody on foot, thereby hoping to pick up stray fares.

Wouldn't it be well for politicians to stop stirring the alphabet soup long enough to afford voteless Washingtonians some protection?

"Asking for Time."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To many of us who served as volunteers in the ranks and under fire, in the belief that we were helping to wage a war against war, your editorial, "A Living Issue," is of tremendous encouragement. It is seldom that one reads an editorial so stimulating and thought-provoking.

In 1920 President Roosevelt said: "To the cry of the French at Verdun, 'They shall not pass'! the cheer of our own men in the Argonne, 'We shall go through'! we must add this: It shall not occur again!" And former President Taft also stated in reference to the League of Nations: "I believe that the issue of the League transcends in its importance any domestic issue, and would justify and require one who believes so to ignore party ties and secure this great boon for the world and this country."

The Massachusetts vote, so overwhelmingly in favor of the League, is most impressive. For years we have been told that we by vote rejected the League of Nations. But, if my memory serves me right, 31 prominent Republicans, in 1920, urged the American people to support Mr. Harding as the best means of insuring our entry into the League of Nations.

Certainly there was no clear-cut battle in that year between the League and no League.

In these dark days of armament, international suspicion and actual talk of another war, it might be well for all of us to recall the words of Mirabeau, "Beware of asking for time. Disaster never gives it."

Purely Philatelic.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This is a word of commendation to you for your good judgment in continuing to publish the fine stamp department edited by William M. Stuart. This department is as fine as any appearing in any other newspaper.

The fact that Mr. Stuart has been chosen as the Washington representative of this organization, the only organization of philatelic writers in existence, shows our opinion of the value of his work.

May you keep Mr. Stuart on your staff for many years to come! He is making The Post a reliable source of Washington stamp news.

Esperanto.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A distinguished American Esperantist, Martha Root, reports a dramatic incident at the recent Universal Esperanto Congress in Stockholm, held in the parliament house by invitation of the Swedish government.

Gen. Louis Bastien, of France, after paying tribute to the leaders of the Esperanto movement, said: "Let us not forget the other man to whom we owe so much—one always speaks of the great man, but so many Esperantists work unceasingly for one world language in cities and towns, whose names even one does not know—those whom one does not meet in congresses because they have not the means to travel. Let us salute the unknown Esperantist." The whole audience arose and applauded.

Here in Washington Esperanto has enriched the life of the community largely through the efforts of the "unknown Esperantist." For unlike any other international language project Esperanto has a soul and arouses devotion in those who give it serious study, so that they earnestly labor to bring it to the attention of others in the hope that through the increase of good understanding and friendship the world may be made a better place to live in.

All honor then to the "unknown Esperantists" through whose efforts during two years past free classes have been conducted for all who desired to attend and share in this world movement.

H. B. HASTINGS.

Cooperation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with great interest the article of Dr. Taraknath Das, of the Department of Politics of the Catholic University of America, published in your issue of November 18, with regard to Indian market for American goods.

Dr. Das deals with some vital problems to which the attention of all forward-looking American business men should be called. I have been connected with the steel industry in Pittsburgh for many years, and I am firmly of the opinion that close cooperation between the business and financial interests of America and India will be of mutual benefit.

I wish to thank Dr. Das and The Washington Post for bringing these matters before the public.

PRAFULLA C. MUKERJI.

Has Sail Passed?

Are there to be no more sailing vessels save yachts? The full-rigged ship, the barque and the brig have all but disappeared from the ocean; and even the schooner, once familar along all our shores, survives but occasionally. Perhaps it is inevitable that steam or motor should supplant sail, if only for commercial reasons. The steamship has its own type of beauty, but "the magic and mystery of the sea" belong to the older days. The question remains whether real seamanship can be taught in any ship mechanically propelled.

For a long time the officers of the merchant marine have had their early training in windjammers. Now the British Shipping Federation argues that they can not longer be so instructed because the number of sailing ships has become almost negligible. The proposal to reintroduce sail to the British navy has been abandoned; the senior officers, we are told, do not believe in it. The American Navy still has a few antiquated training ships of the sort, but they, too, are apparently bound to disappear. Perhaps in time the only real sailors left will be yachtsmen.

Yet sail still has an appeal that steam can not have. May not this encourage the hope that it can not vanish from the horizon?

Henri Goes Shopping.

Post Office, Wednesday.

"THOSE of your American institutions which most amaze me," said our French friend, "are your——"

"Is there," he asked "such a word as 'dr-rug store'?"

We assured him there was.

"Hum," said our French friend. He said it, "Hum," together with most of what followed, in his native tongue. "Yes, I have conceived the loftiest admiration for American dr-rug stores. They seem to me the most remarkable of your national monuments."

This is our French friend, Henri, who is making his first visit to the United States. He is a timid being, but the soul of politeness. We felt that he indeed paid our drug store employes a compliment when he added:

"The pretty young girls and the bright young men who work in those shops: I find them of a courtesy altogether disarming."

He explained:

"Yesterday I started out to make a small purchase. Not 50 meters from my hotel, I inquire of a policeman:

"'Will you have the goodness to direct me to a dr-rug store?'

"He says: 'There's one right before your lamps.'

"And he points to a place at the corner.

"I enter.

"A splendid emporium! But splendid! Our French pharmacies are seldom spacious, whereas this was of a spaciousness superb. And the wares displayed: they were of a variety baffling.

"A little lady in a chic uniform inquired would I not like to buy a book.

"Now, my friend, I had not just then in mind the purchase of a book. But I am soon to return home. I wish, naturally, to take with me a few little gifts for my family and friends. And here was a mountain of books: well printed, well bound. Not a few translations from my own language. True, these were scarcely adapted for the young person. Yet there were plenty of others, all at a price ridiculous, many well suited for my younger son, Pierre, who is learning the English.

"In fine, I bought a book.

"Not, however, seeing any tokens of what I really sought, I left this dr-rug store, seeking another. There was one almost next door, so like the first that I felt I must have walked backwards.

"And here a young lady as charming as her predecessor inquired whether I did not want a coffee-pot.

"A coffee-pot I did not want. But these coffee-pots were irresistible. One need only prepare the coffee, attach a wire to a hole in the wall—and wait. Such modern comfort at a cost wholly trifling, it would delight my wife.

"Certainly I bought a coffee-pot.

"Not seeing here, nevertheless, what I had set out for, I walked to the next replica of the first dr-rug store, on the next corner. Did I want an alarm-clock? My friend, these were of a handsomeness one does not encounter in France, where we still regard alarm-clocks only from the utilitarian point of view. And my elder son's wife—Jean's Jeanne—she oversleeps.

"I bought Jeanne an alarm-clock.

"Of course, I had yet to find what I had wanted. But at the neighboring dr-rug store I discovered a truly beautiful doll for my dear niece Lulu . . .

"Never, I assure you, have I seen a better collection of photograph-frames at bargain-sums than that from which, at a fifth dr-rug store—across the street—I was sold a souvenir for my mother-in-law. In the dr-rug store a block farther downtown, I procured, for my brother, Francois, an amusing ash-tray containing a picture, very life-like, of the Washington Monument—though, I regret to say, the present scaffolding was omitted. In the seventh dr-rug store I was persuaded to accept, at a small price, a prettily decorated box of your American chewing-gum for my godchild.

"I was carrying now something of a load. I was a trifle fatigued. Very well, O. K.: at the following dr-rug store a polite young man in white persuaded me to a glass of your ice-cream soda. If you will pardon me, I found that I do not greatly care for your ice-cream soda—but I could here also procure a luncheon that was at least sustaining. And I ate.

"That is all, my friend. But ought it to be all? It is wonderful. But, even from this lavishness is there not a little something lacking?

"At your dr-rug stores I have bought a book, a coffee-pot, an alarm-clock, a doll, an ash-tray, gum that one can chew, but not eat—food and drink, also. Everything, it would seem, except a suit of clothes and a pair of boots.

"Yet not quite everything. I started my tour of your dr-rug stores with a headache and a doctor's prescription to cure it. And I still have both.

"My friend, will you please tell me where I can find a dr-rug-store that will fill this prescription?"

Debtless Birthplace of Gallatin, Free Trader, Finds Exports Have Greatly Declined.

By J. C. Rucca.

IT would be a fortunate coincidence if the monument to Albert Gallatin could be dedicated during the next few months in front of the Treasury, as has been suggested, and if at the same time the Department of State should conclude its present negotiations for a commercial agreement with Switzerland. For Albert Gallatin, most prominent American of Swiss origin, was a free-trade advocate, and in 1815 he negotiated a commercial convention with Great Britain, in which all discriminating duties were abolished.

As Secretary of the Treasury from 1801 to 1813, Gallatin tried to reduce the public debt. Today, Switzerland shares with Netherlands and Sweden, the enviable position of having practically no external debts. The last American loan, payable in 1934, has been nearly all paid.

The useful part played by the Swiss delegation, headed by Mr. Motta, is the last assembly of the League of Nations, demonstrates the force and prestige which that small country has in international politics. And in the last few days, the policy of Switzerland, as a member of the European gold bloc, attracted the attention of the world's great financial centers. It may be of interest to analyze her present situation.

The population of Switzerland was estimated at 4,115,000 at the end of 1932, about equal to that of Massachusetts, and settled in an area twice as great. German is the language of 71 per cent of the people, French of 21 per cent, Italian of 6 per cent and Romansch of 1 per cent. Switzerland's most striking contribution to civilization has been her demonstration that communities speaking a different language can live harmoniously together in a federal union, even during a world war in which all surrounding states participated. In March, 1934, a bill, drawn up by the federal government for the protection of public order and intended to give more power to the federal authorities, was rejected by popular referendum, since it was considered an attempt to restrict Cantonal sovereignty and local autonomy.

• • • •

THE main feature of the Swiss government is the stability provided by the constitution. The executive power rests with the federal council composed of seven members elected by Parliament for three years. They are customarily reelected at the end of their term of office. If a measure introduced by the Swiss executive is rejected by Parliament, no political crisis results. The executive, not being dependent for its existence on majority support in Parliament, does not experience the troubles occasioned by political patronage.

For the first time in Swiss history, one of the 22 confederated cantons, Geneva, is now under Socialist rule, while, on the other hand, in some of the German cantons there has recently developed a Nazi movement. But the Radical-Democratic Party in power since 1848, with the support of the farmers, is far from any political extreme. Dr. Marcel Pilet-Golatz, the incumbent president for one year, comes from the conservative canton of Waadt. He recently stated that Switzerland had maintained democracy during six centuries, and that no form of government challenging the principle of political freedom could endure in his country. The army is very popular in Switzerland, and a special credit of 25,000,000 francs for its equipment was approved last year even by the Socialist Party.

As a result of the economic depression, the heavy industries, the hotels, the watchmakers and the farmers are all appealing to the government for help. In recent years subventions were granted to corn-growers, to dairy farmers, to cattle breeders and to overindebted small landowners. After the development in 1875 of a process for the manufacture of milk chocolate by a Swiss named Peter, that industry attained a position of preeminence in a short period of time.

But Great Britain and the United States, formerly Switzerland's best customers, are now protecting their domestic chocolate industry and the exports of Swiss chocolate have fallen in value from 28,000,000 francs in 1929 to 2,000,000 francs in 1933.

• • • •

SWITZERLAND is the largest exporting nation of the world with respect to watches. In marked contrast to the American industry, where manufacture is almost entirely for domestic demand, the industry in Switzerland is dependent upon its export trade. As a result of the Hawley-Smoot tariff Swiss watches sold to the United States declined from a value of over $13,000,000 in 1929 to a mere $1,600,000 in 1933.

Similar decreases are noticeable in the export of silk, embroidery and machinery, notwithstanding the government subsidies. However, the production of electrical energy rose in 1933 to a record high level of 3,870,000,000 kilowatt hours. In order to protect the small retailers, in October, 1933, the Swiss government prohibited the extension of existing, or the opening of new, department or chain stores.

Though not a manufacturing industry, the hotel business in Switzerland may be considered one of the great producers of national wealth. There are nearly 8,000 hotels and it is estimated that in 1933 more than 2,000,000 tourists visited the country. The money spent only by American tourists was estimated in 1933 at $2,270,000 and before the depression it reached $15,000,000 yearly. The recent decision of Swiss hotelkeepers to reduce their rates by accepting pounds from British tourists this winter at rates cheaper than the market rate, appears to be a gesture to increase business at the expense of French or German hotels.

SINCE February, 1932, Switzerland has introduced import quotas by setting definite limits on the import of certain articles which could compete with national products. As the amounts of the quotas are not made public by the government and as the articles of import as well as the countries subject to the limitation can be varied from time to time by the federal council, the quota system is defended on the ground that it enables the government to negotiate more easily with other countries. Recently, Secretary of State Cordell Hull sharply criticized this system.

In announcing imminent commercial negotiations with Switzerland, the Department of State declared that: "Trade in both directions between Switzerland and the United States has fallen sharply in the last few years. Domestic exports to Switzerland in 1929 were valued at $12,251,319, but in 1933 they were valued at only $7,137,937. Our imports from Switzerland in that period declined even more. From a value of $48,350,203 in 1929 they decreased to $14,550,933 in 1933." Declines in the value of United States exports to Switzerland from 1929 to 1933 were shown in automobile passenger cars, in raw cotton, in rubber tire casings and in typewriters.

As the London Economist remarks, "Switzerland is in a stronger position than other countries of the gold bloc, but her intimate connection with Germany may prove to be the heel of Achilles."

In the past 20 years foreign deposits sought in the Swiss banks a harbor of safety, but as the large sums of liquid capital available exceeded the needs of this small country, the banks have provided considerable amounts for the capital-starved states of central Europe, especially Germany.

WHEN foreign currencies depreciated, and when, as a result of foreign exchange restrictions and moratoriums, most of the credits become frozen, the government had to come to the rescue of important banks which had gotten into difficulties. A new institute was created to promote financial reconstruction, and a law is now being discussed, intended to prevent excessive export of capital and providing for a certain control of the banks and for fixed relations between their capital and their borrowed funds.

The last "economic survey" of the League of Nations says, "Faced with the risks of currency depreciation and with the general economic uncertainty of recent years, in many countries, the owners of capital have preferred to hoard their wealth, either in gold or in bank deposits, rather than place it in investments." The only new issues which have met with a ready response from the investing public have been government loans, and in Switzerland the proportion of the government loans to the total new long-term public issues, which was 5 per cent in 1929, rose to 60 per cent in 1933.

However, the general financial situation of Switzerland is remarkably sound, and if the Swiss currency has remained more stable than many other currencies, this fact is due to the size of the gold reserve: $386,000,000 at the end of 1933, or 160 per cent of the banknote circulation, while the legal ratio is 40 per cent.

Friendship.

POLITICAL friendships are the most difficult thing in the world to understand, if they are not impossible. There is now the question of Senator Norris. The assumption has been that he and Mr. Roosevelt are just like that.

BARGERON

After all, it was he who first uttered the cry that what the country needed was "another Roosevelt" which did the President no harm at all; which, as a matter of fact, made him a serious contender for the office back there in 1932. Then, subsequently, Mr. Roosevelt, as if to show his appreciation, effectuated the greatest of Norris' dreams, the Muscle Shoals project. In all of this turmoil that is the New Deal it was assumed that the Senator and Mr. Roosevelt were two hearts that beat as one. Liberalism, as opposed to the old order was what they personified. Together they would tread the path toward the more abundant life.

• • • •

It seems that for years Norris has been for the more abundant life, but that he was all alone. For years and years he was trying to give us this, but we were stuffed with the full dinner pail and would have none of the more abundant life that he offered. About the time, one imagines, when he was ready to give up, when he was just about to come to the conclusion that we were the damndest people imaginable, we decided, with the aid of Mr. Roosevelt and the depression, that we would take some of this very abundant life the Senator had been talking about.

It was really Mr. Roosevelt, though, and not the people, who rescued the Senator in his more abundant life despair. The Senator alone would have never been able to sell it to us. It was a case of a man having an invention and another one coming along and marketing it for him. Naturally, you would think that a thing making two men rich, politically speaking, as this more abundant life proposition did, would cause them to have much in common and be as thick as fleas.

• • • •

But apparently this is not the case. As so often is it with kindred spirits or spirits of kin, the Senator seems to have it in for Mr. Roosevelt. He seems not to wish him success at all.

The reason we say this is the Senator's statement when he returned to the Nation's Capital. On one matter he spoke quite directly, and understandingly so, against Mr. Roosevelt himself. That was about the Administration's trying to defeat Senator Cutting in New Mexico. This is understandable and in making the statement he did, the Senator was on safe and sound grounds.

But after getting this grievance off his chest he directed an attack on Postmaster General Farley. The business of his holding two jobs, he said, was intolerable.

• • • •

Now if there is one very definite thing about politics which we laymen are coming to know, it is that it is a very old rule for the opposition to go after the men whom the President has set up around him, with a view subsequently to getting at the President himself.

Just why it is necessary for the politicians to go about things in this indirect way is something we laymen do not understand, but we do know that it is the invariable practice.

Manifestly, Senator Norris knows, having been in politics as long as he has, that any fight directed upon Farley has for its purpose the ultimate prize of the President. Furthermore, he knows that the President knows all this and that he will keep Farley in just as long as he continues to draw the fire and diverts it from the President, himself.

And it is a fact, of course, that should they finally get Farley they will be that much nearer to the President. They will have torn away that much protective covering. Why should the Senator be a party to such procedure as this? It is possible that he and Mr. Roosevelt are not friends after all. It is not a case, as he would have us think, that he loves Mr. Roosevelt but dislikes Mr. Farley. They are inseparable. There can be no splitting of them. Mr. Roosevelt keeps Mr. Farley in his job.

No End of Books

Modern Art in All Forms—Attacked, Defended, Explained and Illustrated.

By Theodore Hall.

FEW spectacles are more fun to watch, in the book world, than a good, rousing fight among the experts—especially in the battle-torn field of modern art.

To the rostrum comes John Hemming Fry, a wealthy Indiana gentleman, who lives half the year on the Riviera in a villa once owned by the architect of the Paris Opera House, a painter and a patron of art, now a corresponding member of the Institute of France—the highest honor which the French have for an alien.

Mr. Fry is exceedingly annoyed by democracy, by big business, by modern skyscrapers and machine art, and by modern painting. In a very hot-tempered book—"The Revolt Against Beauty" (Putnam, $2.50)—he lumps them all together as works of the devil, as evidence of the world's degradation in artistic taste. Beauty, he says, is a positive, yea-saying, constructive thing, conforming "to the laws of nature."

And modern forms of art are destructive and nay-saying, he finds. As for modern painting—"It is amazing that the work of the mental derelicts of modernistic art should be taken seriously. Certainly, no man or woman of normal mental health would be attracted by the sadistic, obscene deformations in the paintings of Cezanne, Modigliani, Matisse, Gauguin, and other 'Fauves.'"

Now there is considerable point in many things which Mr. Fry has to say. But they're swallowed up in the violence, self-assertiveness and ill-argument of the whole.

What is amusing is the fact that this devotee of the Institute and Academie des Beaux-Arts, both epitomes of respectability, is now assailing a movement which is art's sacred cow of our time—impressionism and functionalism.

• • • •

The machine side of that movement can find no better witness than Geoffrey Holme's "Industrial Design and the Future" (The Studio, $7.50).

In the text this editor of the London Studio for 15 years very sensibly presents the problems of artistic machine output. Behind them stands "the desire for improvement in the things we use and in the conditions under which we live." He puts the responsibility for ugly machine products squarely up to the manufacturer; the public has to buy by purse, not by taste. Yet he knows that handsome goods sell better than ugly.

Mr. Holme's solution—backed by a most interesting questionnaire with answers from leading designers—is that industry and designers must understand each other better and both attempt to find out what the public really wants. He has great faith in the public's taste.

The last half of the book is a collection of photographs, in The Studio's best style, of all manner of machine products from cold-cream jars to gas pumps, from printing to modern interiors. Here a metal tea pot looks as luscious as a ripe plum. But certain errors of thinking in modern art come out more clearly than in the text, of which more later. Meanwhile, here is a rich and pleasing volume for all who are interested in industrial design—especially, it would seem, for those interested professionally.

Tackling the non-admirers of modern painting on their most vocal opinion, Edward F. Rothschild gives up a valuable little brochure—"The Meaning of Unintelligibility in Modern Art" (U. of Chicago Press, $1.50).

Much of it is more metaphysical than pursuasive, but a notable air of tolerance runs through it, and a plea for intellectual curiosity in this complex age. The painters, he urges, do have something to give us from their apparently odd performances. A fine spirit, that—let me say again. But when Mr. Rothschild boils down, he has this singularly unsatisfactory conclusion—"'Unintelligibility' is of the very essence of 'meaning' in modern art . . . (since) we live in an age of unintelligibility, as every age must be that is so largely characterized by conflict, maladjustment, and heterogeneity."

After such an argument, it is rather hard to avoid thinking that much of modern art, as Henry Seidel Canby said recently of Gertrude Stein's less playful work, is perilously close to "an insult to civilization."

• • • •

The above booklet, printed on fine paper, holds a number of excellent reproductions of paintings by Picasso, Klee, Leger, Picabia, etc.

Not so well printed, but more numerous and wide-ranging, are the reproductions in "Art Masterpieces of the 1934 World's Fair Exhibition" (Sterling North, Chicago, 75 cents). C. J. Bulliet, of the Chicago Daily News, writes pleasant little notes on each of the 50 paintings.

• • • •

"Art in America in Modern Times" (Reynal & Hitchcock, $1.50) is—let alone the price—an amazingly fine collection of 150 half tones and 8 full-color plates illustrating painting, sculpture, architecture, industrial design, decorating, photography, the stage and the motion picture, from the Civil War down to the present.

The text, sparing and compressed, is written by a number of various experts. Holger Cahill and Alfred H. Barr jr., the editors, have gathered a book which ought to find a place on many a shelf not now art conscious. The volume appears in conjunction with a nation-wide series of broadcasts on Saturday evenings this winter, sponsored by the American Federation of Arts and a large number of related institutions. Adult education has seldom been made so attractive.

• • • •

But to look into such books is only the beginning. For you will be confronted on right and left with both valid words and outrageous tub-thumping, leaving you to choose between them and to make art, in the last analysis, wholly self-revealing and personal.

Maryland Officials Will Assume Duties

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—A group of officials, including five members of the Board of Commissioners for Washington County and the sheriff, elected at the recent election, will take office within the next week.

Sheriff-elect Max Malott has announced the following appointments to his staff: Allen D. Middlekeuff, in charge of the office, and Guy Beckley and James E. Bryan, as riding deputies, while Worthington P. Wachter was named attorney.

Opera Synopses

By Wm. Lyon Phelps

AN exceedingly useful and handy volume has just appeared called "Opera Synopses," a new edition.

As the beginning of winter is the beginning of the opera season, this book comes in the most opportune moment. It is by J. Walker McSpadden with an introduction by John Tasker Howard, the authority on American music and the biographer of Stephen C. Foster.

• • • •

This volume contains about 500 pages, and the plot of every opera is condensed in admirable fashion. Going to the opera and going to the theater must be prepared for in exactly opposite ways. When you go to a new play, if you wish to get the highest possible enjoyment out of it, you must not read it in advance, you must not have even the slightest familiarity with its plot or characters. The pleasure very largely consists in preparatory ignorance, so that when the curtain rises, you have no idea what will happen; and can then watch the development of the story and of the persons.

Precisely the opposite method must be pursued with opera. It would be of the greatest advantage if one could know the entire libretto by heart. It is the music—both orchestral and vocal—that we love to hear; and if we know what it is they are saying to each other on the stage, the opera becomes far more interesting. Many people think they are bored by grand opera, simply because they don't know what it is all about.

• • • •

Now a volume like this gives you the necessary information about every important opera that has ever been written, with a digest of every single act, a brief life of the composer, and all other desirable knowledge.

The work is divided into German Opera, Italian, French, Russian, English, American. Then follow chapters on Light Opera, where Sir Arthur Sullivan naturally has the most space.

The book is brought up to date by including the operas of Deems Taylor and also "The Merry Mount."

Delaware Holly Business Slumps

Wreath Sales Are Reported Lowest in Years.

Seaford, Del., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Unless orders for holly wreaths increase materially within the next week, southern Delaware dealers report indications point to a poor season this Christmas.

In previous years, the dealers report, at this time they are besieged with holly wreath orders, and by the first week in December are shipping thousands of wreaths to western markets for the holiday season.

The dealers report holly being more plentiful this season than for the past several seasons.

Britain Is Reviving By Some New Dealism

Roosevelt Query, "Did England Let Nature Take Its Course?" Is Examined.

By Elliott Thurston.

IN a simply, interestingly-written little book, "The British Way to Recovery," published by the University of Minnesota Press, Herbert Heaton, Professor of economic history, clears away much of the fog besetting that much-debated question posed by President Roosevelt, "Did England let nature take its course?" The answer can hardly be an unqualified "No." For there is no very close comparability, and the British long since effected reforms which now complicate American recovery.

However, Prof. Heaton, a Yorkshireman by birth, who was educated at Leeds and Birmingham, examines the scene from the standpoint of the three R's, relief, reform and recovery—to which he wisely adds a future fourth, namely, retribution—and demonstrates that while some political remedies attempted on this side of the sea were not available to or needed by the British, "much of the New Deal was part of Britain's Old Deal."

As he notes, Britain could not heavily increase her debt because "her resources were already mortgaged to the hilt by a dead-weight debt, the cost of past wars." She could not try large, rapid price-raising, as that would hurt her exports, raise the cost of living, flood the country with demands for higher wages. She could not hope to revive by restoring her relatively limited agriculture.

Yet, if restricted in remedies, Britain, as he emphasizes, had a simpler problem than ours because she had already done so much that the New Deal is now attempting. A century ago she had begun a ban on child labor, now universal in her industrial-commercial life. For a century she had been limiting hours of labor and eliminating sweat shops. She did not have to help labor win "the right of collective bargaining, for the unions had slowly won that for themselves," until by 1928 nearly three-fourths of her labor worked "under conditions determined largely by collective bargaining." Britain not only had no "big labor problem" to face in 1931 but she did not have to improvise hurriedly schemes for large-scale relief. Nearly all of her workers were already covered by unemployment as well as health insurance.

"IN spite of the defects and departures," Prof. Heaton comments, "no political party or economic class wants the system abolished. It has been worth its cost and has probably been cheaper and more efficiently managed than any relief scheme." And this is worthy of note amid what might be called the Borah-ges against our squandering of relief money.

As for aid and reform of the business and credit structure, Britain regulated note issue after the panic of 1825. The note issue was made "a Bank of England monopoly." By 1919, 85 per cent of British deposits were in five big banks with branches scattered through the country, and "they were competently and cautiously managed." Britain has had "no serious banking panic since 1867 and scarcely any large bank failure during the last 40 years." She long since reformed and regulated her capital markets.

As for a brain trust, Prof. Heaton cites that Britain "had steadily been building up a brain trust over a period of at least 80 years," in her legislature (politics being an honorable career in Britain), in the civil service (divorced from Mr. Farley's ideas of a spoils system), and in royal commissions, drawn from the ablest scholars and leaders in the business world.

Then, too, the British had the simplifying factors of one national legislature, without 48 additional regional ones, and they had an unwritten constitution! "Whatever Parliament decided should be law became law," remarks Prof. Heaton, "and no court could tell the lawmakers they had exceeded their powers." Among other things, he notes, this saved much breath expended on debates over constitutionality.

• • • •

WHILE the British had sectional interests, they did not have blocs of veterans, silverites or agrarians. Nor did they have "lingering faith in any doctrine of economic individualism or in the sanctity of inalienable natural rights where economic matters were concerned." Laissez faire went out in England in the nineteenth century.

However, Prof. Heaton, while citing the differences in the economic problem, makes plain that Britain did not let nature take its course by any means. She embarked after the war on a "decade of rationalization." While railroads were turned back to private operation, the coal mines act of 1930 provided drastic reformation, fixed quotas, permitted combinations. Yet the fact "that free enterprise was to be limited no longer scared the planners." If this and other industrial reforms smacked of NRA, so the British Central Electricity Board savored of TVA.

Drained of gold, the British were forced off, while we elected to step off, the gold standard. By then the British budget had long since been very sick. Then began the heroic budget-balancing, which make our taxes, to say nothing of our policy, seem vastly in contrast. At the same time the British embarked on a policy of cheap, abundant credit; lending abroad was curbed; the bank rate was cut from a high of 6 to a still continuing 2 per cent. The Bank of England bought securities heavily as our reserve system did, piling up what we call excess reserves. There, as here, "borrowers were not forthcoming," for "the business world was too prostrate or too nervous to use the available credit." Bank loans continued to decline there, as here.

AS for the AAA, the British gave bounties to farmers, and went in for controlled marketing much as we have done. Free trade died of "economic factitis," according to Prof. Heaton. The British managed their pound as we now seem to be trying to manage our dollar. Yet there are similarities, rather than parallels. And one can not trace, in brief space, the whole panorama covered by Prof. Heaton. He surveys also the Australian and Canadian scene.

In substance, if resort abroad to similar if not the same means as the New Deal has tried in many instances can be called a justification, then there is much to vindicate the New Deal. Yet one can not escape the fact that British recovery, such as it has been, precarious as it remains, was accompanied by greater monetary and budgetary orthodox than has been practiced on this side. Doubtless that has been easier for the Nationalist government than for the New Deal.

And, as Prof. Heaton adds, the historian may yet have to record that "the political obsession with economic defense and self-sufficiency" led to "suicide whilst of unsound mind."

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

(In which a nervous business man tries to keep in touch with the President's trend by telephone.)

"Hello. How's the President leaning now?"

"He just moved a little."

"Which way?"

"To the left, I think."

"How far?"

"Just a minute while I measure . . . . Wait! . . . Hold on!"

"What happened then?"

"He moved back a little to the right."

"As much to the right as he had moved to the left?"

"Just about."

"Well, watch him closely and call me up if he moves again."

• • • •

"Hello."

"Yes. Hello."

"The President has just received Prof. Tugwell."

"Is that a move to the left?"

"By all means. I understand he will receive Henry Ford this afternoon."

"What direction will that swing him?"

"To the right."

"Who's he receiving tomorrow?"

"Al Smith."

"What direction is that?"

"Neither. It'll just be waltz."

• • • •

"Hello! Hello! Anything new?"

"Yes, Mr. Roosevelt came to work just now in a dinner jacket."

"That's a distinct move to the right, isn't it?"

"I might think so, except that he has on a soft shirt and tan shoes."

"Dinner jacket with tan shoes! What do you make of it?"

"I think he's at dead center again."

• • • •

"Hello! What now?"

"The President is eating a raw apple."

"How does that swing him?"

"Well, Hoover always had his baked. . . . Oh, I say!"

"What now?"

"He's peeling it with a knife!"

"That's a definite swing to the left, isn't it?"

"Yes. Shall I call you again later?"

Maryland Club Gardens Opens New Ballroom

George Mason Hotel Ready for Tonight's Show; Habana Premiere.

By Kay Ware.

Maryland Club Gardens introduces a completed ballroom tonight. It's big, and silver, stars twinkle in the sky, figures move against the back wall, there's room to dance, and fine music. Show includes Bryan McDonald, M. C.; Helen Wright, blues singer, Joan Miller, fan dancer, and the French dance team, Janis and Jeanet.

The entrance hall and crystal bar are finished. As you go in, you have an impression of silver green walls, deep red divans, then the crystal bar with its staggered front, mirrored back, marble winged figure and fountain invite you to lean and sip.

Alexandria leads off with the opening of the George Mason Hotel tonight. Town dignitaries and Washington socialites are expected to attend.

Features include Helen Ault, radio and stage star, who, in addition to her solos, will lead community singing of "Carry Me Back to Ol' Virginny;" Johnny Salb, pianist; Susan Hall and Walter Doe, local dance team; Joseph Bruno, barytone, and Eleanor Hulbert, his accompanist; Virginia Hunter and her High Hatters in a musical comedy number; Estelle Hunt Dean, soprano, and Brooke Johns. Surprise acts by local talent and George Gaul's music complete the bill.

Club Habana opens tonight, too. What with basketweave walls, indirect lights in large flower pots, palm trees hitting the ceiling, stars that twinkle and clouds that float in the sky, you'll think you're at least in Havana. Be sure to take a good look at the murals.

Show: Red-headed Jolly, singer; Lou Frank, straight from Ted Black's Orchestra, with more songs; Ralph (Nagasaki) Hawkins; Billy Howard and Charlie Frankhouser, those arrangers; Pianist Sammy Marks, Tony Alonge and Frankie Flannigan. All topped by Moe Baer, leader.

Dinner at eight. On and on until dawn.

If you've rhythm in your feet and a bend in your knees, drop out to the Shoreham's lounge some afternoon to dip and glide to La Costa's Tango Orchestra. If you don't know the tango get some sophisticated friend to teach you, and you'll be off the waltz and fox trot for life.

Tiny, with piano, sings and lifts eyebrows over delicate meanings in his songs.

Show in ballroom: Carmencita and Rigo, from last week, offer Spanish gypsy dances and tangoes. Horton Spurr, eccentric comedian, is a highlight. Ewen Hail, tenor, has a way with his songs. Betty Lukens does a waltz, soft shoe, high kick and rhythm tap numbers.

Up at the Mayflower they flavor their liqueurs with gold leaf. At least, that's what they say. Flakes of gold float around in a white liquid; it's called "eau de vie de Dantzig" because it's the national drink of that locality.

By the way, Teddy, the headwaiter, knows what's comforting after too much Thanksgiving dinner. Or, just the right liqueur to finish off the proper amount.

Heigh-Ho's news: The Cansinos are coming back, starting Friday. They're a dance team with tangoes, musical comedy dances and so on. Their last engagement continued six weeks. Wait and see how long they'll be here this time.

Archie Hawk is setting a record. This is his fourth week.

Extra big Thanksgiving dinner in the tap room and plans for festivities upsairs tonight and tomorrow.

More Spanish. Appropriately enough, at the Madrillon. Maia Duncan, Isadore's niece, and her partner, Waldo de Castro, put on a dance-story. It pictures old Spain, sequestered senoritas, stern duennas, ardent Dons, and winds up with the duennas's approach—too late for efficient chaperonage. This team does a modern jazz interpretation, slow blues rhythm.

Julie Gilbert goes gypsy in a flamenca and a folk dance that originated with tribes living in caves near Granada.

Social list: Dr. Charles L. Lopez, Col. and Mrs. R. S. Bamberger, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B nner, of Philadelphia; Senor de Montes de Oca, Delagado wine representative with Dave Berger, busy wine salesman.

Same show at Club Michel: Frank McCormick, master of ceremonies, and dancing partner, Ruth Kidd; Esther and Hazelton, dance team, with "Dance of the Indian Lovers;" Payron and Parks, sister team, with "Harlemania;" Vera Volkner, exotic Russian dancer; Gene Dolova, ballet toe dancer, seen recently with the Fokine Ballet.

Club Chantecler had its formal opening Monday. New decorations insure your comfort. John Shevlin, radio star, sings, and Senor Don Gomez plays the organ.

Congratulatory telegrams poured in, and signatures included Jack Benny, Vaughn de Leath, Cross and Dunn, J. Harold Murray, Bert Wheeler and many others.

Lotus continues with the New York Revue, with the addition of a new dance team, Weldon and Honey, from the Coconut Grove, in Boston. Beverly and Ravel stay on this week. Al Norton, master of ceremonies, is as funny as ever. Bill Strickland, Judy Ellington and Capitolians fill out the revue.

Kitty Wagner, leading dancer at La Paree, is the image of Jean Harlow. She's not just another platinum blonde, but resembles the movie star so closely that she is often mistaken for Jean. Kitty has won many movie double contests because of the likeness, and at the Variety Club festivities people stared, and had to be told who she really was.

She's leading the Jungle number in the Winter Garden Revue. Next week she'll do a society waltz with her partner, William Behney.

Cotton Club has a new show, to fit in with the enlargements and redecorations. Particularly good are the "Honeysuckle Rose" number and the Three Brown Jacks from New York. Other numbers include Vivian Bader's "Out in the Rain," and a tap novelty dancer.

The Ross Claridge Cafe is a new place and a good one to try today. Specialty: the hot breads, made in the kitchen and served through every course that requires it. Thanksgiving dinner from soup to pumpkin pie.

Club Troika has a floor show that would not be out of place in Carnegie Hall. An opera singer, who soars up above high C with incredible ease, a violinist with exceptionally good technique, and a way of putting it over; a Russian dancer, who is amazingly fast and agile; a master of ceremonies whose very voice carries excitement, and a list of special acts keep the audience interested all the time.

Russians can put more fervor and intensity into five minutes of performing than most people can cram into an hour. You'll gasp with the dancer and his sword, sigh with Mike and his fiddle, or Matt Windsor and his accordion, roar with laughter at the master of ceremonies and his big, red, artificial nose, and so on.

But best of all, you'll beam with the chef at the Thanksgiving turkey. Alex Schlein is an artist in his line, and his turkeys are masterpieces of culinary endeavor.

Col. Joe Wubbold, who plays the drums at Casa Rita, estimated his "thumps" at 5,000,000 during the last four years. Came to Washington to study law, but prefers drums to bars . . . contributes to travel publications, and has a collection of unpublished articles in preparation . . . is an ardent fisherman, and hopes to retire to his farm on the seacoast some day, so he can be a gentleman farmer.

Traveled all over south and east, but had never come so far north before.

Paroled Convict Attempts to Bomb Governor's Home

Carson City, Nev., Nov. 27 (AP). An unexplained attempt of a paroled convict to bomb the Governor's mansion at Carson City last Friday night was disclosed here today by Sheriff Joseph Stern and State Prison Warden Matt L. Penrose.

The disclosure was made after Dave Drawbridge, the convict, had been returned to the State Penitentiary.

A mysterious explosion rocked Nevada's small capital city about 8:30 o'clock Friday night, but police were unable to explain it or to determine where it had occurred.

Forest Supervisor H. I. Snider said Drawbridge told him he tried to make a bomb, "but it did nothing but make a lot of noise."

Only a maid was in the Governor's mansion at the time of the blast, which occurred in a vent of the mansion foundation near the front steps. The damaged vent and a piece of galvanized pipe were found by Sheriff Stern today.

The maid said the explosion shook the mansion, but she thought it was a boiler explosion in a nearby house.

Acting Governor and Mrs. Morley Griswold were not occupying the home at the time.

Drawbridge would give the authorities no reason for his act.

Daniels Tells Of Innovations At Club Habana

Ingenuity of Artist is Seen in Unusual Decorative Touches.

Clarke Daniels, of Daniels, Daniels & Daniels, architects, is a bright-eyed young man, who wears a trim little goatee and paints portraits. He helped his brothers design and supervise the building of Club Habana because he enjoyed it, including hunting in junk shops for Spanish grills and chopping down trees to transform into palms.

Between climbing stepladders, and painting murals he paused long enough to explain that Club Habana will be a combination of vistas looking out to sea, clouds floating across the ceiling, flowerpots with lights in them, and perhaps—scents of mimosa floating through the air.

The mimosa is a problem. "See those heaters?" Mr. Daniels asked. "There are four of them in the room. I thought it would be a fine idea to waft a little perfume across them every 15 minutes or so. I don't know whether or not it will work; if it does, it ought to be lovely, a delicate floral odor floating into the patio.

Grill Obtained at Bargain.

"Maybe I'll build bird houses over the heaters. Personally, I don't object to them; they're useful, but maybe the bird houses would please the public better."

"Oh, the grill?" He indicated a scrolled iron strip over which a workman was bending. "That goes up over the bar. I picked it up in a junk shop for $4. He had appropriated $100 for grill work—but I was lucky."

Sections of basket weaving cover the walls and stair rails in one of Club Habana's rooms. "It's real basket weaving," Mr. Daniels said. "I hunted all over Center Market to find names of weavers stamped on the baskets. I wrote to all of them; finally got hold of a firm that could supply the strips. Quite effective, don't you agree?"

A box of artificial flowers lay on a bench. Mr. Daniels selected one, a long stem, with a little red knob on it. "I don't know why, but I like this; it's so intimate. Why?" He looked at the tiny single blossom. "I don't know. Sort of lonely looking—but that's not intimate, is it? I'll put these with other flowers in the flower pots."

Indirect Lighting.

Mr. Daniels' ingenuity is reflected all over the new club. As you touch the chromium-plated double doors, both will open as if by magic; as you go in, you'll look over a wall to a long view of the sea.

Indirect lights will be contained in flower pots, jugs and glass bottles. Menus and wine lists are decorated with Mr. Daniels' sketches. The murals, humorously drawn maps, are his brushwork.

But he's a little worried about his masterpiece, the stair treads. He's afraid they won't be appreciated. For he's carefully worn them down, at logical levels. Specifically, at the tops and bottoms, the wearing is regular, in the middle steps, the "wear" has made two grooves. The next time you go up a set of stairs, pass someone halfway up, you'll understand why.

Cash Payment Of Bonus Gains House Support

Even Firm Stand by President Seen Unlikely to Halt Passage.

A growing conviction that even a firm stand by the President can not stop Congressional action in favor of bonus cash payment yesterday was expressed by returning members of the House.

Talk of White House insistence on a new program of taxation to finance any bonus legislation enacted failed to slow up predictions by Republicans and Democrats alike that the House, and possibly the Senate, may pass the $2,200,000,000 bonus over the President's veto.

Two members of the important House Ways and Means Committee—Representatives Fred Vinson (Democrat), Kentucky, and Isaac Bachrach (Republican), New Jersey—shared this view. Bacharach said 75 per cent of the Republicans will go along with enough Democrats to insure House passage. Vinson said some returning members are discussing payment through limited expansion of the currency. Bonus legislation will meet its first test in the Ways and Means Committee, of which Bacharach and Vinson are veteran members.

Concerned at these prospects, the Administration is known to be considering the advisability of a compromise plan to head off a White House upset. Payment of only those veterans on the relief rolls has been suggested as a possible basis.

Observers say the problem may find its reflection in the House Speakership race, with the President inclining toward those few candidates who stood with the Administration last sesison against the bonus.

40 Patients Saved As Hospital Burns

St. Marys, Pa., Nov. 27 (AP).—Swept by fire, the sturdy stone-walled Andrew Kaul Memorial Hospital was destroyed today after its 40 patients were rescued by nuns, doctors and firemen and safely quartered in a nearby convent.

Among those rescued were four newly born babies and their mothers. All of the patients were rapidly bundled and carried or wheeled out of the building, many of them unaware of the flames.

The fire originated within the walls of the institution, which was built of huge stones fashioned by Benedictine fathers for their monastery before the Civil War. Firemen estimated the damage between $150,000 and $200,000. The cause of the fire was not determined.

Norman Angell to Get '34 Nobel Peace Prize

Oslo, Norway, Nov. 27 (AP).—The newspaper Dagbladet said today it had learned that the 1934 Nobel Peace Prize would be awarded to Sir Norman Angell, noted British author and lecturer.

The 1933 prize, which has not yet been awarded, probably will be given, the newspaper said, either to Freidrich Wilhelm Foerster, former German professor and diplomat, and Walter Schuecking, German member of the World Court, or to Count Richard Coudenhove-Kalergi of Austria, president of the Pan-European Union.

Unwritten Law Will Be Priest Killing Defense

Husband Collapses, Later Threatens Suicide as Trial Is Prepared.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Ironically, the pretty 17-year-old bride of Joseph Lieb Steinmetz, 22, former theological student, insisted that he buy the pistol used to slay her and the Rev. Joseph J. Leonard, it was stated tonight.

The disclosure came from the he indicated the "unwritten law" would be invoked as a defense. He said Steinmetz told him the weapon was bought at his wife's suggestion on their honeymoon trip youth's counsel, Meyer Machils, as from Los Angeles.

Haggard and on the verge of collapse, the youth who killed his wife and the priest in a hotel room, was arraigned in homicide court. He was held without bail for a hearing Monday.

Priest 'Intoxicated.'

Through his counsel, Steinmetz declared that after he found his bride, former Hollywood dancer, and the priest in the latter's room, he grabbed the pistol from Leonard's coat, where it had been placed for safekeeping and "blazed away."

As the district attorney called more than 11 witnesses before the grand jury considering the slayings, the City's medical examiners announced that their autopsy of the priest's body showed he had been "completely intoxicated" when slain.

The wife, whose father said she was the granddaughter of Samuel Henry Piles, former United States Senator, of Seattle, Wash., now residing in Beverly Hills, Calif., also was intoxicated, but in a lesser degree, the physicians said.

Husband Collapses.

Steinmetz collapsed early in the day when taken to the police line-up.

Waiting his turn to stand in the glare of electric lights to be questioned before the city's detectives, Steinmetz, who had been weeping, suddenly fell from his chair to the floor. He was revived and later taken to court for arraignment.

Machlis said Steinmetz, a Jew, who turned toward the Presbyterian ministry, told of meeting the priest, who was chaplain at a home for the aged in Lawrenceville, N. J., on Sunday night in the Knights of Columbus Hotel.

On Monday morning he said the three had highballs, paid for by the priest. Steinmetz said he was not a heavy drinker and got "very drunk."

Threatens Suicide.

Assistant District Attorney Saul Price said that one of the witnesses questioned before entering the grand jury room was James Collins, a bellboy, who said he saw Steinmetz listening outside the priest's room and heard him mutter:

"My wife is in there confessing to the priest."

Other witnesses called included the room clerk who discovered the bodies, and a waiter who served the drinks.

After Steinmetz remarked he "would join his wife and the priest" in a few days if he had a chance, police removed the prisoner's belt and necktie. He is in the Tombs Prison.

Housebreaking Suspects Held

Stolen Goods Recovered by Arlington County Officers.

Charged with housebreaking and larceny of approximately $4,000 worth of furniture and other effects, Wilson Banks, colored, 29, of 71 Morton street northwest, and John L. Brooks, 28, also colored, of 2429 M street northwest, Washington, are lodged in Arlington County Jail. They are charged with entering the home of Assistant Attorney General Harry B. Fleharty, of 117 Arlington ridge, Arlington County, early in the month.

They were arrested last Thursday night by Detectives Thomas Lewis and E. L. Sullivan, of the Washington Police Department, and turned over to the county yesterday.

County Officers Edward Duncan and Ernest Miller, who have been assigned to the case since early in November, have recovered practically all of the stolen goods. A large quantity was found in the rooms of Brooks on M street.

Annie Brooks, his mother, is out on $2,500 bond on charges of having stolen goods in her possession. According to the police, about $1,000 worth of cut glass and silver was found buried on her property in Green Valley, Arlington County. The robbery occurred while Fleharty was in Nebraska, where he had gone to vote.

Tax Limit Removal To Go to Assembly

Activities of the Montgomery County Civic Federation were discussed by its President, Robert E. Bondy, of Bethesda, at a meeting yesterday of the Woodside Park Civic Association at Jessup Blair Community House. He cited its accomplishments and spoke of its value to the county.

Appearing for the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department, Leo Bender asked the indorsement by the association of a bill that would remove the $4,300 limitation of the amount which can be raised on taxes in this area. The bill will be submitted to the State Legislature when it meets in January, Mr. Bender said, if it has sufficient indorsement. The matter was referred to the legal action committee.

Mrs. Lloyd Y. Beers, president of the Silver Spring Library, gave a talk on the library which was later inspected by the members.

Baby Face Nelson Guns Slay U. S. Agent in Illinois Battle

to affront the "Government men" as was his superior, Purvis.

Hollis also was known as an agent to be feared. He stayed with the service despite pleas of his young wife, who feared for his safety.

But Hollis stuck—the memory of Baum's body on the red-stained Wisconsin snow spurring him on. In addition to his widow, a son survives, 4 years old. Cowley also is married.

The gun battle was brief but furious.

Purvis said his office had a "tip" that an automobile, known to have been in Nelson's possession, had been seen in Barrington.

A squad of agents was sent to the suburb and the battle took place after the desperadoes' car and the agents' machine passed. The agents spotted the car, swung around and started in pursuit.

The fugitive car halted, the agents advanced on foot, pistols in hand, and when they were 20 feet from the car a blast of machine-gun bullets spat out.

Hollis fell, his head almost severed by slugs, others finding a mark in his back as he spun. Cowley dropped as the other agents opened fire.

Hollis was dead when taken to a hospital, but Cowley was still conscious.

"Did you get Purvis?" he asked. "I must talk to Purvis before I die."

"Go Out and Get Them."

Purvis was soon at his side and came out of the operating room to state:

"Baby Face Nelson was the driver of the car. The woman we believe to be Mrs. Betty Gillis, his wife. We're not certain of the identity of the other man."

Then to additional Federal agents and police who rushed to the hospital he said:

"Now, go out and get them."

Then Purvis went back to his friend.

Police nets spread about the city, a description of the car taken by the fugitives was broadcast. Its license number was given all police.

The car was last seen speeding toward Niles Center and Evanston to the north. A report that it had crashed into another car bringing injury to an Evanston woman and her two children proved groundless. Their machine was struck by another car.

State Policeman William Gallagher, 26, who had stopped at a gasoline station, gave a description of the slaying.

"The cars stopped on the Northwest highway about 500 feet west of State road, No. 63," he said. "I sensed that it was a case of police authorities after hoodlums.

"As the agents advanced with drawn guns, I pulled out my rifle. When the shooting started, I started firing at the desperadoes' car. There were people getting in my line of fire and I had to stop.

Hamilton Suspected.

"The people in the other machine got out, too, firing a machine gun. Then, with the agents lying on the ground they sped away."

The imperativeness of the injured Cowley in demanding to see Purvis, and his statement that he "must" see his chief before he died, gave rise to speculation that John Hamilton, only other lieutenant of the Dillinger gang at large, was with Nelson.

In Washington Assistant Attorney General William Stanley revealed that a house about 40 miles from Barrington had been under observation, presumably as a Dillinger hangout, and the agents were on their way there when the battle occurred.

GEORGE (BABY FACE) NELSON.

several others when we saw a small sedan containing two men and a woman approaching at a fast rate of speed from the west," he said.

"As we commented upon the crazy driving another car drew up behind the sedan and opened fire.

"The sedan swerved to the side of the road and halted at an entrance to the Barrington City Park, just within the city limits.

"The second car—I don't know how fast it was going, but it was plenty fast—sped around the parked machine and stopped about 500 feet farther on.

"The car, which we later learned contained the two Federal agents, pulled across the highway, blocking the road.

"The two agents leaped out and started firing at the occupants of the other car. The girl or woman jumped out, ran to the side of the road and fell in the grass. The men jumped out, each with a machine gun.

"Then the battle started.

"But the Federal men, one of whom had a shotgun and the other a pistol, were no match for the men with the machine guns.

"I don't know how many shots were fired but both of the agents fell, one on either side of the road.

"As they fell the girl jumped out of the grass and ran to the agents' car. She got behind the wheel, turned the car around and started west. As she drove by them her companions leaped aboard and escaped."

Eyewitness Tells Of Gun Battle

Nicklin Reported As Nice Appointee

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Reports were current in Republican circles here today that Perry A. Nicklin, of Allegany County, Republican leader recently reelected as county treasurer, will be the choice of Governor-elect Harry W. Nice for the post of chairman of the State Roads Commission.

It was generally believed last week that former Senator Ovington E. Weller, who was chairman of the roads commission during the administration of Phillips Lee Goldsborough, would be offered the highways post. Later it was learned that Mr. Weller probably would refuse to accept the assignment. With that report came the boom for Mr. Nicklin as roads commission chairman.

Mr. Nicklin formerly served as commissioner of water and electric lights in Cumberland, and is an experienced highways engineer. He was associated with G. Clinton Uhl, Ritchie appointee to the roads commission chairmanship, who died recently. Mr. Nicklin was one of the original Nice-for-Governor boosters, and aided in carrying Allegany County for Mr. Nice by over 5,000 votes. He is prominent in fraternal circles, being a former State secretary of the order of Elks, a past exalted ruler of the Elks, an Eagle, and a Mason.

Snow Blankets Midwest.

Kansas City, Nov. 27 (AP).—The Midwest and Southwest was swept today by the second general rain and snowstorm within a week. A blizzard, which yesterday piled deep drifts in Colorado, flew across the wheat belt, leaving a 6-inch blanket of snow.

Alibis Offered In Holdup Here By Defendants

Dunn in Richmond, Four Witnesses Say; Case Will End Today.

timony when he said he knew Dunn prior to the robbery, while Dunn had testified he had never met Berlin until they were clapped into jail together.

Berlin was directly connected with the robbery in the testimony of Russell V. Edwards, now serving a four-year term in Baltimore for false pretenses. Edwards, a surprise witness, said he was a cellmate of Berlin in Baltimore. He recounted a conversation he had with him after Berlin returned from an arraignment before the United States Commissioner.

Charge by Edwards.

In this talk, Edwards charged Berlin had told him none of the Heurich employes had been able to identify him except through a picture. Edwards said Berlin admitted that one of the employes had been "covered" with a gun by Berlin during the robbery.

Dunn's "alibi" witnesses stanchly supported his contention he was in Richmond, Va., at the Richmond Fair when the robbery was enacted. All agreed they had seen him standing in front of a score board on which the World Series between Washington and New York was being portrayed.

The witnesses were Mrs. Ruth Hoffman, Thomas Nihmi, Edward D. Strain and Ray Neville, a barber, all of Richmond.

Mrs. Hoffman testified Dunn, a roomer in her sister's home, was in Richmond when the holdup occurred. She was certain of this, she said, because she recalled it was "Richmond Day" at the fair. She and the others admitted their recollections as to the date were refreshed when Dunn went to them after his arrest and requested them to bear out his story that he could not have been associated with the case here.

Ans. to yesterday's puzzle:
SUCCOTASH- IS A REAL AMERICAN DISH... IT WAS ORIGINATED BY THE INDIANS AND SERVED BY THE PILGRIMS AT THEIR FIRST THANKSGIVING IN AMERICA
CROSSING EVERY LINE WITH ONE CONTINUOUS LINE WITHOUT CROSSING ANY LINE TWICE...

Strange as it seems, Capt. Miles Standish and John Alden, who were the most famous of the Mayflower passengers, were not pilgrims like their fellow colonists who sought religious freedom in the New World. Although their work in Plymouth Colony typifies all that is great in the spirit of the Pilgrim Fathers, they were not bound by the ties of religious oppression.

Standish was a soldier. Born of a fairly wealthy family in Duxbury, Lancashire, England, he saw service in the British army in the Netherlands where he came in contact with the religious exiles. Although he did not embrace their faith, he joined their group as a soldier, and emigrated with them to New England. Standish showed executive ability and military judgment that played a vital part in the Pilgrim Colony's survival.

John Alden was a carpenter. He was hired by the Pilgrims at Southampton when the Mayflower anchored there to take on supplies. According to the terms of his employment he could stay in America or return to England if he wanted to. In the words of Gov. Bradford's account of the Mayflower passengers, Alden "being a hopfull yong man, was much desired, by left to his owne liking to go or stay, when he came here; but he stayed and maryed here."

Solution of the problem given yesterday and solved in today's cartoon, depends on the geometric fact that a line has neither width nor thickness, its only dimension being length. Thus in drawing the continuous line over the short line in the lower right of the puzzle you have not crossed it, hence have not violated the rules. The puzzle can not be solved without resorting to this means.

Loudoun Hospital Expenses

Amount Expended for Treatment of Needy $1,000 Above Sum Stipulated in Annual Budget, Supervisors Learn.

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Hospital expenses of the indigent of Loudoun County have exceeded the amount stipulated by the board of supervisors in their annual budget by $1,000, it was brought out at the monthly meeting of the supervisors. The amount paid the Loudoun County Hospital so far this year is $2,749, while only $1,750 was allowed for this work.

In order to curtail the hospital bills in the future the board ordered only $2 to be paid for a room per day as against $2.50 formerly paid; $5 for major operations as against the former price of $10; $2.50 for minor operations as against $5 and $5 for anesthetic.

A report of the local FERA for October was read and it was brought out that $1,396.64 was used in relief work for that month and $511.32 in salaries and expenses, out of which $108.25 was used in relief garden work.

A committee, consisting of Dr. W. H. Grubb, M. H. Whitmore and H. C. Rogers, supervisors; Treasurer H. E. Cole and Clerk of Court E. O. Russell, was appointed to report to the board the number of insurance policies on county buildings, when these expire, and the amount of premium in order that they may be in a position to renew these with the different insurance companies.

The board voted to allow the school board $20,000 of their allotted appropriation this month.

Students' Aid By FERA Hit By Sidney Hall

Plan, Undesirable, Is View of Virginia Educator; Urges Other Means.

Richmond, Nov. 27 (AP).—Dr. Sidney B. Hall, Virginia's education authority, said in a speech tonight that FERA aid to college students "does not offer any desirable features that should be continued beyond a brief emergency."

Dr. Hall, State superintendent of public instruction, made his remarks in a speech before the superintendents' group of the Virginia Education Society tonight.

Society, he said, must find a new place for youths being eliminated from business and not now in school.

"Now that the butcher, baker and candlestick-maker have given place to the abattoir, delicatessen and electric power company," he said, "the need for youth in the home and shop has almost passed. Some substitute must be found—and more education is society's decision."

Aid Seen Outright Dole.

Suggesting that the next few years will call for initiative and resourcefulness on the part of all school officials in meeting the problem here presented, the speaker added: "The Federal Government has made a feeble attempt to provide for a few of these neglected youths through the CCC camps and through aid to needy college students.

"The CCC Camp may be the beginning of a most important permanent feature of our educational program, but the aid to college students is, with its "made work," little removed from an outright dole.

After tracing growth of the duties and responsibilities of school superintendents from the time when their office was fulfilled by a member of the town council or the head teacher in a school, Dr. Hall referred to the growing responsibility for boys and girls out of as well as in the schools.

Urges Year-Round School.

Increasing the effectiveness of schools by keeping them open all year, providing supervision and furnishing the essential teaching and learning tools was proposed as a means of meeting the problems of those who now do not finish school.

"The child labor laws, NRA codes, labor union regulations and industrial tendencies all make for the unemployment of youth to an ever later age," he continued.

Gordon Talks To Sportsmen

He Offers Suggestions on Game Conservation in Virginia.

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.)—Seth Gordon, president of the American Game Association, and one of the leading game conservationists in the country, addressed a large gathering of sportsmen in the courthouse here this evening. Mr. Gordon was for 20 years game commissioner of Pennsylvania and it was during his administration that the Keystone State, once practically depleted of game, became a veritable hunter's paradise.

He brought out at the meeting some suggestions for conserving game in this section of Virginia, and discussed game laws from the Federal viewpoint.

Former Gov. Westmoreland Davis, president of the Loudoun Game Protective Association, presided at the meeting.

Other speakers were Carl Nolting, chairman of the State commission of game and inland fisheries; M. H. Hart, executive secretary of the commission, and Carl D. Shoemaker, secretary of the United States Senate Committee on Wild Life Resources.

Reels of wild life motion pictures were shown the audience by C. O. Handley, superintendent of wild life propagation for the State commission.

Ancestor 'Wrote' Declaration, But News Is Too Late

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Miss Margaret Price, who died last week here, did not live long enough, by a day or two, to have confirmed her belief that one of her ancestors had actually "penned" the Declaration of Independence. A week before she died she had written to an informtaion bureau for the facts. The day after she died the data arrived, confirming her belief.

It said the actual "penman" was Timothy Matlack, of Philadelphia, her great-grandfather, and that he did the actual transcribing of the immortal document. The only other descendants here of Matlack are Lewis Price, this city, and his children, and Mrs. Belle Wilson, of Hagerstown, Md.

Moonshine Takes Drop in Maryland

Two Arrested for Sale at $2 a Gallon.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—The price of moonshine liquor has taken a drop since cheaper legal liquor has made its appearance.

This fact was learned yesterday, when an investigator for the Liquor License Board of Washington County testified he had purchased illicit liquor for $2 a gallon from Albert Drenner and Robert Brandt. Drenner pleaded guilty and Brandt was found guilty by the court on the charge.

Moonshine liquor during prohibition sold as high as $10 a gallon and never had dropped below $3 a gallon.

Unwritten Law Will Be Priest Killing Defense

Husband Collapses, Later Threatens Suicide as Trial Is Prepared.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Ironically, the pretty 17-year-old bride of Joseph Lieb Steinmetz, 22, former theological student, insisted that he buy the pistol used to slay her and the Rev. Joseph J. Leonard, it was stated tonight.

The disclosure came from the he indicated the "unwritten law" would be invoked as a defense. He said Steinmetz told him the weapon was bought at his wife's suggestion on their honeymoon trip youth's counsel, Meyer Machils, as from Los Angeles.

Haggard and on the verge of collapse, the youth who killed his wife and the priest in a hotel room, was arraigned in homicide court. He was held without bail for a hearing Monday.

Priest 'Intoxicated.'

Through his counsel, Steinmetz declared that after he found his bride, former Hollywood dancer, and the priest in the latter's room, he grabbed the pistol from Leonard's coat, where it had been placed for safekeeping and "blazed away."

As the district attorney called more than 11 witnesses before the grand jury considering the slayings, the City's medical examiners announced that their autopsy of the priest's body showed he had been "completely intoxicated" when slain.

The wife, whose father said she was the granddaughter of Samuel Henry Piles, former United States Senator, of Seattle, Wash., now residing in Beverly Hills, Calif., also was intoxicated, but in a lesser degree, the physicians said.

Husband Collapses.

Steinmetz collapsed early in the day when taken to the police line-up.

Waiting his turn to stand in the glare of electric lights to be questioned before the city's detectives, Steinmetz, who had been weeping, suddenly fell from his chair to the floor. He was revived and later taken to court for arraignment.

Machlis said Steinmetz, a Jew, who turned toward the Presbyterian ministry, told of meeting the priest, who was chaplain at a home for the aged in Lawrenceville, N. J., on Sunday night in the Knights of Columbus Hotel.

On Monday morning he said the three had highballs, paid for by the priest. Steinmetz said he was not a heavy drinker and got "very drunk."

Threatens Suicide.

Assistant District Attorney Saul Price said that one of the witnesses questioned before entering the grand jury room was James Collins, a bellboy, who said he saw Steinmetz listening outside the priest's room and heard him mutter:

"My wife is in there confessing to the priest."

Other witnesses called included the room clerk who discovered the bodies, and a waiter who served the drinks.

After Steinmetz remarked he "would join his wife and the priest" in a few days if he had a chance, police removed the prisoner's belt and necktie. He is in the Tombs Prison.

Housebreaking Suspects Held

Stolen Goods Recovered by Arlington County Officers.

Charged with housebreaking and larceny of approximately $4,000 worth of furniture and other effects, Wilson Banks, colored, 29, of 71 Morton street northwest, and John L. Brooks, 28, also colored, of 2429 M street northwest, Washington, are lodged in Arlington County Jail. They are charged with entering the home of Assistant Attorney General Harry B. Fleharty, of 117 Arlington ridge, Arlington County, early in the month.

They were arrested last Thursday night by Detectives Thomas Lewis and E. L. Sullivan, of the Washington Police Department, and turned over to the county yesterday.

County Officers Edward Duncan and Ernest Miller, who have been assigned to the case since early in November, have recovered practically all of the stolen goods. A large quantity was found in the rooms of Brooks on M street.

Annie Brooks, his mother, is out on $2,500 bond on charges of having stolen goods in her possession. According to the police, about $1,000 worth of cut glass and silver was found buried on her property in Green Valley, Arlington County. The robbery occurred while Fleharty was in Nebraska, where he had gone to vote.

Tax Limit Removal To Go to Assembly

Activities of the Montgomery County Civic Federation were discussed by its President, Robert E. Bondy, of Bethesda, at a meeting yesterday of the Woodside Park Civic Association at Jessup Blair Community House. He cited its accomplishments and spoke of its value to the county.

Appearing for the Silver Spring Volunteer Fire Department, Leo Bender asked the indorsement by the association of a bill that would remove the $4,300 limitation of the amount which can be raised on taxes in this area. The bill will be submitted to the State Legislature when it meets in January, Mr. Bender said, if it has sufficient indorsement. The matter was referred to the legal action committee.

Mrs. Lloyd Y. Beers, president of the Silver Spring Library, gave a talk on the library which was later inspected by the members.

Baby Face Nelson Guns Slay U. S. Agent in Illinois Battle

to affront the "Government men" as was his superior, Purvis.

Hollis also was known as an agent to be feared. He stayed with the service despite pleas of his young wife, who feared for his safety.

But Hollis stuck—the memory of Baum's body on the red-stained Wisconsin snow spurring him on. In addition to his widow, a son survives, 4 years old. Cowley also is married.

The gun battle was brief but furious.

Purvis said his office had a "tip" that an automobile, known to have been in Nelson's possession, had been seen in Barrington.

A squad of agents was sent to the suburb and the battle took place after the desperadoes' car and the agents' machine passed. The agents spotted the car, swung around and started in pursuit.

The fugitive car halted, the agents advanced on foot, pistols in hand, and when they were 20 feet from the car a blast of machine-gun bullets spat out.

Hollis fell, his head almost severed by slugs, others finding a mark in his back as he spun. Cowley dropped as the other agents opened fire.

Hollis was dead when taken to a hospital, but Cowley was still conscious.

"Did you get Purvis?" he asked. "I must talk to Purvis before I die."

"Go Out and Get Them."

Purvis was soon at his side and came out of the operating room to state:

"Baby Face Nelson was the driver of the car. The woman we believe to be Mrs. Betty Gillis, his wife. We're not certain of the identity of the other man."

Then to additional Federal agents and police who rushed to the hospital he said:

"Now, go out and get them."

Then Purvis went back to his friend.

Police nets spread about the city, a description of the car taken by the fugitives was broadcast. Its license number was given all police.

The car was last seen speeding toward Niles Center and Evanston to the north. A report that it had crashed into another car bringing injury to an Evanston woman and her two children proved groundless. Their machine was struck by another car.

State Policeman William Gallagher, 26, who had stopped at a gasoline station, gave a description of the slaying.

"The cars stopped on the Northwest highway about 500 feet west of State road, No. 63," he said. "I sensed that it was a case of police authorities after hoodlums.

"As the agents advanced with drawn guns, I pulled out my rifle. When the shooting started, I started firing at the desperadoes' car. There were people getting in my line of fire and I had to stop.

Hamilton Suspected.

"The people in the other machine got out, too, firing a machine gun. Then, with the agents lying on the ground they sped away."

The imperativeness of the injured Cowley in demanding to see Purvis, and his statement that he "must" see his chief before he died, gave rise to speculation that John Hamilton, only other lieutenant of the Dillinger gang at large, was with Nelson.

In Washington Assistant Attorney General William Stanley revealed that a house about 40 miles from Barrington had been under observation, presumably as a Dillinger hangout, and the agents were on their way there when the battle occurred.

GEORGE (BABY FACE) NELSON.

several others when we saw a small sedan containing two men and a woman approaching at a fast rate of speed from the west," he said.

"As we commented upon the crazy driving another car drew up behind the sedan and opened fire.

"The sedan swerved to the side of the road and halted at an entrance to the Barrington City Park, just within the city limits.

"The second car—I don't know how fast it was going, but it was plenty fast—sped around the parked machine and stopped about 500 feet farther on.

"The car, which we later learned contained the two Federal agents, pulled across the highway, blocking the road.

"The two agents leaped out and started firing at the occupants of the other car. The girl or woman jumped out, ran to the side of the road and fell in the grass. The men jumped out, each with a machine gun.

"Then the battle started.

"But the Federal men, one of whom had a shotgun and the other a pistol, were no match for the men with the machine guns.

"I don't know how many shots were fired but both of the agents fell, one on either side of the road.

"As they fell the girl jumped out of the grass and ran to the agents' car. She got behind the wheel, turned the car around and started west. As she drove by them her companions leaped aboard and escaped."

Nicklin Reported As Nice Appointee

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Reports were current in Republican circles here today that Perry A. Nicklin, of Allegany County, Republican leader recently reelected as county treasurer, will be the choice of Governor-elect Harry W. Nice for the post of chairman of the State Roads Commission.

It was generally believed last week that former Senator Ovington E. Weller, who was chairman of the roads commission during the administration of Phillips Lee Goldsborough, would be offered the highways post. Later it was learned that Mr. Weller probably would refuse to accept the assignment. With that report came the boom for Mr. Nicklin as roads commission chairman.

Mr. Nicklin formerly served as commissioner of water and electric lights in Cumberland, and is an experienced highways engineer. He was associated with G. Clinton Uhl, Ritchie appointee to the roads commission chairmanship, who died recently. Mr. Nicklin was one of the original Nice-for-Governor boosters, and aided in carrying Allegany County for Mr. Nice by over 5,000 votes. He is prominent in fraternal circles, being a former State secretary of the order of Elks, a past exalted ruler of the Elks, an Eagle, and a Mason.

Dunn in Richmond, Four Witnesses Say; Case Will End Today.

timony when he said he knew Dunn prior to the robbery, while Dunn had testified he had never met Berlin until they were clapped into jail together.

Berlin was directly connected with the robbery in the testimony of Russell V. Edwards, now serving a four-year term in Baltimore for false pretenses. Edwards, a surprise witness, said he was a cellmate of Berlin in Baltimore. He recounted a conversation he had with him after Berlin returned from an arraignment before the United States Commissioner.

Charge by Edwards.

In this talk, Edwards charged Berlin had told him none of the Heurich employes had been able to identify him except through a picture. Edwards said Berlin admitted that one of the employes had been "covered" with a gun by Berlin during the robbery.

Dunn's "alibi" witnesses stanchly supported his contention he was in Richmond, Va., at the Richmond Fair when the robbery was enacted. All agreed they had seen him standing in front of a score board on which the World Series between Washington and New York was being portrayed.

The witnesses were Mrs. Ruth Hoffman, Thomas Nihmi, Edward D. Strain and Ray Neville, a barber, all of Richmond.

Mrs. Hoffman testified Dunn, a roomer in her sister's home, was in Richmond when the holdup occurred. She was certain of this, she said, because she recalled it was "Richmond Day" at the fair. She and the others admitted their recollections as to the date were refreshed when Dunn went to them after his arrest and requested them to bear out his story that he could not have been associated with the case here.

Ans. to yesterday's puzzle:
CROSSING EVERY LINE WITH ONE CONTINUOUS LINE WITHOUT CROSSING ANY LINE TWICE...

Strange as it seems, Capt. Miles Standish and John Alden, who were the most famous of the Mayflower passengers, were not pilgrims like their fellow colonists who sought religious freedom in the New World. Although their work in Plymouth Colony typifies all that is great in the spirit of the Pilgrim Fathers, they were not bound by the ties of religious oppression.

Standish was a soldier. Born of a fairly wealthy family in Duxbury, Lancashire, England, he saw service in the British army in the Netherlands where he came in contact with the religious exiles. Although he did not embrace their faith, he joined their group as a soldier, and emigrated with them to New England. Standish showed executive ability and military judgment that played a vital part in the Pilgrim Colony's survival.

John Alden was a carpenter. He was hired by the Pilgrims at Southampton when the Mayflower anchored there to take on supplies. According to the terms of his employment he could stay in America or return to England if he wanted to. In the words of Gov. Bradford's account of the Mayflower passengers, Alden "being a hopfull yong man, was much desired, by left to his owne liking to go or stay, when he came here; but he stayed and maryed here."

Solution of the problem given yesterday and solved in today's cartoon, depends on the geometric fact that a line has neither width nor thickness, its only dimension being length. Thus in drawing the continuous line over the short line in the lower right of the puzzle you have not crossed it, hence have not violated the rules. The puzzle can not be solved without resorting to this means.

Loudoun Hospital Expenses

Amount Expended for Treatment of Needy $1,000 Above Sum Stipulated in Annual Budget, Supervisors Learn.

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Hospital expenses of the indigent of Loudoun County have exceeded the amount stipulated by the board of supervisors in their annual budget by $1,000, it was brought out at the monthly meeting of the supervisors. The amount paid the Loudoun County Hospital so far this year is $2,749, while only $1,750 was allowed for this work.

In order to curtail the hospital bills in the future the board ordered only $2 to be paid for a room per day as against $2.50 formerly paid; $5 for major operations as against the former price of $10; $2.50 for minor operations as against $5 and $5 for anesthetic.

A report of the local FERA for October was read and it was brought out that $1,396.64 was used in relief work for that month and $511.32 in salaries and expenses, out of which $108.25 was used in relief garden work.

A committee, consisting of Dr. W. H. Grubb, M. H. Whitmore and H. C. Rogers, supervisors; Treasurer H. E. Cole and Clerk of Court E. O. Russell, was appointed to report to the board the number of insurance policies on county buildings, when these expire, and the amount of premium in order that they may be in a position to renew these with the different insurance companies.

The board voted to allow the school board $20,000 of their allotted appropriation this month.

Students' Aid By FERA Hit By Sidney Hall

Plan, Undesirable, Is View of Virginia Educator; Urges Other Means.

Richmond, Nov. 27 (AP).—Dr. Sidney B. Hall, Virginia's education authority, said in a speech tonight that FERA aid to college students "does not offer any desirable features that should be continued beyond a brief emergency."

Dr. Hall, State superintendent of public instruction, made his remarks in a speech before the superintendents' group of the Virginia Education Society tonight.

Society, he said, must find a new place for youths being eliminated from business and not now in school.

"Now that the butcher, baker and candlestick-maker have given place to the abattoir, delicatessen and electric power company," he said, "the need for youth in the home and shop has almost passed. Some substitute must be found—and more education is society's decision."

Aid Seen Outright Dole.

Suggesting that the next few years will call for initiative and resourcefulness on the part of all school officials in meeting the problem here presented, the speaker added: "The Federal Government has made a feeble attempt to provide for a few of these neglected youths through the CCC camps and through aid to needy college students.

"The CCC Camp may be the beginning of a most important permanent feature of our educational program, but the aid to college students is, with its "made work," little removed from an outright dole.

After tracing growth of the duties and responsibilities of school superintendents from the time when their office was fulfilled by a member of the town council or the head teacher in a school, Dr. Hall referred to the growing responsibility for boys and girls out of as well as in the schools.

Urges Year-Round School.

Increasing the effectiveness of schools by keeping them open all year, providing supervision and furnishing the essential teaching and learning tools was proposed as a means of meeting the problems of those who now do not finish school.

"The child labor laws, NRA codes, labor union regulations and industrial tendencies all make for the unemployment of youth to an ever later age," he continued.

Gordon Talks To Sportsmen

He Offers Suggestions on Game Conservation in Virginia.

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.) Seth Gordon, president of the American Game Association, and one of the leading game conservationists in the country, addressed a large gathering of sportsmen in the courthouse here this evening. Mr. Gordon was for 20 years game commissioner of Pennsylvania and it was during his administration that the Keystone State, once practically depleted of game, became a veritable hunter's paradise.

He brought out at the meeting some suggestions for conserving game in this section of Virginia, and discussed game laws from the Federal viewpoint.

Former Gov. Westmoreland Davis, president of the Loudoun Game Protective Association, presided at the meeting.

Other speakers were Carl Nolting, chairman of the State commission of game and inland fisheries; M. H. Hart, executive secretary of the commission, and Carl D. Shoemaker, secretary of the United States Senate Committee on Wild Life Resources.

Reels of wild life motion pictures were shown the audience by C. O. Handley, superintendent of wild life propagation for the State commission.

Ancestor 'Wrote' Declaration, But News Is Too Late

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.). Miss Margaret Price, who died last week here, did not live long enough, by a day or two, to have confirmed her belief that one of her ancestors had actually "penned" the Declaration of Independence. A week before she died she had written to an informtaion bureau for the facts. The day after she died the data arrived, confirming her belief.

It said the actual "penman" was Timothy Matlack, of Philadelphia, her great-grandfather, and that he did the actual transcribing of the immortal document. The only other descendants here of Matlack are Lewis Price, this city, and his children, and Mrs. Belle Wilson, of Hagerstown, Md.

Moonshine Takes Drop in Maryland

Two Arrested for Sale at $2 a Gallon.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 27 (Spl.). The price of moonshine liquor has taken a drop since cheaper legal liquor has made its appearance.

This fact was learned yesterday, when an investigator for the Liquor License Board of Washington County testified he had purchased illicit liquor for $2 a gallon from Albert Drenner and Robert Brandt. Drenner pleaded guilty and Brandt was found guilty by the court on the charge.

Moonshine liquor during prohibition sold as high as $10 a gallon and never had dropped below $3 a gallon.

"At Home" on Thanksgiving . .

The Occasion that demands everything be of the finest, suggests these Fine Old Whiskies.

On Thanksgiving—of all the family occasions—tradition demands the dinner be superlatively right—down to the smallest detail. Prepared with infinite care, each dish—from the plump turkey, tender and succulent—to the rich plum pudding with its hard sauce—reflects hours of endless, patient preparation.

With just this same care Seagram whiskies have been prepared for generations. Into the selection of the special grains, into their distillation, their aging—has gone the utmost care—and the skill and experience of over three-quarters of a century.

So, for this occasion, when the sideboard must live up to the table's high standards, what could be more appropriate than your selection of one of Seagram's cask-mellowed whiskies? Goodness such as you will find in bottles bearing the Seagram name could only be possible with the time, the experience, and patience that have gone into their preparation—now and always.

Cheer for All, Is Thanksgiving Motto of City

Churches and Other Units Busy Distributing Holiday Fare.

The spirit of Thanksgiving, 313 years old, but still spry, pervaded Washington today.

Tomorrow it will be in complete possession of the District with the idea of good cheer the prevailing motif among citizens and organizations, and the holiday mood in command.

The Weather Bureau forecast a clear and cold day following occasional rains and warm weather today.

The District Commissioners yesterday adopted an order making today—Thanksgiving Eve—a half holiday, in line with the action of Government departments.

District schools will close at 1 p. m. today, and will not reopen until Monday morning.

While Washingtonians prepared to gather at their dinner tables and in hotels and restaurants, and to rally around the punch bowl, they were not unmindful of the District's needy, and those in District hospitals and institutions.

Fare for Hospitals.

Turkey, chicken, dressing, gravy and all the trimmings were the order for tomorrow in most of Washington's hospitals. At Tuberculosis Hospital the dinner will be of the traditional New England type, with patients' trays groaning beneath the weight of well-cooked, appropriate food.

A turkey feast will be enjoyed at the Home for the Aged and Infirm. At the Industrial Home, roast chicken will be the principal item of the dinner, with all the trimmings included.

Practically the same menu will be served to inmates of the Industrial Home School for Colored Children.

None of Washington's needy will go hungry tomorrow, officials in welfare, fraternal and religious organizations announced. The spirit of the first Thanksgiving, celebrated by the Pilgrim fathers more than three centuries ago, in 1621, will control the heartstrings and purses of District residents.

Large Distribution.

A canvass of various groups yesterday revealed that Thanksgiving baskets by the thousand will be distributed, as in previous years, although perhaps with less publicity.

Churches and Sunday Schools and their aid and welfare societies, were planning distribution among the needy in their neighborhoods. These baskets, for the most part, will go to persons known to their congregations. All church welfare societies planned to participate in the program of giving.

Where baskets are not to be given, free Thanksgiving dinners, in many cases, are to be served.

From Gospel Mission, at 214 John Marshall place, distribution of 450 quarter-barrel baskets of fresh meats and vegetables and fruits will start today. The same organization will serve turkey dinners to all who ask at the chapel tomorrow.

Union Mission's Activity.

Despite its smallest budget in years, Central Union Mission is preparing to distribute cheer to an undiminished number of destitute men and their families.

Three-hundred baskets will be given out, and Thanksgiving dinners for 300 men, most of them transients, will be provided in the men's quarters, with roast pork substituted for turkey.

The Salvation Army will distribute grocery orders and feed the needy who apply.

Thanksgiving dinner for the transients at the Transient Bureau will consist of pork, applesauce and all the trimmings.

At the District Jail and Lorton Reformatory Thanksgiving dinner of roast pork, potatoes, other vegetables, coffee and pie will be served.

The Volunteers of America, and all similar organizations will serve dinner to the hungry and homeless. Most of the basket distribution will be done unostentatiously by the churches and their aid societies.

No Thanksgiving baskets will be served by the emergency relief division, but clients may accept baskets from any organization they desire.

Transients Ask FERA Inquiry by Congress

A congressional investigation of the FERA, with "special attention" to the Washington Transient Bureau, was urged yesterday in a petition circulated at the Senate Office Building by members of a transient grievance committee.

Dissatisfied with the present inquiry by Daniel Sands, director of Illinois Transient Bureaus, a group of transients, under the leadership of Lewis B. Smith, New York Indian, visited the office of Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, to present additional complaints.

'Strangers' Dinner For Thanksgiving Is Arranged Here

The lonely stranger within Washington's gates will be less lonely on Thanksgiving Day, according to plans of Dr. Grace A. Thompson, of the Jefferson apartments, who is arranging a "strangers' Thanksgiving Dinner" at the Shoreham Hotel to bring companionship and friendliness to those visitors, new residents or other persons who may be faced with the prospect of eating Thanksgiving dinner alone.

Dr. Thompson first suggested the idea of a "strangers dinner" to Mary Haworth, of The Post staff, in a letter published last week in Miss Haworth's column, "This Business of Living." Many men and women, reading her letter, have requested reservations and a special announcement of the "Strangers Dinner" was made from many church pulpits on Sunday.

The guests will assemble in the Garbo Room of the hotel at 6:30 p. m., and a special committee will introduce guests to each other. Reservations should be made before noon today through Robert, maitre d'hote of the Shoreham Hotel.

God Declared Bible's Author

Dr. Arthur Brown, Scottish Surgeon, Gives Talk at Baptist Church.

Close inspection of the Bible indicates that God, the author of all science, is also the author of the book, according to Dr. Arthur I. Brown, speaking last night at the Fifth Baptist Church. Dr. Brown, a fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons in Edinburgh, Scotland, retired recently from his practice to devote his time to Bible instruction from the standpoint of a scientist. He is conducting a six-day Bible conference at the church.

Answering the question, "Can this scientific age believe the Bible?" he pointed out that in the original manuscripts there were no errors in the Bible and that even in those now available "when examined critically, there is an astonishing freedom from anything approaching error or real contradiction."

"The Bible antedates by 30 centuries the most stupendous discoveries of modern times," he concluded, "and often surprises with its amazing statements revealing knowledge which moderns have just acquired."

I. H. Linton, president of the Bible Institute of Washington, is presiding over the conference, assisted by the Rev. John E. Briggs, D. D., pastor of the Fifth Baptist Church, and the Rev. Arthur G. Slaght, dean of the institute.

Dr. Brown's subject tonight will be "God and You—Wonders of the Human Body."

Deb's Diary

Who, What and Where —as She Sees It.

DEAR DIARY:

Of all the busy and energetic people in this town—I do believe Louise Waller heads the list. Here when the rest of us would be ready to sit down and regard our Christmas lists—she not only has sent out inivitations for her debut tea and completed the arrangements, but is off today, immediately after Charlotte Gregg's luncheon, for Annapolis.

There is to be one of those ever-fascinating hops in Dahlgren Hall tonight and that, of course, is number one on Louise's calendar. Said list continues on down and ends with the B squad game between the Middies and Pitt tomorrow. Then home to Washington and on to Peter McHarg's ball.

"Kippy" Sabatier, of Paris, has arrived from New York. As the huge monster-like engine puffed into the station I caught a glimpse through the window of "Kippy," struggling down the aisle toward the door, nearly hidden by a suitcase and hatbox of generous proportions. She is planning to remain here until Saturday, but we hope she will decide to prolong her visit.

If any one happens to catch Mary Senate Howes when she is wandering about with a bolt of dark blue velvet and a roll of yellow cellophane under one arm, it is because she is designing the costumes for the play to be given next month by the National Park Seminary.

Mrs. Caroline O'Day Is Thrilled by Opportunity to Take Seat in Congress

New Yorker Hopes for Duties She Is Most Able to Perform

Women's Peculiar Talents and Experience Can Be Applied With Notable Effect, She Says; Campaign Described as "Barrel of Fun."

By Mary Greiner Kelly.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Caroline O'Day, newly elected Representative at Large from New York, has a mannerism. No one could miss it. Her congressional colleagues will become aware of it perhaps, when she takes her oath of office in January; when she receives her first committee assignment; when she makes her maiden speech from the floor. Then they'll accept it, just as they accept Caroline O'Day. It's as much a part of her as her right arm.

It is the little girl trick of shutting her wide blue eyes very tight, then flashing them open as though she expected a surprise—as though she anticipated discovering a brand new world revolving before her. Her life has been a crowded kaleidoescope of surprises and new worlds. Now comes Congress.

"There is so much to learn," was her simple response to a barrage of effusions that greeted her at the exclusive Cosmopolitan Club today. It is here, amidst luxurious surroundings, that she mingles with artistic souls of a world discovered in early life.

"Thrilling Experience."

"I can think of no more thrilling privilege than being allowed to serve in Congress," she continued. "It is an opportunity to carry to a conclusion the worthiest efforts of a lifetime. My only desire is that they see fit to assign me to duties I am, by training and experience, best able to perform."

Bills affecting labor, child welfare and immigration will find Mrs. O'Day an alert, tireless and valuable worker. The last 15 years of her life have been devoted to the exhaustive preliminaries that formulated many of them.

The slum dweller, the lonely foreigner, the sweat shop worker and the underprivileged child and parent—these inhabitants of another world—have been labored for unceasingly by Mrs. O'Day since her husband's death in 1916. Thus, she earned the right to a seat in Congress.

Feminism? Mrs. O'Day, an extremely feminine person, thinks it can be carried to extremes. Her slender, tapering fingers toyed with a long, white, beaded neck chain as she elucidated her position.

"There is too much legislation needed for poor mothers, undernourished children and overworked factory girls, to consider seriously, the blind insistence of 'equal rights,'" she declared. "It is childish for anyone not to recognize that women never were, and never can be biologically man's equal—suited to equally hard and exhausting labor. Forcing such an issue is a waste of talent and energy.

Important Work for Women.

"There is important work in the world for women to do—work they can handle more understandingly and more efficiently than men. Even in Congress, there are tasks to which the peculiar talents and experience of women can be applied with notable effect. Back of practically every major piece of social legislation can be found the force of feminine ideas and efforts. It is just that women should get down to fundamentals and analyze feminism for what it is worth."

A member of the New York State Board of Social Welfare for years, Mrs. O'Day has been delegated to head one major social survey after another. One of her most interesting assignments was heading a subcommittee in the stupendous minimum wage investigation report. Her group first probed into labor conditions in the laundry industry, then in the candy industry.

Here they found the abuse of "learners" hired for as low as $3 a week, all of whom were fired when they had served their apprenticeship. New "learners" were hired to take their places. Hitting upon the idea of publishing a white list of unoffending industries, Mrs. O'Day's committee succeeded in raising the salaries of even the "learners" to $14 a week.

It was a natural step for Mrs. O'Day from social service into practical politics. With a wide acquaintanceship throughout the entire State, she was found invaluable as an organizer for the Democratic Party. With no personal political ambitions, she assisted many another Democratic candidate to achieve success.

People Thinking Constructively.

"Politics," said Mrs. O'Day, "provides the only opportunity today to put constructive ideas into practice. Since the depression, the people who pay the taxes refuse to be hoodwinked by fancy phrases and empty promises. Politics as a result has simmered down to its original meaning—the science of government. Those who take office today know they have to be careful as well as efficient. They can not help but feel the concentration of aroused public attention upon their acts. People are thinking more constructively today than ever before."

Mrs. O'Day recounted an experience she had this week as a guest speaker at Yale University. Following her talk, she took part in a round table discussion of politics and government.

"Every young man in the group was avidly interested in politics," she said. "They were concerned, not so much with what they could get out of it, as to what they could contribute to it as citizens. This interest in politics is widespread among college students throughout the Nation. They are bringing to politics much of the idealism lost during past years."

Her own campaign in New York? It was thrilling, a barrel of fun, and a real education, she declared. She believed every woman ought to go through one, either in behalf of a friend or herself.

"If it didn't do anything else, it would test a campaigner's sportsmanship," she said. "That is one field where I agree women should develop and enjoy equal rights."

Eager to Start Work.

Mrs. D'Day is looking forward to her experience in Washington, both from a legislative and social angle. She has made only infrequent and brief visits to Washington in the past. At these times she was a guest either at the White House or in the home of close friends.

"I can not say that I am well acquainted with the city of Washington. But I hope to learn my way around soon," she said. She is tentatively considering taking a furnished apartment here, suggested by a friend, for the duration of her first session.

She will attend Mrs. Roosevelt's costume party for the newspaper women December 8.

"I received an invitation," she said, "and I wouldn't miss it for the world. It should be great fun, as are all Mrs. Roosevelt's parties. She is the ideal hostess."

Extremely smart in appearance, Mrs. O'Day bids fair to be a veritable style chart for dress-conscious Washingtonians. Her early training as an artist in Paris and Munich no doubt has aided her in achieving the ultimate in personal chic. Black is one of her favorite colors and she wears it effectively. Her black hair is brushed back slickly, and her hats tilt framelike above her large blue eyes.

When Mrs. O'Day establishes her Washington residence, she will be joined by her attractive 23-year-old daughter, Elia, who, with a penchant for child health clinics and settlement work, gives promise of living as active a life as her mother.

A chance to work for the underprivileged is the big opportunity public life offers to women, says Mrs. Caroline O'Day, new member of the feminine contingent in Congress.

Children's Sleep Reactions Studied

Belief Evening Exercise Is Harmful Disputed.

The person who forgoes exercise in the evening because he believes it interferes with his sleep is mistaken. Neither exercise nor baths, whether hot or cold, have any noticeable effect on slumber, Dr. Glenville Giddings, of Georgia, has learned after studying 150,000 hours of children's sleep.

The study, conducted at an industrial school in the north Georgia mountains, showed that children who received boxes of food from parents slept less soundly than those who received only the boarding school's fare.

Special electric instruments were used to record the slumber reactions.

Lips Demand A Good Cream During Winter

By Frances Mangum.

LIPS HAVE long been lauded as the most expressive feature of the face—next to the eyes. One poet in singing of his heroine declared her soul was in her eyes, but her heart was on her lips. Others have blessed their ladies with lips, "a fair coral," and still others have placed rosebuds there.

The first step toward guarding the beauty of the lips in winter lies in a good cream and lip pomade. Each night before retiring it is a matter of major importance to remove all vestiges of rouge.

Many women who are scrupulous about cleansing their faces are careless about leaving a slight coating on the lips.

When they wash their faces or use a cleansing cream they should pay special attention to see that all rouge is removed. Then they should apply a slight dab of rich tissue cream and rub this gently in.

This night care of the lips minimizes the daytime troubles. All you will need now is a pomade to keep your lips normally smooth. Many cosmetic houses put out such pomades which serve a double purpose. While they are protecting the lips from chapping they aid in keeping on the lipstick. You apply a thin coating before you put on your lipstick. Remove any surplus with a soft tissue.

This BUSINESS of LIVING

"Crabbed Age and Youth Should Never Dwell Together," Says Reader.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: May I give my views on the subject of a young woman marrying an old man? The old saying, "Crabbed age and youth should never dwell together," is true, as age and youth see life through different glasses.

• • • •

A young woman is throwing her life away, in my estimation, in marrying an old man on the brink of eternity, and while she may pity him, and some say "Pity is akin to love," it is not true. Youth naturally calls to youth, and speaks the same language.

• • • • •

For a young woman to marry an old man is to isolate herself from all that is normal. To wheel an aged person around in a wheelchair, and to live in an atmosphere of medicine and hospitals, is depressing, and all old persons turn a home into a hospital. D. D.

Generality Questioned.

DEAR D. D.: In considering the phenomenon of youth marrying age, as with all other human phenomena, it is seldom sufficient to dispose of the subject with a few sweeping generalities.

• • • •

Granted that all you say may be true, in a general way, still, in certain specific instances, there may be ameliorating circumstances which invest the bond with some saving grace. Even then, it is very difficult for a commentator not completely informed on the psychological, social and economic backgrounds of the contracting parties, to reach any hard and fast conclusions.

• • • •

There is something to be said on both sides of the question, as I indicated in my discussion of just such a case, cited in this column last Friday. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write to her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Exhibit of Handiwork By Blind Italians Ends

An exhibit of handiwork by blind Italians which has been on display at the Mayflower Hotel for the last week closed last night. Mrs. Mary Raiola, who is in charge of the exhibit, will return in January to carry on the work and to obtain scholarships for blind Americans at the Institute Colosimo, founded by Donna Tommasina Colosimo, prominent Italian social leader, in memory of her son.

Darkest Africa, in its stride toward the light, is demanding so many telephones there are not enough instruments to go 'round. Small towns in the interior are begging for them.

French Horn Once Held Unfit For Orchestra Duty

Human Quality Makes It Vastly Different From Other Brasses.

The tenth of 14 articles on the instruments of the orchestra is presented today.

THE FRENCH HORN is one of the most valuable and difficult wind instruments in the orchestra. It has a slender conical tube wound round in coils upon itself, and consists of four principal parts—the body, the crooks, the mouthpiece and the slides.

The body is the main tube, the crooks are interchangable spiral tubes of varying length which alter the pitch and key of the instrument; the mouthpiece is different from other wind instruments in that it is funnel-shaped and not cup-shaped.

The slides are pairs of sliding tubes by means of which the instrument may be tuned.

The horn is also equipped with three valves to be operated by the player in producing the various tones in the scale.

The tone of the horn is mellow, rich and sonorous and is distinguished at the same time by a certain human quality which is vastly different from all the other members of the brass section.

The origin of the horn must be sought in prehistoric times, when, by breaking off the tip of a short animal horn, one or at best two notes were obtained. This was undoubtedly the origin of the horn that was developed later and used in the symphony orchestra. It seems strange to think the horn was opposed at first, for now it is heard in nearly every orchestral piece. Yet when it first entered the orchestra it was considered coarse and unfit to mingle with the more delicate violins and oboes.

Muted horn tones are used freely to picture evil, as in "Faust," or in the second act of "Gotterdammerung," when Siegfried is killed. Massenet found a clever use for muted horns when he let them represent the cracked village bell in the Angelus movement of his "Scenes Pittoresques."

The National Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Dr. Hans Kindler, will give four children's concerts, sponsored by The Washington Post, on the following schedule: December 3, McKinley High School; December 4, Eastern, and December 10, Armcember 4, Western; December 7, strong High School.

Jingoism Held Menace to Art

Ford, English Writer, Sees Danger to All Forms in Trend.

THE NATIONALISTIC trend among nations today is endangering all forms of art, declared Ford Madox Ford, English writer, when he arrived in New York a few days ago from France, where he has lived for a number of years.

"American artists by attempting to boycott French art, for example, would be cutting their own throats," Mr. Ford said. "All jingoism is fatal when it comes to art. European musicians fought against jazz, but it became popular all over Europe and now they profit by it themselves. So it is with art. If you shut out any other nation's art, you're going to hurt your own. American art has been scandalously neglected, but any artist is nearer to any other artist than to his countrymen."

The public has an instinctive dislike for art, Mr. Ford believes.

"They don't want to read, they don't want to buy pictures, they don't want to go to concerts," he said. "To force them to do these things you must bring together the best from everywhere so that they will get a taste for it."

League Board Will Discuss Tax Reforms

What Today Means

Sagittarius.

IF NOVEMBER 28 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to 12:15 p. m., from 3:15 to 5:15 p. m. and from 7:15 to 9:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 8:15 to 10:15 a. m., from 12:15 to 2:15 p. m. and from 9:15 to 11:15 p. m.

This November 28 will possibly prove rather trying on a great many people's dispositions, so it is advisable that you govern yours so it will be calm and good natured. Business differences may come up, but can be readily adjusted if you are diplomatic. Communications are likely to be received, which, if properly attended to, will result probably in a satisfactory sum of money.

It might be advisable not to try to transact any financial matter through a third party, if it is possible for you to attend to it yourself. Direct dealings on this date may be productive of better results. Social activities should enable you to gain in popularity and enable you to better appreciate the fine qualities possessed by one you may have been inclined to underrate.

Married and engaged couples, as well as those expecting to receive a proposal or about to make one, should avoid doing anything that might make them appear inclined to be penurious. An exhibition of stinginess has killed many a love affair.

If a woman and November 28 is your birthday, your ability to appreciate things of artistic worth and cleverness in creating artistic arrangements should enable you to make money. Designing, sketching, interior decorating and professional shopping are lines adaptable for one of your discernment. It might be good judgment not to allow friends of a decidedly Bohemian tendency to lead you to be unconventional.

You are the type that registers best by maintaining personal dignity. Money will probably solve a great many of your problems and enable you to see some of your ambitions realized. Marriage should be helpful in fulfilling many of your day dreams.

The child born on November 28, generally, when it reaches its teens, displays a great deal of originality in a constructive way. A professional career might be best for this child, although it is not essential for its ultimate success in life.

If a man and November 28 is your birthday, your skill in planning and talent to be able to "put things over" should enable you to accomplish whatever you set out to do. Promoting, inventing, writing, painting, lecturing or preaching are some of the worth while things you might find to be the right vehicle for your success. Married life should bring happiness as well as contentment.

Costume Gems Modish as Demand Grows For Necklaces and Bracelets to Match

Good Copies of Old Jewelry on Market at Reasonable Prices; Pearls Worn With Black in Best of Taste.

COSTUME jewelry is becoming more and more individual as the demand increases for necklaces and bracelets to match. In the range from $10 to $20, some really good copies of old jewelry can be purchased, and some very interesting gold necklaces are to be found. As the winter advances, there will be a greater demand for good gold jewelry—not only for hat and gown decoration, but necklaces to finish round necks and to wear flat, 16-inch, over high-necked daytime dresses.

Rhinestones with simulated emeralds and rubies and sapphires are arranged in necklaces, clips, bracelets and earring sets. Some of the necklaces can be unclasped in sections and worn as bracelets, and pendants detached and used as pins.

Pearls are worn with black. There is nothing more flattering or in better taste. Sweaters and tweeds require a one or two strand pearl choker; afternoon gowns require 14-inch; 16-inch, 32-inch and longer ropes of pearls are seen on women who wear them with distinction. Two, three and four rows of large uniform pearls are smart close to the throat with high-neck dresses. With a V-neck, pearls are very smart, giving a beautiful neckline and enhancing the skin and brilliancy of the eyes. These individual types usually wear largish hats, framing their faces gracefully and presenting an ensemble distinguished and elegant. There are too few of these women, who have the courage, the manner and the independence to dress their type, and yet how many beautiful women might so easily adopt this manner of dressing.

Barbaric Trend in Jewels.

Necklaces with twin bracelets to match are a new note in the winter jewelry. The set shown in the illustration at left are of black and silver and typify the new barbaric trend in costume jewelry.

There is a catalin novelty looking exactly like Nagasaki tortoise and worked as cleverly. It is made into a delicate chain of simulated tortoise shell links, choker size, with two bracelets to match.

Catalin also disguises itself in honey amber bracelets and clips with finely powdered gold dust imprisoned in the center. The effect in the sunlight is unbelievably beautiful. Their next creation will be Tibetan lapis, the unpolished gold-flecked irregular stones, so popular in India and so expensive. Catalin looks very like lapis, and, with the flecks of gold, it will bring this unusual and colorful necklace and bracelets within the reach of the average woman. Jade is also finely simulated in catalin.

The jewelry of the Orient is becoming more and more interesting. Earrings composed of a lotus bud to fit the lobe of the ear are made quite devastatingly lovely by the adaptation of an early Indian custom. From tiny silver chains, six exquisitely toned tiny silver bells are suspended, and when the graceful head of the wearer moves ever so slightly, music as faint and fey-like as if it were from the tiny harps of the "little people," is heard.

Bangles With Charms Worn.

Bangles with charms are getting to be as common here as in the Orient.

North Africa, Persia, Russia, truly Oriental as well as India, are contributing motifs and ideas for modern femininity.

There are fabric combinations of velvet, silk, satin and wool, worked with gold, silver, wood and pearl beads, that are very decorative worn flat on round necks in the Egyptian manner, and over long Bernhardt-like sleeves as a wrist decoration. French women consider a small wrist a mark of great beauty and the woman who possesses one always wears her sleeves very long, skin-tight, with attention centered on them by unusual and very amusing or very valuable bracelets.

Scented rings were worn in old Italian days, only the Borgias filled theirs with poison. Any jeweler would be glad to make such a scented ring for you, if you were to ask him. Take an old-fashioned seal ring and reset it on the top of a tiny box. Fill it with scented powder or even a very fine oil and see what happens.

How to Keep Well

Pyorrhea.

WITHIN recent years our attention has been called rather sharply to the importance of mouth hygiene as related to systemic disease and to one of the all too common disease processes that may attack the teeth—pyorrhea alveolaris.

In the normal jaw the spaces between the teeth are partly filled by projections of the gum. The free edges of these projections lie in contact with the necks of the teeth and the projecting gum tissue thins out to a layer that is prolonged and blends just below the surface with the firm tissues covering the teeth. Whenever these gum projections become inflamed, appear swollen and are redder than normal, we usually suspect the beginning of pyorrhea.

The first symptoms may be a feeling of soreness in the gums or bleeding after the teeth are brushed. Because the thin gum area is so easily damaged, inflammation readily extends to the tooth itself, followed by solution and disintegration of the tooth structure. Bacteria are harbored in the pockets thus created and pus may be present. Tarter aggravates the condition. As the pockets become deeper the teeth loosen and the infection may spread to the tongue, tonsils and other structures of the mouth and throat. In some cases the gum recedes until the roots of the teeth are exposed.

No single bacillus has been identified as the exact cause of pyorrhea. Careful bacteriological examinations have shown that many organisms are present, and streptococci and staphylococci are often found in the infected areas.

Conservative treatment implies that all the tartar will be removed and that the pockets already formed will be thoroughly sterilized by proper means. Fairly strong chemicals will be required in some cases to stimulate healing. The patient may be instructed to massage the gum with a glycerine and tannic acid mixture, later taking a fairly strong salt solution (one teaspoonful to a glass of water). In carrying out this procedure a piece of soft muslin may be wrapped about the finger and the gums rubbed briskly. The direction of the massage must be toward the teeth, as this aids in emptying the pockets. Zinc chloride or zinc sulphate (one grain to an ounce of water) will assist in relieving inflammation, and must be applied cautiously by means of a sterile cotton applicator.

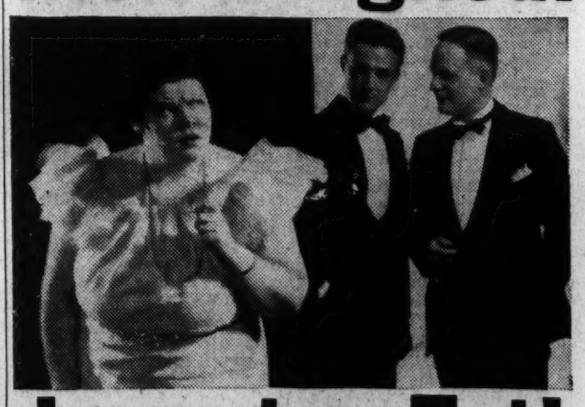
Men Laughed!



I was too Fat!

Wherever I went . . . whenever I tried to act and be like other girls my age . . . men laughed, said unkind things behind my back, avoided me as they would a plague. At dances I sat alone or danced with men who were impossible. On dates, I felt that everyone was being charitable by having me along.

Finally a friend told me about Marmola—how it contains the right amount of a simple corrective for abnormal obesity that is known and recommended by physicians the world over.

It sounded too easy. But I took Marmola exactly as directed—4 tablets a day—and imagine my astonishment to find myself actually getting thin! Without exercising, dieting, or draining my system with drastic purgatives! Now I'm as slender as a debutante, and so full of pep I seem like a different person.

If thousands who have reduced the Marmola way were to take you into their confidence, they might well tell you this and similar experiences. Everything they ate "seemed to go to fat." Do you know why? Physicians say abnormal obesity is caused by the lack of an important element which the body normally supplies. Marmola provides one such element in a perfectly natural way, assisting the body to function in the reduction of excess fat. The excess fat simply slips away, revealing the trim and slender figure underneath.

Since 1907, more than 20 million packages of Marmola have been purchased. Could any better recommendation be had? And it is put up by one of the leading medical laboratories in America. Start today! You will soon experience Marmola's benefits. When you have gone far enough, stop taking Marmola. And you will bless the day when you first discovered this marvelous reducing agent! Marmola is on sale by all dealers—from coast to coast.

New Formula Gives the Skin Natural Color

Treatment Devised by English Woman After Long Research.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

LAURELS go to a young English woman who has devised a new skin treatment. Several years ago she ransacked the Devonshire countryside in search of old formulas from which the country maidens prepare their cosmetics. With untiring effort she searched and tested until she found what she believes are the essentials for a clear, smooth skin. With these formulas she and her expert chemist set to work to produce the cosmetics that recently swept London off its conservative feet, and that are now arousing America to a high pitch of enthusiasm.

Her first drastic departure from traditional trends is a preparation which brings the natural color to your cheeks. Very few women, she believes, ever succeed entirely in selecting the perfectly harmonizing rouge. No matter what colors they choose, these fail to adapt themselves to various lighting effects, changes of costume and the subtle natural changes of skin tone.

So, from the first, rouge was out of her complexion picture. She supplies the need with a complexion tonic, a deep rose tinted fluid that you pat over the skin. English women, she says, use it over the entire face because they like the ruddy, healthy glow it gives. American women, however, prefer it only for their cheeks and in some cases the tips of their chins.

For a brief moment after you pat it on, there's no change, and then slowly the color begins to rise and your cheeks literally glow. To provide for those days when you're so weary and fatigued a fairy godmother herself would have difficulty planting roses in your cheeks; the liquid gives from its own tint a slight blush. Generally this isn't required. The color rises easily and remains. You apply this in the morning before you leave home—and it stays until evening when, if you choose, you remove it with her fine cleansing cream.

This cream is as soft and satiny in texture as a cream could be, and is faintly, alluringly scented with gardenia. It has the faculty of not only cleansing but slightly stimulating at the same time. There is also a delicately fragrant skin tonic, even more stimulating, and fine for cutting that bit of cream which tissues fail to remove. A nourishing cream is warranted to be one in a million for improving the skin texture, and softening those hard, scaly skins which suffer from dryness, and chap and roughen so easily in winter.

For the time being, as an introductory gesture, you'll be given a $1.50 size of the complexion tonic with any purchase in this new line. The powders packaged in lovely white silk boxes, wear the insignia of the house, a white gardenia, on the top. The perfume, an exact fragrance of the abundantly fragrant flower itself, comes in attractive curiously shaped cubicle bottles put up in silk boxes tightly covered with sheeny cellophane.

Canary Circus Performers.

Meet Dizzy, Lady Blackhead, Goldie, Daffy, and Blondie. They are the canary team starring in the canary circus featured this week in a downtown store.

The man on the flying trapeze might learn a trick or two from Blondie, a most amazing little platinum blonde. With her nimble feet she goes skippety-skip up a dangerously tilted ladder, and once arrived at the end, without so much as a quiver of her fluffy tail feathers, she stands poised on one foot, and then calmly turns and skips back down again. Before you know it, Blondie is off again. This time she is scaling the perilous heights of her specially constructed 2-foot tree.

In an astonishing ferris-wheel act, the whole team rides the dizzy rounds both backward and forward—and with never the bat of an eye.

Little Fellow, the leading tenor, holds you spellbound with glorious warbles from its golden throat. A master of ceremonies conducts the circus and tells all about canaries in between acts, picks up Little Fellow's cage and says, "Sing, Little Fellow. Some more, some more." Little Fellow cocks its head to one side, flips its wings in a bow and chirps with melodious fervor.

The circus is here to prove what you can do with a good canary if you feed it and care for it properly. Along the side lines are other canaries, well bred birds from the same family tree as the professionals. During the exhibition these are especially and moderately priced for those who want a lively songster.

The canary diet featured at the display includes a scientifically prepared seed food, a song restorer, a vitamin food to furnish sunshine, a color and pepper food, and for dessert, a honey roll. Other items are a bird gravel which allows the canary to file its claws, and a sanitary drinking and seed cup cleaner. All in all, you come here and see an extraordinary circus and leave with a real education on canaries.

Warm Football Robes.

You feel like a cross between an Eskimo and a hot dog by time you've zipped your lower half into the football robes featured at a local shop.

It's a very simple procedure. Feet first, in you go. Hold one side with left hand, and zip with the right, and there you are swathed in a warm wooly robe that says nay to those cold penetrating winds which hover around stadiums.

Outside the robes are very Scottish in bright green and red, tan and brown, and red and blue plaids. Inside they redeem themselves with a conservative mingled paisley.

LUXURY

By MARYSE RUTLEDGE

Richard Crane, young advertising man, on borrowed money, unexpectedly joins his beautiful wife, Jocelyn, in Paris. As dependent guest of the fashionable Oliver Keenes, she has innocently become involved in a network of intrigue.

Jocelyn has lost half a pearl necklace loaned her by Mary Derby, in love with Dick. When Mary cables for the pearls, intending to sell them and save Dick's failing business, Jocelyn sends a fine reproduction.

To replace the necklace she has posed for Ogden Temple, multimillionaire. She confesses the intrigues which have led to the loss of the necklace and her posing for Temple. Dick demands the return of the money as a condition of their going on together. He is sailing the next day and will give her up to the moment the boat train leaves to choose between himself and Ogden Temple.

Misunderstanding her hesitation, hurt and angry, he leaves for another hotel.

FOR uncounted time after the door had shut upon Dick, Jocelyn sat motionless in the hateful luxury of a bedroom where still echoed his parting words—"Either that money goes back, or I'm through!" Through with their marriage, their love. Through with her.

Despairingly, she tried to think. She knew Dick so well. Knew herself so well. The very integrity that had bound them together in the beginning could separate them now. On one side Mary Derby, on the other Ogden Temple, tangled into this pattern that involved a stronghold of faith.

"I don't know what to do!" Jocelyn moaned aloud to the June brightness and hush in the room where broken things seemed scattered at her feet.

Ollie found her flattened against silk covers and rumpled pillows when softly he opened the door and tiptoed in. "I knocked, but you didn't answer—" he began. "You poor kid!" With awkward tenderness he sat on the edge of the bed. For Ollie had seen Dick Crane streak blindly through the hall with his valise.

"What time is it?"

"About 7."

Dick Hadn't Called.

Seven o'clock and Dick hadn't let her know where he was.

"Would you like a bite of dinner?" Ollie anxiously suggested.

"No thanks," she said so sweetly, so sadly, shaking her head, that Ollie's heart turned over.

But already he had blurred out of Jocelyn's mind. She felt she couldn't stay here another moment. The mere idea of Rita, sleek in her blacks and whites, released a slow lashing fury. It was Rita who had brought Dick to Temple's that morning. If she saw Rita, she would say things, do things.

She was not herself tonight. How could she be? Feverishly, impatiently, she wanted to get rid of that horrible money that had driven Dick away.

"Where are you going, Lynn?" Ollie asked quite sharply for him.

Jocelyn, usually so poised, was pulling a hat on, snatching at a coat, at the bag in which, had he but known it, $2,000 lay. To see her in such an agitated state shook Ollie out every familiar groove. For a frantic instant he feared she might be heading for suicide.

"Where are you going?" he repeated, for she paid no attention to him. He started after her as she reached the door. "Listen, Lynn, don't do anything foolish. Let me——"

Message for Dick.

"I'm going out," she flung over her shoulder. Then another thought came to her. "Ollie, you can do something for me. Stay here until I come back. And if—oh, if Dick does telephone, tell him it's all right." Her voice was solemn, urgent. The door of the suite slammed, and she was gone.

The great Dane rose first as she entered the stately salon at the chateau. Ogden Temple was almost as swiftly to his feet, his big shoulders blocked in a dinner jacket of Venetian purple. As if she were a dream, indeed, he stared at her.

"I had to see you," Jocelyn faltered.

"I am honored," he said gravely. "A bit of chartreuse, perhaps? A favorite monastery of mine supplies me from their private stock. A cigarette?" He bent over the tray by his chair, his profile like a cliff of ledges and fissures.

"I can't stay," Jocelyn said a bit breathlessly. And, to prove the urgency, she added—"I have a taxi waiting—"

Temple turned to look at her a little more fixedly. Hardly seeming to bend, he touched the carved arm of his winged chair. With one of his wonderfully young smiles, he explained —"I'm something of an electrician at odd moments." There was an almost childish pride in his tone. "I may have spoiled a work of art, but this bell is very convenient." He turned to the man who had appeared in answer to his ring—"Send Madame's taxi away."

Her Plan Announced.

"Please—I must go——"

He stilled her protests. "I shall take you back to Paaris, of course."

With a hopeless feeling, Jocelyn said in a small voice—"You may not want to. I've come to give you this." With a quick dip into her bag, she held out the flap of bills. In the silence, her eyes fastened themselves as if hypnotized on the black pearl that seemed to drowse on his shirt front.

"Your husband?" He sounded extraordinarily gentle.

Jocelyn said steadily—"Yes. He has made my giving this back to you a condition—of our going on together."

"So that is the way he loves you! Conditions!" His deep rumbling contempt brought Jocelyn's head up.

"I am sailing home with him tomorrow."

Temple took the bills from her cold fingers. Tossed them on the table. "Does he know you came here tonight?"

"No one does." It slipped out under the bluer flame of his eyes. She went on as if he were dragging it from her. "He left this afternoon after a—discussion. The only way I can do now is to meet him at the boat train tomorrow morning and —tell him I brought this back to you."

"And you still think when you have done that, he will want you to go with him?"

"I'm going," was all Jocelyn could answer.

After a pause, Temple said—"I seem to ask nothing but favors of you. Presently you will not be here. Before we leave, will you come with me to my jewel room? I wish——" his deep voice carried her on its undercurrents, "—to look one last time at that most perfect jewel which I may not keep in my collection." He bowed his great head.

A step, and they were in the room of black velvet where, wakened to a thousand fires on their pedestals and shelves, the jewels seemed regally to spring up, the pearls to uncoil.

"What I want, I hold. What I hold, I have." Temple's roughened voice whirled her around. He towered above her, a giant in his Venetian purple jacket. "My prize jewel —do you think I'll let you go back to a man who bargains?"

"What do you mean? You're insane!" Jocelyn flew to the door, fear spreading now through all her brain and body.

Easily he caught her back. "I'm saving you, my dear, from yourself, and for myself." He sounded like a big bell.

Her throat closed on her panic. Only a whisper came. "You're not going to keep me here?"

"Behind those curtains," he pointed, "is a small apartment where I sleep sometimes to be near my beautiful jewels. You'll be quite comfortable there—until the boat train has gone and the boat has sailed." Calmly he put her from him and bulked at the door as Jocelyn, in a nightmare, flung herself at him, beating at his mountainous height.

A Tasty Menu With Leftover Fowl Devised

Disguised Turkey Makes Dish Suitable to Serve Guests.

By Dorothea Duncan.

IF YOU ARE having a turkey dinner tomorrow, the question about what to do with leftovers is almost certain to arise. Even if all the large portions have been eaten, there will certainly be small pieces clining to the skeleton, the neck and possibly the wings. If the bird has been demolished down to the bones, even those may be cooked and the juice extracted for a delicious soup.

A turkey should be good for two meals at least, and after the choicest parts have been eaten, there are many ways of transforming the neglected morsels into attractive dishes.

Some families feel the white meat is the choicest, and therefore this part is eaten first. This leaves a substantial amount untouched. If this is the case in your family, the remaining turkey, which is solely dark meat, may be warmed over in such a way to present a meat for Friday or Saturday that has an entirely different character. Warm the turkey over in the following manner.

Warmed-Over Turkey.

Use the drumsticks and the wings and take off all the remaining meat on the breast. Also use any pieces that may have remained on the platter when the turkey was first served. Disjoint the back piece, called the rump, splitting it down the back and cutting each piece in two, thus making four pieces of the back. Do not cut the meat from the bones. Place all the pieces in a kettle, add three tablespoons of the stuffing and any gravy that may have been left from the roast. Add water to half the height of the turkey in the kettle, cover the kettle tightly, and set it where it will come to a boil, then reduce the heat and simmer at least 45 minutes, stirring often, adding more water if it should seem necessary. There should be just enough water at the last to keep the turkey from sticking to the kettle. The turkey should stew long enough to warm it thoroughly, but not long enough to cause the meat to fall from the bones. Season with salt and pepper. The large bony part consisting of breast bone and ribs, is used only for soup.

The following menu has been planned to provide for the leftover turkey, and the meat has been treated with just enough imagination and disguise, so that it will make a suitable and inexpensive dish for a dinner to which guests have been invited.

Dinner Menu.

Tomato bouillon with whipped cream
Croutons
Ripe Olives Pickled Limes
Turkey Tetrazzini
Cauliflower Blossoms
Four-Leaf Clover Rolls
Raspberry Bavarian Cream
Coffee

1 cup medium white sauce
1 cup cooked turkey, cut in thin strips
½ cup cooked spaghetti, cut in half-inch pieces
½ cup mushroom caps, sliced and sauted in butter
1-3 cup grated Parmesan cheese
¾ cup buttered cracker crumbs.

Season sauce with celery salt. Bring to boiling point and add turkey, spaghetti and mushrooms. Fill buttered ramekin dishes with mixture, sprinkle with cheese and crumbs, and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) until crumbs are brown.

Cut cauliflower head into sections the right size for individual servings. Cook in boiling water, adding salt to water just before cauliflower is quite cooked. Drain and place each serving on platter and cover with melted butter and garnish with paprika and finely chopped parsley.

Raspberry Bavarian Cream.

1 package gelatin (raspberry flavor)
1 cup raspberry juice and cold water
4 tablespoons sugar
1 cup boiling water
½ cup heavy cream
1 cup raspberries, crushed and drained.

Canned or frozen raspberries may be used.

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add raspberry juice and cold water. Chill until cold and syrupy. Fold in cream, whipped only until thick and shiny, but not stiff. Add sugar to berries. Fold into gelatin mixture. Chill until slightly thickened. Turn into mold. Chill until firm. Unmold and serve. Serves six.

Fixed Upkeep Of Md. Roads By State Urged

Prince Georges Chamber Wants Temporary Act Made Permanent.

Permanent maintenance of all roads by the Maryland State Roads Commission will be sought by the Prince Georges Chamber of Commerce, it was decided at a meeting of the chamber Monday night in the District Metropolitan Building at Hyattsville.

Upon motion of W. F. Mulligan, vice president of the chamber and chairman of its roads committee, the body went on record as favoring making permanent the temporary act of the last Legislature providing for the maintenance of town and county roads by the State. The act expires July 1, 1935, it was explained.

Mulligan said that while the incorporated towns of Prince Georges County may not obtain quite as much from the State roads Commission for their streets as under the old county road rebate law, they get nearly as much. He pointed out that most of the money is expended by the roads commission where the traffic is heaviest and in a more judicious manner than was the case under the former set-up. There is no county road tax under the State plan, he added.

Much Work Completed.

A report from E. G. Duncan, resident engineer for the State roads commission, was read, showing that much work had been completed in the county since the commission took over all road work.

The chamber voted to have the roads committee learn the attitude of the incorporated towns of the county as to the distribution of money under the present road law before any proposed legislation on the subject is suggested, following talks by Dr. H. T. Willis, Mayor of Hyattsville, and C. D. Anderson, secretary of the chamber and member of the Hyattsville Town Council.

Improvement of Roosevelt avenue in the Seat Pleasant District again was urged by the chamber. Mulligan said the committee had called on Maj. Harry D. Williar, jr., chief engineer of the State roads commission, who assured the committee of his cooperation. The county commissioners will be asked to recommend the work, it was decided.

To Install Danger Signal.

It was announced the State roads commission will install a danger signal on Rhode Island avenue at the Johnson avenue intersection, which has been the scene of several automobile tragedies, and will prohibit parking on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard at the intersection of Metzerott road, in Berwyn, another dangerous crossing.

Progress was reported, in the better housing campaign, by Vincent L. Tompkins, jr., general chairman o fthe committee appointed by the chamber. He announced that banks and loan associations that operate in the county are making or are ready to make loans under the housing plan. Valuable publicity has been given the campaign by newspapers, motion picture theaters and other agencies, he said.

Subchairmen will be named to take charge of the drive in various points in the county, Tompkins announced. Thomas E. Jones was named subchairman for Bradbury Heights, Seat Pleasant and Capitol Heights. William Bowie, assistant treasurer of the Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co., Hyattsville, was appointed treasurer of the county campaign, and Morris E. Anglin was named chairman of a special publicity committee.

It was announced a meeting of the chamber's municipal consolidation committee would be held in the office of Walter L. Green, chairman, December 5, at 7:30 p. m. ,to consider plans in the movement to unite communities in this section.

Detroit Depositors To Get $84,000,000

Detroit, Nov. 27 (AP).—Announcement was made tday that a 20 per cent pay-ff to depositors of the closed First National Bank, Detroit, would start tomorrow. The total amount involved is $84,000,000.

Accounts of $300 and less, numbering 560,000, are to be paid in full. Waivers of up to 10 per cent of their shares of the new pay-off have been signed by a sufficient number of large depositors to make this possible, W. J. McAneeney, chairman of a depositors' committee which has been soliciting such pledges, said today.

The pay-off has been held up while this solicitation was in progress, in accordance with a stipulation made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in agreeing to lend $90,000,000 for the pay-off and other purposes.

When this pay-off is completed, First National depositors will have received 70 per cent of their accounts. Tentative plans are under way for organization of a liquidation corporation to take over remaining assets of the bank.

Crippled Veterans Stage Demonstration in Paris

Paris, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—One hundred mobile guards and 200 police reinforcements were rushed from their posts tonight when 300 crippled war veterans marched upon the Place de l'Opera, in the center of Paris, comfortably sprawled themselves in the middle of the boulevard and shouted, "Pensions for the crippled."

The veterans disrupted traffic. Theaters were disgorging crowds as the men took up their positions around 11 p. m. They intended to remain until midnight.

Raymond Morders, McKinley High School senior, and Kimball Scribner, a junior at Western High School, each 17 years old, two of the youngest parachute jumpers in the neighborhood, about to step up a few thousand feet above the Washington-Hoover Airport for a jump to boost their records with the Washington Parachute Club.

Two Students Received Parents' Consent After Arguing 2 Years.

"Aw, gee, Ma . . . why d'ya have to spoil a fellow's fun? Nobody ever gets hurt jumping with a 'chute."

In these words, more or less, did two 15-year-old Washington boys argue for two years with their parents. And, finally, the parents gave in.

Today, at 17, they are as casual about stepping out of a plane at 4,000 feet for a "delayed" jump as most of their elders are about stepping off a curbstone.

Kimball Scribner and Raymond Morders, the first a junior at Western High School and the second a senior at McKinley, are the youngest members of the Washington Parachute Club.

Veteran Barnstormers.

Veterans of barnstorming junkets in Baltimore, Roanoke, Lynchburg, Martinsburg and other towns, they are now impatiently awaiting their eighteenth birthdays when they will be eligible for their Federal licenses as 'chute riggers.

When lads of 15 they got to know Eddie Butler, a professional jumper, whose headquarters are in the No. 2 hangar at the Washington-Hoover airport and they "broke in" by helping pack and repair the parachutes used by the pilots. When, at long last, they were able to produce signed documents from their families exonerating the airport of any responsibility in case of accident, they took their first jumps. And today it's a routine experience for them to be strung up on telephone wires or in the branches of a tree.

As members of the club they are "on call" for jumping exhibitions, fees collected being turned into the treasury. The association's funds were used to purchase a plane some time ago, but it gradually disintegrated and has since been sold for parts.

Jump Just for Fun.

Both Scribner and Morders are taking all the technical courses they can to equip themselves for a higher education in the theory of aeronautics. Just where they will study has not yet been decided.

"Oh, no," they said when asked whether they were going to continue jumping as a career, "this is just for fun. We're going on to real flying as soon as we can."

Revise, Mr. Tarkington, that book of yours called "Seventeen." It's out of date.

Labor Department Asks Increased Appropriation

Secretary Perkins said yesterday she would ask an increased appropriation for the Labor Department next year, the Associate Press reported.

"This is the only starved department," she said.

The Department, she pointed out, served 30,000,000 wage earners, but never had more than $13,500,000 a year, the amount of this year's appropriation. She did not specify how large an increase she would ask.

however, Dr. Armstrong has been working on that disease. His present illness has no apparent connection with it. Recently he discovered a new virus that seems to cause one variety of encephalitis, different from the initial virus discovered in St. Louis.

Nearly Lost Life.

So far as is known, he was not experimenting upon himself, making himself a "human guinea pig," in his sleeping sickness studies. But other Public Health Service doctors have done this more than once in the past, sometimes without informing their colleagues.

Dr. Armstrong was one of the first to contract psittacosis in the early days of experimentation with this disease, and came near losing his life. From his blood was made some of the convalescent serum used in saving the lives of many other psittacosis victims, including Mrs. William E. Borah, wife of the Senator from Idaho.

He also was seriously ill of dengue fever during experiments with it.

Dr. Armstrong joined the service in 1916. He has a wife and one child.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Answering criticisms directed against him from coast to coast for ordering New York's 19,000 policemen to "terrorize the thugs," Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine asserted tonight he had meant exactly what he said.

"Muss 'em up," he repeated. "Make them afraid."

Valentine ordered his men "to shoot accurately" and to be assured the police commissioner would back them.

the rate reductions is difficult to estimate, it was pointed out, primarily because there are so many different bases of comparisons. But estimates submitted by statisticians representing the company show that business users will get 26 per cent of the total benefit, and 74 per cent of the reduction will go to residence users.

There were 34,840 flat-rate residence users on December 31, 1933, it was said. Of the one-party measured residence users, there were 2,052; there were 32,792 two-party measured residence users; 10,342 one-party measured business users; 15,035 one-trunk private branch exchange users, included among which are the Federal and District governments; there were 210 two-party business users, and 10,000 extension phones.

Proposed Changes Listed.

Under the new schedule proposed by the company, rates would be changed as follows:

One-party unlimited residence rates would be reduced from $4.75 to $4.35.

One-party limited service would be reduced from $4 to $3.60 for the first 50 calls. Under the present schedule a charge of 5 cents a call is made for the next 100 calls. A charge of 4½ cents a call would be made on the new schedule for the next 50 calls. 4 cents for the next 50, 3½ cents for the next 50, and 3 cents for the next 50.

Under the new rates, the charges for excess calls would be 5 cents for the first 100, 4 cents for the next 50, and 3 cents for each call beyond that.

For two-party residence measured service, the basic charge of $2.50 for 40 calls, the minimum, would be reduced to $2.25. Each call in excess of the minimum would cost 5 cents each.

One-party measured business lines, for which $4 a month now is charged, would be reduced to $3.60, with the same reductions proposed for the first measured residence service.

The minimum charge for two-party measured business service would be reduced from $3 to $2.70 a month for a maximum of 40 calls. There would be an extra charge for all calls in excess of 40 at the rate of 5 cents each.

Another proposed change in rates includes private branch exchanges with the "first" trunk line. This class of service was not provided for in the commission order of October, 1932, reducing rates 10 per cent.

The company proposed that for such service the rate should be reduced from $4 to $3.60 for the first 50 messages, with the same reductions on additional messages as was proposed for measured business and residence service.

Virginia Town Dark As Flames Burn Line

Harrisonburg Without Electricity Half an Hour While Firemen Brave Live Wires, and Then Explosives in a Separate Blaze.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Harrisonburg was without electricity for half an hour early this morning when flames in an unoccupied one-story frame structure on East Water street, just in the rear of the main business section, burned through a main power line and destroyed the transformer.

Firemen battled the flames at the risk of coming in contact with live wires. While they were conquering this blaze, the C. P. Williams store, in the eastern section, caught fire and firemen faced the hazard of dynamite and caps stored in the building. The explosives were carried out.

The loss in each case amounted to a few hundred dollars. The main cable of the Western Union Telegraph Co. was burned in two in the first blaze and a temporary line was strung.

Rebuilding Is Started After Coal Mine Fire

Oakland, Md., Nov. 27 (AP).—Work was started today on rebuilding the powerhouse of the Stanley Coal Co. mine at Crellin. The building was destroyed last night shortly before midnight by fire.

Charles W. Ream, president, said none of the 300 men employed in the mines would lose any time. The employes were divided into day and night shifts in order that they can keep working and all orders be filled.

The loss was estimated at $50,000. There was no insurance. Besides the building, the fire destroyed two 10-ton motors valued at $8,000 each, one coal cutting machine and a large stock of electrical parts and supplies.

The Stanley mine has been one of the few in Garrett County in the past years to keep up operations practically every day.

Her companion, Harold Wible, McConnellsburg, Pa., driver of the car, is still in the hospital. He will recover, physicians believe. Miss Fuss suffered a fractured skull and broken ribs.

John F. Stenger, 35, McConnellsburg, driver of the other car, escaped with minor injuries, while his wife is in the Chambersburg Hospital with a fractured jaw.

Coroner A. W. Thrush of Franklin County will hold an inquest here Friday afternoon.

Funeral for Crash Victim.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Mrs. Mary Brown Kieffer, 46, wife of Louis B. Kieffer and daughter of the late Frank Brown, formerly of Cumberland, who was fatally injured yesterday afternoon in a grade crossing accident, between Mance and Philson, Pa., will be buried near Weyersdale Wednesday afternoon from her home at Sand Patch. The services will be held at 1 o'clock.

Mrs. Kieffer is survived by her husband, two brothers, Jacob Brown and Howard P. Brown, and one sister, Mrs. Isabelle Getson, all of Cumberland.

Mrs. Kieffer died shortly after being admitted to a Meyersville hospital, where her husband, suffering from lacerations and bruises, and Mrs. Mary France, a third occupant of the automobile, who sustained probable fractured ribs, also are patients.

The machine was struck by a Baltimore & Ohio train. Kieffer said he did not see the approaching train. The automobile was hurled from the tracks and demolished.

Annapolis Banks to Mail $60,000 Yule Checks

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—More than $60,000 in Christmas savings funds will be paid to residents of Annapolis and vicinity by three of the four Annapolis banks that conducted Christmas clubs, it was learned today. The amount is considerably smaller than last year's total, and the number of club members is correspondingly fewer.

The funds will be paid out by check as soon as practicable after December 1, officials said. One of the banks has announced discontinuance of the Christmas club, maintaining that it was operated at a loss to the bank during the last year.

Staunton Rector's Office Is Robbed Of $6.25—Sunday

Staunton, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Another "meanest" thief has made his appearance in Staunton.

He robbed a desk in the parish house office of the Rev. J. Lewis Gibbs, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church. And he committed the act on Sunday.

About $5 in cash and stamps valued at $1.25 were stolen. Church officials said they had no idea who the culprit was, but were confident it was some one familiar with the layout of the office, which is left open during certain hours on Sunday.

High School Boys Aid During Holiday Rush

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—A number of high school boys were accepted by postoffice officials for assisting during the Christmas "rush" delivery period starting December 1, it was announced today. Six out of the 16 "extra" jobs assigned went to students at the high school.

Officials also called attention to the decided decrease in the number of applications from World War veterans, who have been given the preference for some years past, for this emergency temporary work. The pay is 62 cents an hour, net.

Many at Church Supper.

Waynesboro, Pa., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—All records for attendance at church suppers were broken here last week-end, when a check-up today revealed more than 700 persons attended a turkey dinner given by the Whetstone and Queen Esther Bible classes in the Lutheran Church social rooms here.

Four Indicted For Slaying Of Two Girls

Crime at Clifton Forge, Va., Laid to Colored Quartet.

Group Sent to Richmond After Cabin of Two Is Burned.

Covington, Va., Nov. 27 (AP).—A special grand jury today indicted four colored persons on charges of slaying two young white girls near Clifton Forge last week. Judge Benjamin Haden set December 10 as the tentative date for a special term of court to try them.

Those indicted are Philip Jones, quoted by officers as having confessed to slaying the two girls and previously attacking one of them; Nannie Jones, his wife; John Pryor, farm hand, and Arthur Smith, taxicab driver.

Although Jones sought to exonerate the other three, each man was indicted on three counts, two charging murder and the third ravishing the older girl. The woman was indicted on two counts, charging murder of each girl.

Victims of the tragedy, which aroused public sentiment in the Clifton Forge area to a high pitch and led to burning of the farm cabin home of Jones and his wife, were Alice and Ellen Hill, 13 and 9-yearold daughter of E. R. Hill, of Clifton Forge.

The prisoners were hurried to Roanoke, 65 miles away, before knowledge of the crime was general, and later the same day were taken to the Henrico County Jail at Richmond, where they are held.

While the grand jury was hearing testimony from Mayor Frank Wheeler, of Clifton Forge, and two police officers, a delegation of Covington officials petitioned Judge Haden to transfer the trial to some other jurisdiction if the four were indicted.

The jurist informed the delegation that a request for a change of venue might be made by defense counsel. So far as was known here today no counsel has been retained.

Harrisonburg Liquor Fraud Jury Recesses

Nine More Witnesses Are Heard in Conspiracy Investigation.

Harrisonburg, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—The Federal grand jury, which today completed its twelfth day of investigation into an alleged liquor conspiracy in Franklin County to defraud the Government of revenue, recessed today until December 10.

Nine witnesses were heard today and it was said their testimony was largely corroborative of that which had been presented before.

The early recess for Thanksgiving was taken because a number of the grand jurors live some distance from Harrisonburg.

Judge John Paul will open the Lynchburg term of court Monday and probably will be occupied there the greater part of the week. Sterling Hutchison, United States attorney for eastern Virginia, who is presenting the evidence to the grand jury, will be occupied in court at Alexandria next week.

Minister Resigns From 2 Charges

The Rev. Mr. Luck to Devote Full Time to Fairview.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—The Rev. Norman Luck will assume full-time duties as pastor of the Fairview Baptist Church here January 1, when his resignation of two other pastorates, heretofore held jointly with the Fairview pastorate, becomes effective.

The charges resigned were those of Enon in Essex County and Bethesda in Caroline County. The Rev. Mr. Luck had officiated at both churches for 30 years and formerly lived at the Enon parsonage.

He will resign his position as moderator of the Herndon Baptist Association, as Fairview Church is not in that association.

Come hither, ye West Virginians—make ready for a gala feast of good old native State cider at the West Virginia Society of Washington's party December 5.

"Inside" information has it that a delegation from the Capital society journeyed down to Martinsburg, W. Va., this past week-end and made ample arrangements for the "cider party."

Those making the arrangements were Col. William DeGrange, treasurer of the society; John L. Bateman, for 15 years the society's secretary, and A. E. Westrater, financial secretary.

One of our Maryland friends recently showed us one of the first pictures ever printed of a turkey, which has led us to wonder whether the turkey or the artists have improved during the past four centuries.

According to legend, this early photo of the turkey was printed in Conrad Gesner's "Historia Animalium" shortly after Columbus' voyages. The bird is named "Fowl of the Indie."

This particular picture of a turkey—an artist's conception—shows the bird to have a big, gun-barrel body with a very small fan-shaped tail.

A real, old-time barn dance is going to be held Thursday night down at Colvin Run, Va. The Colvin Run Citizens Association is sponsoring the affair, which is to be held at Huntmere Farms, where J. A. Wheeler has donated his barn for the dance.

Square and round dancing will be features.

Miss Laura Eddy Buried.

Norfolk Mayor To Ask Parley On Relief Move

Peery's Program of State Action During Winter Still Mystery.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 27 (AP).—Mayor Taylor announced today he would communicate with other mayors, who are members of the League of Virginia Municipalities Committee in Relief, to ascertain whether they desire to press further their claims, laid before Gov. Peery three weeks ago, for State action to assure adequate relief funds this winter.

"We have laid the problem on the Governor's doorstep," said Mayor Taylor, "and I do not know whether we will have another meeting. I shall ascertain from the other members of the committee whether they desire to take further steps at this time."

The present allocations of Federal relief funds to Virginia have been secured until January, but Mayor Taylor, who is chairman of the committee of mayors, said he was not at all certain that the allocations which are being made to the cities will be sufficient to meet the relief demands as the cold weather comes on.

"I am apprehensive," said the mayor, "over the winter's prospect. I am confident the Governor is not going to call a special session of the General Assembly, and I have no idea about what he is going to do. Probably he will wait until February, when the present allotments are scheduled to end, to determine whether the Federal Government is going to continue its allocations to Virginia."

Gov. Peery and Senator Byrd conferred last week with Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins in Washington over the Virginia relief funds, but the outcome of their conference was not disclosed.

Mrs. Brindle to Be Buried.

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—The funeral of Mrs. Ella Brindle, wife of Attorney Harry Brindle, who died suddenly here, will be held Wednesday.

Besides her husband, a son, Robert H., of this city, survives.

New Office Is Planned In Maryland

Nice Names Committee to Aid Formation of Service Unit.

Says Problem of Relief Occupies Attention at Present.

By Eri Roman
(Special Correspondent of The Post)

Miami, Fla., Nov. 27.—Gov.-elect Harry Nice of Maryland today appointed the fourth of five committees which he is establishing to deal with problems he believes of paramount and pressing interest to the people of Maryland.

Today's committee appointment concerned the selection of eight men who will establish qualifications and draw up necessary legislative measures for the authorization of a State service office.

The members are:

Col. Harry C. Jones, chairman of the War Memorial Commission, chairman of the committee.

George Henderson, of Cumberland, former State commander of the American Legion.

J. M. McNulty, department commander of the American Legion.

McQuirk to Serve.

J. J. McQuirk, department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

George Tucker, department commander of the Spanish-American War Veterans.

George W. Dunn, department commander of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War.

Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt of Annapolis, former department commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Edgar O. Hobbs, who will act as secretary of the committee.

Gov.-elect Nice declared that the naming of the service committee was in line with the Republican Party platform in the recent Maryland gubernatorial election whereby it pledged the party to the creation of an office to function in the interest of the veterans of all wars. He added that in order that legislation necessary for such a service for the veterans should be properly considered he had appointed on the service committee persons thoroughly familiar with the duties this official will be called upon to perform.

Other Committees.

Gov.-elect Nice previously has appointed committees to consider unemployment insurance, old-age pensions and revision of the State banking laws. He stated today that his fifth committee will concern the formation of a group whose duty it will be to consider ways and means for taxation to cover costs of the new activities sponsored by the other four committees.

The matter of relief for the unemployed of Maryland appears to be getting much attention from Mr. Nice. He says that the big problem faced is the share the Federal Government will supply for relief. Nice is hopeful of getting 75 per cent of the necessary funds from the Federal Government.

Gov.-elect Nice says he is opposed to an increase in taxes for relief purposes, does not favor a sales tax and is also not inclined toward increased income taxes to raise additional money. Considering the relief of the unemployed his major task, he said:

"We are living in unusual times confronted by extraordinary conditions and problems almost unsolvable. I am not unmindful of these grave responsibilities which face me during the coming four years and I should like the people of Maryland to know that I have been giving my every thought and energy since the election to the discovery of ways and means looking to a successful, economical and constructive administration of the affairs of Maryland."

Young Russian Actress Rewards Samuel Goldwyn's Patience in "We Live Again"

Anna Sten Has Splendid Role In Love Drama

Proves Herself Real Star; More of 'Valley Forge'; Amusement Jottings.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Those who were misled into a hasty conclusion that Anna Sten was no actress, solely on the evidence of her performance in "Nana," will be compelled to revise their judgment when "We Live Again" is presented on the screen of Loew's Fox Theater, beginning Friday.

In this handsomely mounted and discreetly modernized screen version of Count Leo Tolstoy's story of "Resurrection," which was previewed by a majority of the dramatic desks yesterday noon, Miss Sten proves herself an emotional actress of versatile method, well-poised surety and considerable power.

This is emphasized by the caliber of the cast by which she is surrounded. Opposite her, in the role of Prince Dmitri Nekhlyudov, Fredric March offers one of his most forceful performances. That Miss Sten not only keeps pace with the actor who has many distinguished achievements to his credit—"Jekyl and Hyde," "Sign of the Cross," "Death Takes a Holiday," "Smilin' Thru," "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," to name only a few—but at times surpasses him in the convincing ardor of her work, is tremendously to her credit.

Story Is a "Natural."

The story of "We Live Again" is, of course, one to which Miss Sten's talents lend themselves naturally. The entire scene is Russian; the action wholly within the ken of this young Slavic artiste whose career in America has seemed to be disturbingly hedged about by all manner of impediments. She now has mastered the English language to a degree where accent ceases to be a problem. She also has acquired a self-confidence and authority that for a time it was feared she never would negotiate.

Tolstoy's philosophical and slightly depressing story of "Resurrection" is, fundamentally, a woman's story. It throbs with the distressing beat of feminine anguish; it traces the course of a love that seemed lost only to come to life again in sacrifice and restitution for great wrongs done. It is a well-nigh perfect vehicle for the brilliantly demonstrated gifts of a young actress who has fairly earned the belated success that this picture will mark up to her credit.

Goldwyn Is Vindicated.

On the proper day, which would be Saturday, "We Live Again" will be completely reviewed in this space as a production entitled to the respectful attention of any theatergoer who values serious effort and a sincere endeavor to apprehend something of the beauty of which the cinema alone is capable.

In the meantime, it will suffice to to say that the unshaken confidence of Samuel Goldwyn, her producer, that Anna Sten in time would fulfill his highest hopes and expectations in "We Live Again" has been unequivocally justified.

To get the matter of Burton Holmes' travel talks next Sunday straightened out, once and for all, "Soviet Russia" will not be delivered twice on that day, afternoon and evening. On the contrary, the regularly scheduled lecture for the afternoon, "Colorful Spain," will be delivered at the customary hour of 3 o'clock. Following this travelogue, at 8 o'clock Sunday night, the "Soviet Russia" subject that was so sensationally successful a fortnight ago when Mr. Holmes opened his Washington season, will be given.

The desirability of purchasing tickets for these lectures in advance can not be too vigorously stressed. Both last Sunday and the Sunday before, long boxoffice lines at lecture time delayed the seating of the audience for half or three-quarters of an hour, to the intense discomfiture of the speaker and those who arrived on time and were entitled to uninterrupted enjoyment, free from the annoyance of being climbed over by the late-comers. It would seem to be to the advantage of any prospective patron not to miss any portion of the travel talk he has paid to hear.

More About "Valley Forge."

Already discussion is more or less raging among habitual first-nighters as to whether the character of Mary Phillipse, charmingly impersonated by Margalo Gillmore, has any rightful place in "Valley Forge," the Theater Guild production of Maxwell Anderson's new play of George Washington and the American Revolution, current in the National Theater.

I can see no possible basis for the contention that Miss Gillmore's role is redundant and destroys, rather than arguments, the illusion of a perfect war drama.

Feminine Interest Needed.

Without some touch of feminine interest and participation in the events Mr. Anderson has chronicled, it seems to me "Valley Forge" would be a drab and dreary recital of such occurrences as might understandably fail to intrigue the interest of feminine playgoers.

It is an entirely legitimate dramatic expedient to create a fictional character to share dramatic interest with those taken from authentic history. This is what Mr. Anderson has done in the case of Mary Phillipse. He has, furthermore, made her the only plausible instrument of a liaison between the British general, Lord Howe, and the commander in chief of the Colonial armies. Her intercession first with the one and then with the other, leading to the rendezvous in the barn on Hay Island, in the Delaware, provides the perfect dramatic approach to the scene that constitutes the real crux of the drama.

While I can not find any common ground with those who object to the presence of Mary Phillipse in "Valley Forge," I do not find it difficult to agree with those who insist that the bunkhouse scenes at Valley Forge in the bitter January of 1778 do not convey the impression of extreme cold across the footlights and that the high drama of the preceding acts almost completely peters out in the last minute or two of the last.

These, however, are defects that may readily be overcome. Whether they are or not, "Valley Forge" still remains a play that no true American or any lover of the living theater can afford to miss.

As was intimated here yesterday, Eddie Cantor's latest extravaganza, "Kid Millions," will not be the attraction at Loew's Palace Theater following the current engagement of Greta Garbo, Herbert Marshall and George Brent in "The Painted Veil." Late booking changes have set "Kid Millions" back probably to Christmas week. Coming into the Palace in Garbo's wake, instead, will be the first feature-length picture in which Joe Penner has been starred by Paramount. This is an item bearing the title of "College Rhythm," and includes in its cast, in addition to the eminent duck salesman, Lanny Ross, Jack Oakie, Helen Mack, Lyda Roberti, Mary Brian, George Barbier and Franklyn Pangborn. Lyrics and music for the new flicker were written by Gordon and Revel—which ought to be all anybody needs to know!

Capitalites Star.

Stellar roles in "Death Takes a Holiday," to be presented next month by the Footlight Club, dramatic organization of the University of Maryland, will be taken, in large measure, by Washingtonions.

Eugene Kressin, president of the club and well known for his several excellent performances with the Roadside Theater group last summer, will portray Death.

Playing opposite Kressin as Grazia, the girl with whom Death falls in love during his three-day holiday in mortal guise, will be Mary Stallings, a coed who took first award in a campus beauty contest.

Other residents of the Capital who are importantly cast include Fred Haskin, jr., also of the Roadside and City Theaters groups, who will play Baron Cesaria; Mary Worthen, Marguerite Norris and Samuel Leishear.

Word-to-the-Wise Note.

Watch the theater announcements closely these next few weeks and when you see "The Goddess of Spring" advertised, be sure to go see it. It is the best color job Walt Disney has turned out in any of his "Silly Symphonies" and embodies some very elegant singing by both the Devil and the Goddess.

And if you think the Goddess doesn't have a devil of a time, you are approximately crazy!

Drama Guild

"LADIES OF THE JURY." The Drama Guild of Washington presents the comedy in three acts by Fred Ballard. Directed by Harold A. Weinberger. At the Wardman Park Theater. Reviewed Monday evening by W. A. Whitney.

A brand-new Drama Guild of Washington made its appearance Monday night at the Wardman Park Theater, offering as the initial play of its 1934-35 season Fred Ballard's "Ladies of the Jury," the play made famous by Mrs. Minnie Maddern Fisk.

Though quite a number of years old, the Guild played as a group fired with the enthusiasm of a new venture, reading the trenchant lines with a spontaneity and sincerity that completely surpasses anything offered last year.

One need not point out the details of the story, save to state that here is one of those delightful farces tinged with satire, with the present judicial system coming in for treatment.

Wins Jury Over.

One Mrs. Gordon is on trial for murder, and the jury's first ballot gives eleven to one for conviction. The one is dowager Mrs. Livingston Baldwin Crane, and as the play progresses she gradually wins over her fellow panelists to a final vote of twelve to zero for acquittal.

As Mrs. Crane, Grace Peters Johnson did a truly remarkable job in the Mrs. Fisk role. A subtly conniving woman who uses words and actions to her own benevolent ends, Miss Johnson made Mrs. Crane a living, forceful woman.

As for the other eleven men and women of the pury, a collective orchid must be given, for in those 11 are represented all types and conditions of the social scale, and each type was flawlessly cast.

Occupy Keith's Screen Today

Straight From the Studios

Garbo and Evelyn Venable Rivals for Jean d'Arc Role; Margaret Lindsay Laid Low by Long Illness; Paragraphs and Previews From Coast.

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, Nov. 27.—The question of who will portray Joan of Arc on the screen again finds the spotlight. It has been reported that Greta Garbo would win this particular crown, but it develops that Evelyn Venable is still relentlessly fighting for her right to appear in the picture, having herself suggested it a long time ago.

GRETA GARBO.

It seems Miss Venable and her father, Emerson Venable, formerly an instructor in Shakespeare in Cincinnati, collaborated on a dramatization of the life of Joan of Arc, embodying the young star's own conception of the heroine. This version is said to include several highly dramatic incidents from the heroinc's childhood that have never been presented in any drama and are the fruit of extensive research

Miss Venable, having just finished "The County Chairman," Will Rogers' picture, has been engaged for "The Little Colonel," which stars Shirley Temple.

Miss Lindsay Out, Miss Ellis In.

Because she hasn't recovered from a flu attack, Margaret Lindsay, who has endured her share of griefs from illness, will take a rest, retiring from the cast of "While the Patient Sleeps," with Patricia Ellis stepping in. Thus ends the anticipated furthering of the costarring union so amply heralded between Lyle Talbot and Miss Lindsay.

Early this year, Miss Lindsay had a long sick spell because of an appendicitis operation. She will go to Palm Springs for the time being. She recently finished work in "Devil Dogs of the Air."

Hobgoblins Elusive.

Another puzzle for casting directors. Max Reinhardt is in search of twelve elves and imps, some hobgoblins and a score of sprites to appear in "Midsummer Night's Dream." They must convey some semblance of reality in their interpretations, and it is difficult to get just the right types even among the children and midgets who are available. Two hundred male dancers and 400 children are being tested for fairies in the feature.

"Mighty Barnum" (Preview) On West Coast.

"The Mighty Barnum," previewed at Glendale last night, will be a much changed film when it is regularly released. Darryl Zanuck, head of Twentieth Centry, put his somewhat renowned cutting talents to work and reedited the production with the result that 1,700 feet of film have gone by the board and various anticlimactic moments have been removed.

The material in this picture is of excellent order and it looks as if it will inaugurate the new season with a flourish. "Mighty Barnum" is, in many respects, a reiteration of the moods and tenses visible in "The Bowery," and is laid in a like colorful period.

Humor and human interest predominate. Wallace Beery, Adolphe Menjou, Virginia Bruce, Janet Beecher and Rochelle Hudson head a colorful cast that gains, especially because of the presence of some clever portrayers of freaks.

Singing by Francia White, who doubles for Miss Bruce, is especially fine. The picture undoubtedly will be quite a hit in its final form.

WHILE orders for the regular Thanksgiving holiday tomorrow embrace all Government agencies, certain reservations are found in the alphabet agencies' orders for the half day off today, beginning at 1 p. m.

BAKER.

At Agricultural Adjustment Administration, which has more than 5,000 workers in Washington, C. B. Baldwin, assistant to the Secretary, said last night: "All employes whose services can be spared will be released at 1 p. m. This, of course, means practically everyone."

The overtime-harrassed 900 employes at Federal Housing Administration will get a half holiday "if all desks are cleared," according to the FHA press office.

At Home Owners Loan Corporation it is announced that the half day off today will be left to the discretion of the division heads and that "most" of the division heads had signified their intention of releasing the employes at 1 o'clock.

All but 10 or 15 persons of the more than 300 at Federal Emergency Relief Administration will begin their Thanksgiving holiday this afternoon at 1, it was announced at the Walker-Johnson Building last night.

Reports from NRA, FCA and the other emergency agencies indicate that the employes will halt their grind this afternoon, along with the old established departments and independent offices.

Mrs. Elizabeth Neale, Identification Unit, Justice, was the honor guest recently at a miscellaneous shower, given by Mrs. Josephine Davis, also of Identification Unit, and Mrs. Elizabeth Graves, of W. H. Drane Lester's office.

Illustrated Lecture Slated.

"Stem Rust and the Common Barberry on the Offensive" will be the subject of William Lee Popham's illustrated talk before the Biological Society of Washington Saturday at 8 p. m. at the Cosmos Club. Mr. Pophom is senior pathologist of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine. His talk will be a discussion of the biology, history and economic importance of stem rust and the common barberry.

At the same meeting, Ernest P. Walker (F), assistant director of the National Zoological Park, will speak on "Catering for Peculiar Appetites," or "Feeding the Animals at the Zoo." The public is invited.

Rexford Guy Tugwell's new book, "The Battle for Democracy," will be published early in 1935 by the Columbia University Press, according to reports at Agriculture.

Thanksgiving 1934.

That I have a job, due thanks I give.
However small at least I live.
And though luxuries I can't afford.
Not starving am I, thank the Lord.
Kind Civil Service keeps my job
Secure against the howling mob.
God in His wisdom has kept me fit.
In the bank I have a bit.
Various blessings came my way,
Including some of my lost pay.
Now for them all on this Thanksgiving
Give I thanks, I'm glad I'm living.
WILLIAM G. WATT (F), Navy.

Examinations Announced.

Examinations for several positions at Employes Compensation Commission are announced by Civil Service Commission, as follows:

Field examiner, $2,600; claims examiner, $2,000 a year. Experience and legal education are required. The closing date is December 22. The salaries named are subject to the usual statutory deductions.

Employes at Interstate Commerce Commission are mourning the death of E. A. Behrend, who died at Georgetown Hospital last week. Mr. Behrend was with the I. C. C. 17 years and was an active worker in I. C. C. branch of Local No. 2, National Federation of Federal Employes. Joseph Stansfield, Local No. 2 president and I. C. C. co-worker of Mr. Behrend, represented the organization at the funeral.

WITH 50 golfers participating, the Coast and Geodetic Survey Golf Association reached a new peak of enthusiasm in the current season. Two leagues, X and Y, composed of 10 men each, competed in match play for three months. In League X, Mark L. Hickman (C) won, with Carver I. Camp (C) as runner-up.

In League Y a three-way tie remained as the play ended, between Frank S. Borden, Bennett Rockhill and Herbert Grove Dorsey, jr. In a spirited play-off of 18 holes, Borden was eliminated. Nine additional holes were necessary to eliminate Rockhill, leaving Dorsey the winner.

Hickman, representing League X, and Dorsey, of League Y, then played a 36-hole match which was nip and tuck for 30 holes when Dorsey went out to win 5 and 4 to become the 1934 golf champion of the Coast and Geodetic Survey. Borden was champion in 1932 and Harlan C. Allen in 1933. This year the association presented a handsome gold cup for the winner.

Peoples Stores Will Receive Toys for Post Christmas Fund

38 Stations for Collection of Gifts Are Added as Drive Progresses.

Thirty-eight Peoples Drug stores in the District of Columbia yesterday became collection stations for The Post Toy Fund when that organization, through its promotional director, Dr. Julian W. Pollard, agreed to place hampers to receive toys for the fund in its local stores.

These hampers have been marked "For The Post Toy Fund." When full they will be delivered to the headquarters of The Post Toy Fund at 1418 H street northwest, which rapidly is becoming a center for Santa Claus and his aids in their efforts to provide a merry Christmas for every needy child in the city.

It is believed that through the Peoples Drug Stores Post Toy Fund stations many hundreds of toys will be collected before Christmas Eve. Directors of The Post Toy Fund expressed themselves as delighted with this new opportunity for the people of Washington to give toys, and one of them declared that many persons purchasing toys for their own little ones in these stores will include a toy to be placed in The Post Toy hampers.

Toy Delivery.

Describing the interest the hampers will attract, this worker declared:

"A shiny new automatic top or a gayly dressed doll catches your eye, and you buy it because you know it will delight the small boy or girl in your own family, even though they are plentifully supplied with toys. Stop a moment and think how much genuine pleasure such a toy would bring to a home that was forgotten by Santa Claus last year, where parents have no money to make Christmas a merry occasion for children who are as eager for happiness as your own. Then buy an extra toy, to be distributed by The Post Fund to needy Washington children."

The toys thus collected will be distributed through social welfare organizations with the cooperation of the Council of Social Agencies and to individual families not on the relief and social welfare rolls whose appeals are found not duplicated after careful investigation.

Through the courtesy of the Police Department a "No Parking Sign" has been placed at The Post Toy Fund headquarters at the entrance to that shop for the convenience of persons delivering packages of toys. In this way the donors to The Post Toy Fund may find a place to leave their cars long enough to deliver their gifts and not get into parking troubles.

Appeal Answered.

Toys in good condition and those which can be properly repaired will be received at The Post Toy Fund headquarters, which will be open today until 3 p. m. for this purpose. Tomorrow, Thanksgiving Day, the headquarters will be closed, but it will be opened again on Friday and every day thereafter until Christmas Eve.

Gifts of money should be left either at the headquarters, 1418 H street northwest, or addressed to The Washington Post. All money received will be acknowledged through the columns of The Post.

The appeal of the mother of six children ranging from 5 months to 8 years of age struck a responsive chord in the heart of a generous-minded Washington woman, who on reading the appeal in The Post yesterday morning telephoned her offer to provide a Thanksgiving basket for this brave little mother and her children. So two Washington families were made happy for Thanksgiving, those who gave and those who are to receive. Thus The Post Toy Fund qualified anew as a "Share Your Joy" movement.

New York, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—Many birds eat fish. Mrs. Carol Strycker, director of the Staten Island Zoological Society, has found a new fish that birds do not eat. It is about 3 feet long, triangular, and chiefly mouth. She calls it the "wide gab." It eats birds.

Sooner Team Arrives Today

30 Oklahoma Players Reported Ready for Colonials.

Part of 100-Piece Band Puts In Appearance for Big Game.

A SQUAD of 30 Oklahoma football players, the riot squad that will be sent out to Griffith Stadium tomorrow afternoon to quell a disturbance planned by a group of George Washington students, arrives in Washington this morning. This afternoon they'll look over the scene of battle, and rehearse a few maneuvers to be used against the Colonials.

This is the Sooners' first trip into this vicinity since 1932, when they met G. W. for the first time and fought to a 7-7 stalemate. Reports from the mid-West indicate that the young men are not here for another tie—they mean business.

Tuba Boy Due Today.

A section of Oklahoma's 100-piece band arrived yesterday. The tuba player and a few others will drift in some time during the afternoon. This outfit is one of the best-drilled and most colorful from that section of the country.

In their haste to prepare for Cash Gentry's kicking, Colonial coaches almost overlooked the Sooners' ball-carriers. Nick Robertson, a chap who gained 100 yards and more against Nebraska, Iowa State and Missouri; Beedie Long, Bo Hewes and Raleigh Francis will be behind the line.

Francis replaces Ben Poynor, who lived in Washington last summer and struck up lively acquaintanceship with some of the G. W. men. Ben counted on playing against them but Kansas State sent him to the hospital with two broken ribs, a broken nose nad chipped hip-bone. If he comes at all he'll have to watch the proceedings from the sidelines.

Robertson Is Line Plunger.

Robertson is the line-plunger, though his passing can not be safely overlooked. He throws a longer, better pass than Gentry. But Gentry, who doesn't claim to be a chucker, is quite content to do the kicking.

Hewes, the only sophomore in the backfield, does everything although limited to carrying the ball this season. Long is the guy who does all the work and gets no credit—he's the blocking back.

The team is expected to be at the ball park around noon. When Oklahoma is through G. W. will take the field.

With the Freshmen team using Oklahoma plays yesterday they managed to pick up large gains around the flanks and on lateral passes. But the varsity, trying its guard and off-tackle drives, found the yearlings pretty easy pickings.

A preliminary game between the Merrick and Northeast Boys Club 100-pound elevens will be played tomorrow at 1:15. The winner takes the Colonial Junior League championship and a silver loving cup.

Trotter Nets $7,300 at Auction

The Master Sold to Baker, Owner of Famous Greyhound.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP).—Adding to an already powerful stable that includes one of the favorites for the 1935 Hambletonian, E. J. Baker, of St. Charles, Ill., today bid in The Master, a well-bred yearling trotter, for $7,300, to top the first-day sale of light harness racers at the Old Glory auction.

Consigned by Dr. Ogden M. Edwards' Walnut Hall Farm, of Donerail, Ky., the royally bred son of Peter Volo went to the stable that houses Greyhound, well-considered for the Hambletonian next year. Baker also raced the great 2-year-old pacer, Auctioneer, which was destroyed in a fire at Indianapolis about a month ago.

Brother of Protector.

A full brother to Protector and The Marchioness, both 2-minute performers, and the latter winner of the Hambletonian years ago, The Master lived up to advance predictions. The bidding was slow to get under way, with Noah Squire, of Windsor, Conn., making the first offer of $3,000. But once it gained momentum it advanced by leaps and bounds.

Charlie Mills, leading trainer and driver of Germany, boosted the bid to $3,500, and then E. L. Mefford, owner of Lord Jim, from Columbus, Ohio, and Baker hooked up with Squire in a battle of checkbooks. The New England buyer had enough at $7,100, and Mefford dropped out after nodding his head at $7,200. Then Baker, a nephew of "Bet-a-Million" Gates, came in with what proved to be the top bid.

The second highest price of the day was paid by Ben White, of Lexington, Ky., who bid $4,600 for Decision, sired by Protector. Decision was also a member of the Walnut Hall consignment of 32 head, which went for $23,900, an average of $750.

Vololee Nets $1,550.

William Dickerson, of Goshen, N. Y., acting for E. Roland Harriman, of New York, paid $1,550 for Vololee, while Vic Fleming, of Syracuse, bid in Commandant for $1,400. Content with paying one of the highest prices for yearlings in the 40-year history of the show, Baker also paid $1,625 to get Sandydale, a pacer, from Gage B. Ellis' Village Farm, of Langhorne, Pa.

With Silverdale going to Royal Little, Providence, R. I.; Sheeter Abbedale to A. S. Rodney, Springfield Mass., and His Highness to Noah Squires for $1,000 each, the Village Farm consignment of 13 head brought $6,305, an average of $485.

Football Gate In '34 Shows Big Jump

All But Eastern Section Reported Boost Over 1933 Figures.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—Nation-wide college football attendance, for the season now closing, shows that public spending is increasing, a United Press survey disclosed tonight.

Nearly all of the colleges on which figures were obtained showed gains in 1934 over 1933. The few losses reported were considerably offset by gains credited to others.

The Midwest, South and Pacific Coast sectors played to tremendous throngs, some schools reporting huge gains in patronage. The East was the only general loser.

Ohio State Gains.

Ohio State probably will retire a lot of those stadium bonds this winter, for the Buckeyes' best four home games this season drew a total of 179,000 as compared with 129,410; for a like number of games in 1933.

Minnesota's all-winning team drew 172,000 to four home games this season, 52,000 more than last year.

Notre Dame had 113,000 for its four home games this year—109,000 in 1933. Northwestern remained constant, 145,000 for four games each year.

Stanford was the big winner on the Pacific Coast both in play and in crowds to play to. Stanford totaled 165,000 for its best three games played to date this year, as compared with 138,000 in 1933. Gonzaga reported a general increase of 15 per cent in attendance and receipts. Washington's patronage upped from 70,000 to 92,000 for its best four home games each year. Most other Western schools reported increases, the biggest individual gainer having been Santa Clara, which drew approximately 100,000 more spectators to its program this year than last.

Alabama Leads South.

In the South, Alabama led off with an increase of approximately 20 per cent. Duke jumped from 75,000 for four best home games in 1933 to 91,000 for a like number this year. Florida and Tulane held even from season to season. Georgia Tech dropped from 72,636 for four best games last year to 51,826 this year. Vanderbilt also had a slight drop.

The Southwest prospered. Texas University totaled 52,827 for its first five home games this year as contrasted to 41,890 in 1933. Texas Christian and Southern Methodist held even or better from year to year.

The Rocky Mountain area showed general gains, and some of these were registered despite schedules which contained defeats.

Pitt Leads in East.

Pittsburgh was the East's big winner. Three best home games gave Pitt a total of 190,000 this year as compared with 127,000 in 1933.

Princeton slumped from 115,000 for three tops last year to 110,000 in 1934. Fordham, always a good drawing card in New York, slumped noticeably, its big three games of 1933 totaling 155,000 as compared with 120,000 this year.

The big eastern games were patronized as well or better this year than last. There were at least a few hundred more at Army-Notre Dame in 1934 than in 1933. This year's crowd totaled around 80,000, and was the largest of the Nation during the 1934 season. The Army-Navy game at Philadelphia this Saturday is so much of a sell-out that speculators will be asking and getting as much as $20 for $4.40 tickets.

Thousands to See 'Bama-Vandy Game

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 27 (AP).—One of the largest turnouts of spectators the South has seen this season is expected to fill the stadium of Legion Field at Birmingham Thanksgiving Day when Alabama's Crimson Tide tackles Vanderbilt in a game attracting national interest.

The widespread importance attached to this holiday battle has developed out of indications that the Red Elephants are in line for the Rose Bowl classic if they conquer the Commodores. At least that is what many Southerners are hoping.

Stengel Begins Training for Pow-Wow

Dodgers' Manager Grooms for Moguls' Meet Next Month.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (U.P.).—That lazy-looking man with the big ears who slouched about the lobbies of hotels today was Casey Stengel, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, in rigid training for the major league meetings two weeks hence.

When cornered in a lobby in Brooklyn, Stengel was sitting on his shoulders in an easy chair with his legs thrust 'way out so that luggage-laden bellboys could trip over them.

Gets Its "Kidding."

"Yes, I am in training," admitted the leathery-faced one, who has been called the Goofy Guardian of the Gowanus Gamboliers simply because he manages a club with this slogan: "When more Dodgers are on third base than on the bench, someone's bound to score." Some critics even referred to his club as baseball's "psychopathic ward."

Charles Dillon Stengel said, "I am in training for the hanging-around marathon. When the club owners go into session us managers will just hang around and hang around. With two weeks of training under my belt, I'll be the best hanger-around of any."

Hadn't Mr. Stengel actually started his conditioning grind down at the recent Louisville minor league meetings?

"What minor league meetings?" demanded Casey. "Those meetings weren't minor affairs. They were just Cardinal-Cincinnati Reds meetings. The St. Louis Cardinals had 22 rooms in one hotel. And the Reds had more than a dozen rooms. Branch Rickey and Larry McPhail did all the business, shifting players around their chain systems."

Every Pin a Player.

One of the Cardinals' rooms looked like a train dispatcher's office, Casey said. A big chart on the wall with colored pins stuck all over it. Every pin was numbered and every number meant a player. "I wish I had some of those pins to stick into my boys at Ebbetts Field next summer."

And what about that newspaper picture showing Stengel and Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants, sitting together and laughing like two old cronies?

"That picture was a phony," snarled Casey. "One of those photographers got Terry and me to pose on each side of Walter Johnson. Then what did that photographer di? He painted Johnson out of the picture and left Terry and me smiling at each other. I guess Terry was just as sore as I was."

A Team for a Busher.

Did Mr. Stengel figure his club would make many deals at the league meetings? No. It seems that the Dodgers do not favor giving Lopez, Van Mungo, Frey, Ebbetts Field and possibly a blood transfusion for some rookie player no one ever heard of. "That's the kind of offers we're getting."

Besides, the Dodgers have a pretty good team right now. They won more games in the last month of the campaign than any other National League club except the Cards.

"Oh, if we could get reasonable offers we might make a couple of swaps to strengthen the outfield," he continued. "We would like a stronger hitter in right field than Boyle. We might even sacrifice one of the infielders to do it. We've got good infielders: Stripp, Cuccinello, Frey and Leslie, as regulars, and Jordan, Bucher and McCarthy as reserves. I wouldn't let Frey go in any deal, however."

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 27 (AP).—Despite a steady drizzle of cold rain, the Army football squad went into action in full force today in preparation for the Navy game Saturday.

Two players who were injured in the Notre Dame contest last week, Jack Buckler and Ed King, took part in the drill, although King did not take part in the blocking and tackling.

Cotton May Play With British in Ryder Cup Matches if Trophy Deed of Gift Is Altered

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP).—A stroke of diplomacy, silhouetted against a commercial motive, may pave the way for Henry Cotton, British open golf champion, to become a member of John Bull's team of professionals which will come to the United States next summer for the fifth renewal of the international Ryder Cup series.

Under the deed of the gift of Samuel Ryder's Trophy, competed for biennially, participants must not only have been born in either the British Isles or the United States but reside there as well.

Won British with 283.

These qualifications have prevented Cotton's participation since 1929, for the sharpshooting Briton, who won his native championship last summer with a four-gound total of 283, is stationed at a club in Brussels, Belgium, and last summer signed a new contract there.

George R. Jacobus, president of the Professional Golfers Association of America, has written to the British P. G. A. urging a change in the deed of gift which would make birth, instead of both birth and residence, the only qualification for membership on the team.

"Henry Cotton is England's best golfer and it would be ridiculous for the British to send over a team without him," said Jacobs. "I have written officials of the British P. G. A. suggesting they try to get Samuel Ryder, who put up the trophy, to change the deed of gift and assuring them the U. S. P. G. A. would heartily approve of such action.

Would Boost Gate Receipts.

"Not only does Cotton deserve to be permitted to play, but all of the golf enthusiasts in our country want to see the man who on consecutive days shot rounds of 67 and 65 in the British Open last year. His appearance would be a big boost to the gate receipts."

The team matches will be played at the Ridgewood (N. J.) Country Club, where Jacobs holds forth as pro, before or after the 1935 American Open which will be held during the first week in June.

In the event Samuel Ryder, who lives at St. Albans, England, consents to the change, it will make the second time since 1926, when the cup was presented, the original deed has been altered. At first there were no restrictions and in 1929 it was altered to its present wording.

School Teams At Work for Last Tilts

G. U. Prep, Gonzaga and Central Sent Through Stiff Drills.

STIFF WORKOUTS were the order of the day for the football squads of Georgetown Prep, Gonzaga and Central High yesterday as they prepared for their last games of the season this week.

Georgetown Prep leaves for New Rochelle, N. Y., at 1 p. m. today for its annual battle tomorrow with the powerful Iona Prep eleven. Gonzaga will face Alexandria High at Baggetts' Field, Alexandria, in another Thanksgiving Day game, while Central meets Columbia (S. C.) High at Columbia, Saturday.

Gained Tie in '33.

Iona, one of the strongest prep school outfits in southern New York, was tied by the Garrett Parkers last year, 0-0, and won the 1932 game, 14 to 13. Coach Joe Gardner, however, is not entertaining much hope for such a showing this season.

The Preps, starting off with green material at the beginning of the season, ran into unexpected difficulties when injuries laid low one man after another. The Little Hoyas will stop tonight at the New York Athletic Club.

Stresses Signal Drills.

Gonzaga, disappointed at its 27-to-0 defeat by Western, Monday, stressed signal drills yesterday with an eye to getting back the scoring punch which deserted it against the Georgetowners.

Coach Bert Coggins' Central crew, beaten badly by Petersburgh (Va.) High last week, will be ending a long and mediocre season Saturday against one of the most powerful teams of the Carolinas. The Mount Pleasanters engaged in a lengthy scrimmage yesterday.

3 Members of Oklahoma Band in Bus Crash.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Three members of the University of Oklahoma Band on the way with other students from Norman, Okla., to Washington, D. C., for a football game were injured today near Grafton when the bus conveying them crashed into an embankment.

Those injured suffered only cuts and bruises, and were able to continue their journey after being treated at a Grafton hospital. The bus was one of three carrying the students to the National Capital, where Oklahoma plays George Washington University Thursday.

After repairs, the bus continued to its destination.

Cold Wind Fails To Chill Navy Optimism

Squad Laughs and Jokes Confidently as Army Contest Nears.

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 27 (AP).—Wintry blasts blew out of a murky sky upon the Navy gridiron hard by the Severn River today, but the burly Midshipmen, impatient to tackle the Army Cadets in Philadelphia Saturday, cheerfully romped through a long offensive scrimmage.

A cold, biting wind it was that came roaring in across Chesapeake Bay, but apparently it didn't chill the hearts of these sailors who assertedly believe they are destined to hand the Army its first defeat at Navy hands since 1921.

They laughed and joked as they rushed about over the field.

Their young mentor, Lieut. Thomas J. Hamilton, whose near-perfect kicking carried the Middies to their last tie with the Soldiers—the thrill-studded 21-to-21 deadlock at Chicago eight years ago—shivered as he hopped from one foot to another and slapped his hands to keep warm.

Pretty Keyed Up.

"The boys are pretty keyed up," he said as his eyes roved around the field, taking in all practice angles. "They confidently believe they will win. They certainly are ready to give all they have in the effort."

Fred (Buzz) Borries, Navy's lanky All-American backfield candidate, kidded with his targets as he threw passes all over the field and completed most of them against an "Army" outfit using cadet anti-aircraft defense tactics.

This shifty runner is the wit and the comedian of the squad.

"He is a great back, perhaps the best ever to play for the Navy and surely the best I've ever seen," his coach says.

Rough Scrimmage.

To keep the sailors "sharp," Hamilton drove them through a rough scrimmage as dusk was falling over Thompson field and the drill continued after the field lights had been turned on. It was no tag scrimmage today. The smack of shoulders into a padded thigh could be heard clear up on the stands as these sailors went about their work.

Slade Cutter, the big tackle, who is a heavyweight boxing star, spent a while at his trick of place-kicking extra points, while Bill Clark, Navy's midget full back, whose duty it will be to outboot Army's Jack Buckler, kept socking toward the "coffin corners."

Hamilton expects to start the same team that has opened Navy's other major games, with Pratt and King in the ball-carrying group along with Borries and Clark. The team will leave Thursday night for Philadelphia.

Ingram to Quit California U., Is Report

Declared Ready to Sever All Connections With Gridiron Sport.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27 (AP).—The Call-Bulletin says Varsity Football Coach William A. "Navy Bill" Ingram has decided to resign from the University of California and sever all his connections with the sport. Ingram, who was attending a meeting here, could not be reached immediately for comment.

The paper said Ingram, who came here from Annapolis four years ago, had decided to present his resignation to the next meeting of the University of California student executive committee.

Alden Smith, student body president, declined to comment on the report, the Oakland Tribune said, but added he had called a meeting of the committee, which ordinarily convenes Wednesday, for tonight.

"What about Coach Ingram's resignation?" Smith was asked.

"I'll tell you after the meeting," the Tribune said Smith replied.

Green Terror Ready for Twin Bill

Western Maryland to End Season Against Hoyas in Baltimore.

WESTMINSTER, Md., Nov. 27 (AP).—Undefeated and unscored on in all but one game this season, Western Maryland's Green Terrors are preparing for a double windup against Mount St. Mary's here Thursday and against Georgetown in the Baltimore Stadium Saturday.

Bill Shepherd, the Terrors' all-Eastern back, will play both games this week in an effort to close his football career as the Nation's leading scorer. To date he is eight points behind Art Strutt Ox, Duquesne, with 100 points even on 13 touchdowns, two field goals and 16 conversions.

The Harlow eleven will have one more day of practice before the home-coming clash with the Mounts in which to tighten up its defense and assure itself of a turkey day win. Although classing the Hoyas as the tougher of the two opponents, the locals are taking no chances on an upset.

Five bands will play on Hoffa Field as a part of the celebration planned for returning alumni.

Rickey Convinced Cards Deal Is Off

Cites Recent Telephone Talks With Wentz.

St. Louis, Nov. 27 (AP).—Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals, said last night he was satisfied that negotiations toward sale of the club to Lew Wentz, Oklahoma oil man, had collapsed.

Rickey would not explain his opinion, other than to say recent telephone conversations with the wealthy Ponca Cityan had indicated the deal was at an end. Wentz, who two weeks ago conferred with Sam Breadon over the purchase of the Cardinals, announced at the close of those conversations that the purchase would not take place, but subsequent developments gave rise to a belief the sale was still in prospect.

Huey's Team And Tulane Get Two

Auburn, Tennessee and Kentucky Are Voted One Man Apiece.

Team Is Characterized by Speed, Power and Versatility.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 27 (AP).—Three essentials of gridiron success—speed, power and versatility—characterize the 1934 All-Southeastern team compiled by the Associated Press.

Altogether, 6 of the 13 Conference teams are represented, but Alabama, unbeaten, untied and marching toward its second straight Southeastern championship and favored for the Rose Bowl assignment, was voted four positions. Tulane and Louisiana State, also with perfect Conference records thus far, placed two players each on the all-star list.

The honor roll, chosen through a consensus of sports writers and coaches, is composed almost entirely of seasoned veterans who have been under fire for three varsity campaigns, but two juniors and a sophomore were adjudged worthy of a place in the line-up.

Howell Repeats.

After being selected on the first team for 1933 as a junior, Millard (Dixie) Howell, Alabama's triple-threat half back, was chosen unanimously for this year's eleven.

The linemen average more than 196 pounds from end to end. The back field averages 180 pounds, and every member is a triple-threat performer.

For only the guard berths and one back field position was the voting close. Capt. Bill Lee, of Alabama, at tackle; Homer Robinson, of Tulane, at center; Don Hutson, of Alabama, at end, and Claude (Little Monk) Simons, of Tulane, and Abe Mickal, of Louisiana State, in the back field, receiving unanimous votes.

Rukas Wins Out.

Justin Rukas, Louisiana State's junior tackle, won out in the voting over Howard Bailey, of Tennessee, in a close race, while Bennie Fenton, Auburn end, gained the edge over Roy Rose, of Tennessee.

The balloting among the guards was unusually close. Charlie Marr, of Alabama, led all the others, while Murray Warmath, of Tennessee, emerged ahead of George Tessier, of Tulane, and John Brown, of Georgia, by a slim margin.

Backfield Puzzle.

The makeup of the backfield puzzled many of the experts. There was no outstanding quarter back, but several votes went to Randall Dixon, of Vanderbilt, and Riley Smith, of Alabama. Many of the ballots found the backfield shifted around to place Simons or Mickal at the quarter back post.

In the final analysis one of the half back positions was awarded to Bert Johnson, Kentucky's outstanding sophomore, and Simons was shifted to quarter back. All four of the backfield members excel in kicking, passing and running and have done their share of blocking and tackling.

Galbreath Is Elected Illinois' '35 Captain

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 27 (AP).—Charles Galbreath, junior tackle from Tuccola, Ill., was elected captain of the 1935 University of Illinois football team last night.

Les Lindberg, running, kicking and passing half back from Lockport, Ill., was selected by his teammates as the most valuable player on the Illini squad.

17,000 See Fallon Ride Band Wagon to Smashing Victory in Bowie Feature Race

St. Stephens Runs 2d in Sprint

Son of Strolling Player Comes From Behind in Stretch to Win.

By Walter Haight.

BAND WAGON, with little Louie Fallon beating the drum, scored a smashing victory in the fourth race at Bowie yesterday. It was a 6-furlong sprint that served feature purposes for a crowd of 7,000. A length and a half back of the son of Strolling Player came St. Stephens, the favorite, with Cant Remember third and three parts of a length away.

The two heavily played horses of the field, Cant Remember and St. Stephens, dominated the early running, with Apprentice Fallon apparently content to keep Band Wagon off the thundering pace.

Cuts Down Leaders.

In the stretch, Cant Remember began to draw away from St. Stephens and then the fun began for Band Wagon. Fallon went to work with his whip and the horse, the property of Chester Bild, slowly but surely cut down the leaders.

At the finish, Band Wagon was drawing away, but Cant Remember held on well to outstay St. Stephens, which, according to figures, ran a miserable race.

Bellator made good for the talent in the 6 furlong dash for all-aged maidens that opened the card. The 2-year-old gelding was on top virtually all the way and scored in easy fashion over Double Sweep, which finished two lengths back. Flower Time, grouped in the field, lost the place by a length and a half. Bellator disposed of Toastmaster early and held Double Sweep safe in the stretch, paying $5.90.

Some Good proved another good thing for the Ascot Stable in the second event. The colt returned to sprint competition and galloped first home by four lengths to pay 19-to-1. Smooth Crossing and Fred Almy followed, another four lengths apart. Some Good went to the front after leaving the backstretch and moved far clear to win as Apprentice Lee Fallon pleased. Broadsword and Corrymeela, both heavily played, stopped after showing early speed.

Meade Rides Winner.

Staging a strong stretch rush under Don Meade, Ross got up to beat Alwintour by a half length in the third. Scotch Queen was third, a length away. Alwintour outran Good Aim and Scotch Queen and seemed headed for success until Ross made his bid from the head of the stretch home. Backers of the winner received $11 for $2.

Miss Careful, returning the liberal price of $9.60, found it an easy matter to prevail over seven other platers in the mile and a sixteenth of the fifth race. The Chance Play mare, rated within striking distance in the early running, ran over the leaders in the stretch and beat Wooly West by a length and a half. Little Lad, the supposed good thing, faltered after making the running. He lost second money by a length.

Robertson Gets Double.

Aladdins Dream sped to a four-length triumph in the sixth event, after breaking last. Alfred Robertson, scoring a double, gradually improved the $4.90 favorite's position and the combination proved far too good for ordinary opposition. My Counsellor easily beat Stone Martin for the place.

Sky Haven, $5.10, won the nightcap by three parts of a length from Worthington, with Hereward third. Jockey C. Reid fell off Pretty Wise, but was reported uninjured.

BELLATOR, kept under strong urging after being passed momentarily when reaching midway of the turn, responded stoutly after regaining command at the final furlong pole, then had enough in reserve to stall off DOUBLE SWEEP. Latter, kept close to the leaders and on the outside, challenged strongly approaching the home stretch, then held on gamely. FLOWER TIME went strongly from the beginning and continued with good courage in the closing drive. WHITE CLOUD worked way up stoutly in the last half-mile. DONEE finished with good energy. TOASTMASTER faltered badly after gaining a brief lead before reaching the home stretch. APPEAR went evenly. The others were outrun.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 1:43. Off at 1:44½. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOME GOOD, $40.00, $14.40, $8.90; SMOOTH CROSSING, $11.10, $5.30; FRED ALMY, $6.20.

SOME GOOD settled in his best stride after the opening furlong, swung to the outside to engage the leaders approaching the home stretch, sprinted into a clear lead at midstretch, then drew out smoothly. SMOOTH CROSSING bettered his position steadily, circled his field and finished stoutly. FRED ALMY went close up from the beginning and held on well. CORRYMEELA had to vigorously urged to maintain a forward position on the inside early. She weakened after reaching the home stretch. OUR DAVID closed with a rush. RUSTIC CUBA lost ground all the way. BAKERS DOZEN raced strongly in the early stages. BROADSWORD was done after the opening three furlongs. PRO BONO was worked out a mile.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROSS, $11.00, $6.30, $3.60; ALWINTOUR, $7.80, $4.90; SCOTCH QUEEN, $3.40.

ROSS, away well, but outpaced for the first half-mile, gained fast when nearing the home stretch and, coming around the leaders, was up in the last 70 yards. ALWINTOUR raced SCOTCH QUEEN and GOOD AIM into submission while setting a steady pace, then held on well when hard urged. SCOTCH QUEEN held a forward position from the beginning and held on well after being placed to punishment. BULL MARKET, slow to reach his best stride, circled his field to close fast. GOOD AIM was rushed stoutly early, and he had nothing left when the real issue came. CHORTLE had no excuses. MASTER TIME showed early speed. The others were outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:47. Off at 2:50. Winner, C. J. Bild's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BAND WAGON, $10.70, $4.40, $3.10; ST. STEPHENS, $3.90, $2.70; CANT REMEMBER, $2.80.

BAND WAGON, restrained back of the leaders for the first half-mile, went up with a rush to engage the leaders entering the home stretch, took an easy lead in the closing furlong, then held ST. STEPHENS safe. Latter held on gamely after racing CANT REMEMBER into defeat. CANT REMEMBER displayed nice speed while setting the pace, but faltered during the closing furlong. GOLD VEIN was unable to better his position after saving a lot of ground at the stretch turn. WEST MAIN went well under his heavy weight. SIR TEN lacked speed from the beginning.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming (first division). For 3-yearolds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:19. Off at 3:20½. Winner, W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MISS CAREFUL, $9.60, $4.90, $3.40; WOOLY WEST, $10.70, $5.40; LITTLE LAD, $3.60.

MISS CAREFUL, rated behind the early leaders for the first six furlongs, responded nicely when shaken up in the last half-mile, assumed command entering the home stretch, then had enough in reserve to withstand WOOLY WEST. Latter worked his way up on the outside after being outrun and finished resolutely. LITTLE LAD was used up racing LIVE ONE and VESTED POWER into submission, and he weakened during the closing drive. FAIRLY WILD was making up ground steadily approaching the finish. LIVE ONE began tiring after six furlongs. UNCLE DONALD went wide. VESTED POWER stopped badly.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming (second division). For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:48. Off at 3:50. Winner, T. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALADDINS DREAM, $4.90, $3.50, $2.50; MY COUNSELLOR, $7.60, $4.00; STONE MARTIN, $7.00.

ALADDINS DREAM, recovering nicely, but outrun after stumbling when the break came, moved up fast on the outside in the last half-mile, then drew into an easy lead after wearing STONE MARTIN down at the stretch turn. MY COUNSELLOR worked his way up gradually, and continued with good courage in the final issue. STONE MARTIN went into a clear lead when reaching the back stretch, but was unable to stay when placed to a drive. BIG SHOW went well throughout. XANDRA could not keep up after going five furlongs. LONG BIT was done early. JAMISON had no excuses.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:20. Off at 4:22. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SKY HAVEN, $5.10, $3.30, $2.70; *WORTHINGTON, $33.40, $10.70; HEREWARD, $5.60.

SKY HAVEN, avoiding crowding at the first turn and holding a forward position in the early stages, displaced the leaders when ready, but had to be shaken up after drawing clear to withstand WORTHINGTON. Latter went prominently and then finished resolutely during the stretch drive. HEREWARD was rushed hard to gain third position, and held on well after being overtaken. YELLOW METAL, as usual a slow beginner, closed a big gap. OUTBOUND, shuffled back going to the first turn and bothered at the first turn, finished going gamely after making up much ground. PENNATE weakened. PRETTY WISE lost his rider at the first turn.

Six Virginia Teams Prime For Victiory

Thrills Promised Grid Fans on Thanksgiving Holiday.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 27 (AP).—The fact that each of the half-dozen Old Dominion football teams that battle Thursday would rather win its Thanksgiving Day contest than any other on the schedule promises spirited competition and thrills aplenty for the holiday crowd.

When they scheduled the game a season ago, the Generals of Washington and Lee had little idea their turkey day meeting with South Carolina would be for the Southern Conference championship. But it will be and of all the Old Dominion teams the Generals would have the most cause to be thankful for a victory.

Cadets' Opposition Strong.

Most of the critics were of the opinion that the military classic at Roanoke, pitting Virginia Tech against V. M. I., would provide the keenest competition of the day, although they weren't overlooking the blood battle between William and Mary's Indians and Richmond's Spiders in the State capital.

Virginia's embattled Cavaliers entertain North Carolina's Tarheels at Charlottesville. The Cavaliers are expected to be such perfect hosts that the Tarheels will take their leave, saying "Thanks—so fine a time."

The thing that would make the Tarheels really jubilant, however, would be a telegram announcing that South Carolina had whipped Washington and Lee, thereby promoting North Carolina to the Southern Conference championship.

There'll be another championship at stake at Richmond, where William and Mary's league-leading Indians will battle the favored University of Richmond eleven for the Virginia Conference crown. Richmond, defeated by Emory and Henry, would get only a half share should the Spiders win, while William and Mary, with a victory or tie, would win the crown. In both back field and forewall the Spiders were conceded an edge, but supporters of the Red and Blue recalled a Thanksgiving a year ago when an underdog. Indian team triumphed.

Bryant to Feature.

In the back field Stumpy Bryant, William and Mary ace, will match his individual brilliance with a Richmond back field that many observers consider the best-rounded in the State, with Leverton, Dobson and Shulz among the topnotchers, although the Vaughn brothers, Fred and Bobby, and Jimmy West are all stand-out performers.

V. P. I.'s more versatile attack and the services of Foots Dickerson, one of the finest punters in the South Atlantic sector, may give the Techmen a winning margin, although keen critics were favoring the embattled Cadets, who are long overdue. V. M. I., an underdog last year, played the V. P. I. eleven to a scoreless tie. Tech will boast in Capt. George Smith and Duncan Holsclaw a pair of magnificent backs to work with Dickerson, but the Cadets should have an edge in the forewall. Meredith Urick and Wayte Clarke, a pair of pile-driving backs, probably will bear the brunt of the attack.

Virginia will have a pile of determination, all the optimism the grave situation warrants and the leadership of Capt. Tommy Johnson, one of the Old Dominion's finest backs, but the Cavaliers' task looked all but hopeless.

Cavaliers Will Lose 6 Letter Gridders

Johnson, Berger, Cardwell Fryberger, Hallett, Zimmer Graduate.

UNIVERSITY, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Six Virginia veteran lettermen will be ending their careers in intercollegiate football when the final game of the 1934 season is played against North Carolina here Thursday afternoon.

These men are Capt. Tommy Johnson, of Norfolk, Va.; Spencer Berger, of Flint, Mich.; Vincent Cardwell, of Hampton, Va., and Philip Fryberger, of Duluth, Minn., all back-field regulars, and Horace Hallett, of Newport News, Va., center, and Billy Zimmer, of Petersburg, Va., guard.

Capt. Johnson and Zimmer are the only two of these six regulars who will be in the starting line-up against the Tarheels, for injuries received in the V. P. I. game will keep both Berger and Hallett out of the contest and may force Cardwell to remain on the bench through most of the game.

Tommy Johnson has been one of Virginia's back-field aces all through his three seasons of varsity competition. He is one of the best punters ever to do the booting for the Cavaliers. In addition, he is an accurate passer, a fine pass receiver, a really great defensive player, and a blocker who knows how to clear the way for teammates.

Carolina supporters will remember well how Johnson and Berger counted touchdowns to bring Virginia a 14-to-7 victory when last the Tar heels invaded Scott Stadium in 1932. Johnson will be on hand for the Thanksgiving battle, but Berger is still nursing a dislocation.

Fryberger played two seasons on Virginia's scrub eleven as a probationary period, but he was something of a sensation last fall when he broke lose for many flashing runs to touchdowns. He'll be in law school next year and might round out a third season with the varsity did not the "five-year rule" make him ineligible.

Horace Hallett has been a steady lineman who has alternated as guard or center, playing ably wherever he has been most needed. He will be sorely missed in the Carolina game, for he and Berger have been backing up the line all this season.

Zimmer is to be started against the Tarheels at left guard, where he has played through most of the season. Cardwell will be on the bench when the game begins, but is almost certain to be called into action if his twisted leg will permit him to play.

Houghton and Fitzgerald Shoot 67 to Win Kenwood Pro-Amateur Tournament

Pro Smashes Par by 3 Strokes

Indian Spring Pair 2d; Diffenbaugh Scores Eagle on Third.

By Dave Herman.

EQUIPPED with a new set of teeth and a bagful of par-wrecking clubs, Al Houghton, Kenwood professional, teamed with Maury Fitzgerald, his ace club player, to win first prize in the pro-amateur golf tournament at Kenwood yesterday.

The Houghton-Fitzgerald combination shot a 67, 4 under par, over a soggy course to beat out the favored Indian Spring duo of George Diffenbaugh and Roger Peacock by 1 stroke.

Houghton was in fine fettle. He contributed a 68, and shot what he described as "my finest competitive round of the season." He did not have a single 3-putt green, was not over on a single hole and fired with such unerring accuracy that he was seldom off line. Houghton pocketed an additional prize for his individual efforts, while Walter (Papa) Cunningham, Burning Tree's stocky pro, won second honors with his 35—36—71.

Fitzgerald's Birdie Decisive.

Fitzgerald shot a 75, giving Houghton help on only one hole—but it was a decisive hole. It was the 291-yard "punchbowl" seventeenth. Here the Kenwood amateur, 1933 Middle Atlantic semifinalist, rammed home a 20-foot putt for the birdie three that proved the margin of victory.

Both the teams of Houghton and Fitzgerald and Diffenbaugh and Peacock went out in 33. Diffenbaugh's eagle deuce on the 311-yard third, said to be the first eagle ever made there, created quite a furore among the pros and amateurs. His tee shot pushed, Diffenbaugh arched a 70-yard niblick shot over a tree near the green and the ball rolled into the cup.

Miss Putts on Last Hole.

The two teams matched par or bettered it on the incoming nine, with a four on the fourteenth by the Indian Spring players, where Houghton picked up a birdie, being the difference in their cards for this side. On the home green Diffenbaugh and Peacock had a chance to tie the Kenwood pair. Both were on the green 15 feet from the pin, but each missed his putt for a birdie.

Peacock, Maryland State amateur champion, playing with Diffenbaugh's clubs, pending the arrival of his new sticks, shot a 71. With prizes awarded for low gross and low net, Houghton and Fitzgerald took the low gross. Peacock and Diffenbaugh, both playing from scratch, were given the low net prize.

Walter Cunningham and Sonny Workman, popular jockey, cracked out a 69, as did Al Treder and Bill Harvey, of Manor.

Pirates Spurn Title Contest Challenge

Wood Points Out Virginias Once Turned Down Series Play Bid.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Nov. 27 (Spl.).—Manager Dutch Wood of the Alexandria Pirates today turned down the challenge of the Virginias to a game to decide the championship of the city.

Wood pointed out that the Virginias had an opportunity at one time to enter senior series play, but declined, and added that this fact alone was sufficient basis for his refusing the challenge.

In retaliation, Manager Humphries of the Virginias stated that at the time his team had a chance to enter the series it had played only one contest, and could not enter with an eligibility list that would come up to the rules required by the other teams.

Unless the rival managers iron out their differences, Alexandria will be "robbed" of what it considers to be the greatest "natural" in recent sports history here. Both the Pirates and the Virginias boast powerful teams that have come through the season with more than ordinary success.

Nick Colasanto, coach of the Fraters, ran his squad through a snappy drill at Baggett's Stadium tonight. The Fraters will play either Maryland A. C. of Washington or the Fredericksburg Corsairs here Sunday.

District No. 43 and No. 42 of The Washington Post will meet Friday afternoon at Baggett's.

Ale, Nolan, Staerman, Fisher and Brassler are the outstanding men for District 42. Some of the players who are expected to play for District 43 are Matheny, Robinson, Langford, Enoch, Shaw, Crocker Dodo Robinson has requested the and Wolford.

Pirate A. C. gridders to attend a blackboard drill at 224 S. Pitt street at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow. The Pirates and Virginia Juniors battle at Baggett's Thanksgiving Day, in preliminary to the Gonzaga-Alexandria fray.

Alexandria High School gridmen were forced to remain indoors today because of the soggy condition of the turf at Baggetts. Coach Givens held a short blackboard drill and pointed out some of the weaknesses he noted in the Gonzaga team Monday.

Pitt in Brisk Drill For Carnegie Tech

Will Hold Light, Final Workout Today.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27 (AP).—Pitt's High-Voltage football machine moved through its final brisk workout of the season tonight, making ready for the annual "utrkey" battle with Carnegie Tech, "the team from down the street."

A light drill tomorrow and then the Panthers, who have bowed only to Minnesota, will be ready for the Tartan band which in good seasons and bad ones never fails to push the usually stronger Pitt eleven.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 27 (AP).—While Carnegie Tech raced through its final drill tonight, the student body gathered wood for the annual bonfire and pep meeting to be held on the eve of the traditional Thanksgiving game with Pitt.

New Yorker Captures Miami Golf, 12 and 10

Miami, Fla., Nov. 27 (AP).—By the lop-sided score of 12 and 10, Art Lynch, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., today won the miami-Biltmore Thanksgiving Day golf championship here from C. H. Jennings, of Miami, in the 36-hole finals.

Finishing the first 18 holes 7 up, Lynch won the first four holes in the afternoon round and coasted through to an easy victory.

Cornell Squad Leaves For Contest With Penn

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 27 (AP).—After a brief limbering-up drill, Head Coach Gil Dobie selected a squad of 34 Cornell players for the Penn game, and the team entrained for Philadelphia tonight. Jack Puterbaugh, left tackle, who dislocated his arm three weeks ago, has sufficiently recovered from the injury, and probably will be used as a substitute.

Italians Play Britons.

The Italian A. C. soccer team will meet the fast British United aggregation tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 on the No. 2 Monument Field. The Italians, leaders of the Recreational League, boast one of the strongest combinations seen here in years, but the Britons are out to break their winning streak.

Reduced From 71 to 70; Six District Golfers to Play at Miami.

PAR for Manor Club's course has been reduced from 71 to 70, it was announced by the golf committee yesterday.

The one-stroke slice was made when the first hole, a 470-yarder, was changed from a par 5 to a par 4. Long considered one of the easiest starting holes in this section, the first hole, a dog-leg to the left, has been productive of many birdies. It has also yielded considerable eagles.

Greenskeeper Hines already has removed the yawning trap in the center of the fairway that gobbles up many tee shots. The abolition of this trap will make the hole a good par 4, with two lusty wallops needed to reach the carpet.

Par for each nine will be 35. New score cards already have been ordered.

Washington will be represented by at least six of its golfers in the $12,500 Miami-Biltmore championship that opens a week from this Saturday. Al Houghton, Kenwood pro, will head the delegation that includes Roland Mackenzie, Congressional; Mel Shorey, East Potomac; Al Treder, of Manor; Leo Walper, driving range instructor; Dick Lunn, of Chevy Chase, and Maury Fitzgerald, Kenwood, the latter two amateurs.

Houghton and Wee Bobby Cruickshank, of Richmond, are the only two pros in the Middle Atlantic sector who have been honored with a place in the select circle of pros who will compete in the $7,500 division of the Miami-Baltimore. In the other division, in which $5,000 in prizes will be offered, the other District golfers will compete. The latter class is for pros who have never won in the big money tournament. The District golfers will leave next Monday.

The District Women's Golf Association is expecting a large turnout for the annual meeting at Columbia Country Club on Thursday, December 6. At this time the nominating committee will bring in its slate of officers. Mrs. C. K. Wing, of Army and Navy, has been nominated for president, and will be installed in office. In the meantime rumors persist that Mrs. Howard Simons, of Manor, will not continue as tournament chairman.

Columbia's seventeenth green, under repair for the past few weeks, has been reopened, much to the delight of the golfers.

Another tournament will be staged at Rock Creek's course before Christmas. Claude Rippy has won the three major tournaments at the course this season—the Spring, Uptown and turkey events.

Money Games Portend Ruin Of College Football—Gallico

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—Dr. James Rowland Angell, president of Yale University, in an article on the overemphasis of athletics over education, has touched upon a point which lies more or less close to my heart, because after surveying football all over the country for the last two or three years I have come to the conclusion that unless some definite stand is taken by universities and some sharp divisions made, football may suddenly collapse, and, leave the fall scene sadly wanting.

For the past year I have thought that the salvation of football from a hopelessly muddled situation lay in the separation of colleges and college football into definite leagues or classes. And here I find Dr. Angell suggesting: "Each college or university must therefore determine for itself what it holds to be the most wholesome conditions for the intellectual discipline and development of its students and then seek its enduring athletic relations with institutions which cherish substantially the same ideals."

Ill Will Sooner or Later.

Dr. Angell also says: "It is impossible for colleges to maintain friendly athletic relations very long if their actual standards are too far apart. If one recruits athletes and the other does not, if one imposes severe standards for entrance and for current academic rating and the other is notably very lax in these respects . . . such differences will sooner or later provoke friction and ill will. This is because the one institution may be purchasing inferiority in athletic contests as the price of maintaining its ideals of intellectual and educational integrity, and presently, thanks in part to the exaggerated publicity given to certain college sports, thus circumstances will breed resentment."

President Angell's stand is perfectly clear and reasonable and his finger rests on the sore spot of football. There is nothing wrong about a university wishing to maintain high academic standards, and he does not point any finger of scorn at schools less strict. I have never thought it a crime to give an athletic scholarship to help a boy through school and I have never been able to work up much of an indignation over the pittance that some schools pay their football players.

This is the kind of a country where you more or less create your own ethics and then live by them as happily and comfortably as you may. It is when the two types of schools and the two types of football are brought together that the mixture fails to jell. Dr. Angell's article ought to be directed against the athletic organizations and their schedule makers.

There are three kinds of football games scheduled—traditional games which are played as a climax of the season, money games in which schools between whom there is no natural rivalry schedule games because one or the other or both is a drawing card, and there is the policy game. One has no fault to find with the first or the last. It is the middle one that is beginning to rot college football, for it is in the money game that the starving but academically pure college plays the college of more opulence and more lenient restrictions. But football has bad blood results.

Play Policy Contests.

Policy games are often mistaken for money games or push over games. Army, for instance, is criticized for playing teams such as Washburn, Davidson, Sewanee and Citadel. Notre Dame is criticized for its traveling team, and yet the Notre Dame team helps to spread interest in Notre Dame. The result is that students from every State in the Union, practically, attend Notre Dame, and very few of them play football. Army is primarily interested in obtaining the best type of boy in the country for officer material.

When the small teams from various sections of the country to go to West Point the boys go through the place, they see the cadets at work and at play, they come into contact with the romance and the spirit of the academy. And they return to their homes and spread the story of the Army.

Tarred With Same Brush.

But for the money game there is no excuse but the gate, and here a school with ideals and high academic and intellectual ideals becomes tarred with the same brush and is in fact a little worse off than its more liberal neighbor and rival, because for the sake of the gate it sends in youngsters to play against superior talent, better coaching and more reserve power.

Also the public gets to see a pretty bad football game played by unevenly matched teams. And the public is getting pretty choosy about its football teams these days. It seems to find out where the bad matches are scheduled and it stays away from them. When the two leagues are formed, either on an unwritten basis or on the lines written down and drawn up, and the colleges stay within their boundaries, football will be on its way to health again.

Net Tourney Change Is Proposed

'American Wimbledon' Planned by L. T. A. Officials.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP).—Combination of the men's and women's national tennis championships into an "American Wimbledon" next summer was forecast today by Walter Merrill Hall, president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

The sanction and schedule committee has recommended such action, Hall said, and he thought it likely the executive committee also would view the proposal favorably when it meets in New York December 8 to lay plans for the National convention at Cincinnati in February.

Favorable Action Expected.

The final decision will be up to the national meeting, but Hall said he believed there was a strong feeling in the U. S. L. T. A. that the experiment was worth a trial.

The proposal, according to Hall, would involve combining the national women's tourney, including singles and doubles, with the national men's singles, all to be played at Forest Hills starting the latter part of August and continuing for ten days. Formerly the women's championships have been held separately, in the middle of August, with the men's singles in September.

It is not contemplated as yet to include the national men's mixed and veterans' doubles championships. This tournament, formerly held annually at the Longwood Club, Boston, was shifted to the Germantown Cricket Club, Philadelphia, last season. Thus the American plan would not go as far as France and England do in combining all their major national championships in a single tournament, spread over a two weeks' period.

"The proposal is still in a tentative stage," Hall said, "but it probably would be held on dates including those now allotted to the men instead of on the dates for the women's earlier in August. The starting date probably would be set as August 29, a Thursday, instead of August 31, and would run through the entire next week.

Worth a Trial.

"We have considered this matter for several years and I am of the opinion that it is at least worth a trial. There seems to be considerable sentiment for it."

Joseph W. Ivy, second vice president, in Kansas City, also expressed approval.

"I can't forecast the action of the executive committee," he said, "but personally I am very favorable to the idea. It has worked out to excellent advantage to Wimbledon, although the English use the full 14 days while we plan to use only 11."

To avoid too much confusion in the early rounds it has been suggested that the men and women play on alternate days, which also would serve to give the men a day's breathing spell between possible five-set matches. All such details will be worked out if and when the national meeting votes to combine the two.

Gamblin Joins All-Stars for Game Here

Pixlee Waits to Announce Roster; 'Bamans Due Tomorrow Week.

NOT until after tomorrow, or until George Washington has disposed of Oklahoma, or has been disposed of, will the complexion of Washington's all-star team become known. Jim Pixlee, the Colonial mentor, is too busy worrying about this game to plunge into more brow-wrinkling over Alabama.

One new addition was named yesterday, however, another guard. He is "Tex" Gamblin, star guard of Gallaudet's eleven. Gamblin, who captained the Blues during the past season, easily was the best man in the line and never failed to give a good account of himself in all games. He was recommended by Coach Teddy Hughes and readily accepted.

Teams With Simpson.

Gamblin will team with Johnny Simpson, of Maryland, who was selected last week. Not until Saturday, or possibly Sunday, will the entire roster be published. The team will begin practicing Monday at Griffith Stadium.

Hank Crisp, who is coaching the Alabama eleven, believes he has a team strong enough to give the current Tide varsity a tough afternoon. The acquisition of Pooley Hubert, star of Alabama's first invasion of the Rose Bowl, has supplied the punch to an otherwise well-balanced backfield.

Public Workout.

Crisp and his men are scheduled to arrive a week from tomorrow. A public workout is scheduled for that afternoon, but on Friday the gates will be locked and barred for a secret rehearsal of plays. Alabama, incidentally, will wear white jerseys instead of the traditional crimson, in deference to the local team, which will sport red.

Tickets are still obtainable at Spalding's and the ball park for $1.10. Saturday the price will advance to $1.65. Almas Temple will be the recipient of the gate receipts.

Grid Game Wanted.

The Kenilworth 100-pound eleven wants a game for tomorrow. Call Lincoln 0334 between 6 and 8 p. m.

Terps Regard Hopkins Tilt Lightly

Have Not Been in Uniform Since Last Saturday; to Drill Today.

BARRING an unforeseen revival of football at Johns Hopkins, that staid old school of the sciences, tomorrow's game between the Blue Jays and Maryland will be the last for the next few years at least. The two meet at Baltimore at 2:30 p. m.

Hopkins still sponsors a football team, to be sure, and Ray Van Orman, one of the game's veteran tutors, still shows the medicos how to throw a block and tackle, but slowly and surely the team has degenerated from a rather formidable eleven to little more than an extra-curricula activity.

Maryland's grid star, meanwhile, has been rising, and within the next few years the Old Liners are going to be too busy smashing records to trifle with their Baltimore cousins.

Return to Drills.

So lightly have the Terps regarded tomorrow's contest that they have not been in uniform since Saturday's game with Georgetown. Today they are scheduled to drill, but they'll do little more than run through signals, practice kicking and throw the ball around.

Hopkins has not topped its ancient rival since 1927, when it scored an upset, 14-13. The Blue Jays have won 11 games to Maryland's 15, but they won 9 of these between 1892 and 1911 when Maryland's best effort during that period netted an 11-11 tie in 1910.

Only One Since 1922.

Excepting the 1927 game, Hopkins has failed to win a game since 1922, although it managed to hold the Terps to two ties in that time.

Maryland reigns a prohibitive favorite for tomorrow's ball game, with "South" Sothoron, its All-Southern half back, ready to lead the last big parade of the season. Two of the Jays' best backs, Shorty Phillips and Angy Giardina, are nursing injuries, and the team was none too strong with them in the line-up.

Urick and Lowe, Hurt, Are Benched by V.P.I.

Lexington, Va., Nov 27 (AP).—Meredith Urick, full back, and Carlyle Lowe, tackle, were benched today as the V. M. I. cadet squad ran through a long workout in preparation for the Thanksgiving Day game with Virginia Tech. Both men are nursing minor injuries received in practice and both will probably be available for the Thursday clash.

Stocks Yield Fraction Under Profit-Taking

Industrials Hit Hardest in Selling; Trading Cut to 1,012,560 Shares.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—After advancing for four consecutive sessions, the stock market ran into some profit-taking today that resulted in what brokers refer to as a "healthy corrective."

The industrials, which have been the leaders in the forward movement, naturally bore the brunt of the realizing and some of the utilities developed a rather heavy tone. At the same time the rails got a toe-hold on recovery and generally finished with moderate gains.

In view of the recent firmness of stocks generally, Wall street was not at all surprised by the reaction in the industrial sector. Satisfaction was expressed that the decline did not gather any pronounced headway and that the trading volume was inclined to dwindle on the reversal.

Stocks Drop Seven-Tenths.

Transfers totaled 1,012,560 shares, against 1,411,020 yesterday and the Standard Statistics average for 90 selected issues yielded seven-tenths of a point to 74.9.

Retail sales reports continued bright and there were expectations that Christmas business would be the best in several years. Optimism was also shown over the stiffening of steel production and electric power output.

Rail Stocks Respond.

Rail stocks responded to further reports that Washington would take steps to put the depressed transportation systems back on their feet. At the same time net operating incomes of the principal roads for October were 14 per cent under the corresponding 1933 month.

Union Pacific, however, got up 2 points, while Santa Fe, New York Central, Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific were fractionally higher.

For no particular reason, except that they have been behind the market, the gold mining shares attracted a following. Homestake jumped 15 points on a few transfers and Dome, McIntyre Porcupine and Alaska improved.

Business Machines Up.

International Business Machines ran up 2 points to a new year's top on the declaration of a 2 per cent stock dividend in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement. This issue slipped back, later, to close unchanged.

American Can dropped 1½ points although the directors, after the close, voted an extra dividend of $1 along with the regular payment. This was the first extra for American Can since 1931.

Losers of fractions of a point or so included United States Steel, American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse, American Tobacco "B," Bethlehem Steel, Chrysler, General Motors, International Harvester, Montgomery Ward, National Biscuit, Sears Roebuck, Union Carbide, Public Service of New Jersey and Eastman Kodak. Most of the oils were fairly steady.

Some of the New York utilities reflected the announced plan of the city government to impose a 3 per cent tax on gross earnings of these corporations.

North American Company Ends Policy of Paying Dividends in Stock, Due to Change in Economic Conditions, Observer Says.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

New York, Nov. 27.—The North American Co., billion-dollar public utility holding corporation, has ended its policy of paying dividends on its shares in common stock after having done so for 11 years. The reasons announced for the abandonment of this practice illustrate the profound changes that have taken place in economic conditions and in the psychology of corporate managements during this period.

When the North American Co. inaugurated the practice of paying dividends at the rate of 10 per cent in capital stock upon its common shares in 1923, the public utility industry was expanding rapidly. The company, in common with numerous other enterprises in this and other industries, looked forward to a period of rapid and virtually unlimited growth. Rather than pay out earnings in the form of cash dividends, the management decided it would retain the cash and represent the increased equity of the stockholders in the shape of additional stock distributed regularly as a stock dividend.

There was criticism of this plan from the start. Some pointed out that distribution of a stock dividend at the rate of 2½ per cent every quarter would cause the number of outstanding shares to double about every seven years. After an extended period of time, it was pointed out, the capitalization of the company would reach fantastic figures. Also, it was contended that the regular stock dividend policy would weaken the market for the issue, through steady increases in the number of outstanding shares without definite assurance that the bulk of the recipients of the dividend stock would retain it as a permanent investment.

North American Defends Stock Dividend Principle.

However, the management of the North American Co. defended the stock dividend principle vigorously at the time. It pointed out that the money earned by the company was being invested in very profitable plant expansion, and that both earnings and assets of the corporation increased more rapidly than did the stock capitalization despite the stock dividend. The resultant increases in earnings per share and asset value per share, despite the payment of stock dividends at the rate of 2½ per cent quarterly, were stressed as justifications of the stock dividend plan.

Furthermore, the company's officers pointed out that the greatest part of the large amounts of new capital needed annually by the subsidiary companies was being raised through sales of low-coupon bonds and preferred stocks, so that the earnings on the reinvested capital represented by the stock dividend were quite high.

The depression, however, forced the management first to modify, and now to abandon, the stock dividend policy. As consumption of electric power has turned downward, the company has found that opportunities for expansion of its plants and equipment have been sharply curtailed. Capital requirements for the coming year for all the subsidiaries of North American are estimated at $12,000,000, which compares with more than $60,000,000 before the depression set in. Accordingly, the company finds that it does not need to invest additional cash from earnings, especially since few acquisitions of new property are being made, and the depreciation reserve is thus a source of cash in itself.

When the depression began to assume a serious aspect for the utilities, the company reduced its stock dividend from 10 to 8 per cent per annum. Later, it cut the stock dividend to 4 per cent, supplementing the stock dividend with a distribution of 50 cents per annum in cash. Now, the rate is to be $1 per annum, with no stock dividend at all.

North American's Stock Dividend Plan Imitated.

The North American Co. had a very large number of imitators among public utility, investment trust and, to a lesser extent, industrial enterprises, after it inaugurated the policy of paying regular stock dividends in 1923. The popularity of this device reflected, in large part, the fact that it permitted a divorce of the dividend policy from the earnings of a corporation. Thus, when North American sold at $25 a share, a 10 per cent stock dividend had a market value of $2.50. When North American rose to 180 in 1929, however, the 10 per cent stock dividend had a market value of $18, or several times the then per share earnings of the corporation. The stock dividend policy caused the shares to yield 10 per cent to investors, regardless of its quoted price in the market.

Because of its tendency to keep yields to stockholders at the same level regardless of the selling price of corporate shares, the stock dividend policy has been attacked by President Richard Whitney of the New York Stock Exchange as one of the causes of the excessive heights to which prices of stocks were driven during the boom that culminated in 1929. Stock dividends, when taken into the earnings of holding companies at high prices, also contributed to the pyramiding of corporate structures during the boom period.

The elimination of the stock dividend by the North American Co., a pioneer in the popularization of this device, is a symbol of the passing of the belief in a rapid and indefinite growth in the size and earnings of large corporations, which dominated the thinking of many corporate executives in the post-war decade.

Bonds Advance As High-Grade Issues Firm

Upturn Becomes General; Sales Volume Rises to $13,332,000.

This issue gained 1½ points, closing at 101½. French and German loans were a trifle higher.

Curb's Prices Unsettled by Selling Drive

Some Demand for Metals Is Developed; Sales Off to $175,000 Shares.

New York, Nov. 27 (AP).—Profit-taking unsettled the curb market today.

Utilities, particularly, felt the effect of realizing. A few firm spots stood out in the industrial list. Trading volume slackened on the reaction.

Prices were mixed from the opening. Scattered selling prevailed throughout the morning. Some demands for metals appeared in the late trading but the buying was insufficient to bring about any sustained rally.

Lake Shore Mines rose 1⅛ points net. Newport regained a point loss, while Wright Hargreaves, Bunker Hill & Sullivan and Pioneer Gold finished about even. Murphy Co. ended a point higher. Aluminum Company of America and Sherwin-Williams held fractional improvement. Oils were narrowly changed. Among the power issues, Consolidated Gas & Electric of Baltimore dipped a point. American Gas & Electric and Electric Bond & Share receded fractionally. Other shares closing a little lower included American Cyanimid B, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Hiram Walker, Parker Rust Proof and Swift International.

Transfers approximated 175,000 shares, compared with 204,000 Monday.

By J. R. Brackett.
(Associated Press.)

Wider use of the loan insurance principle is looked upon by some officials as among the most important new developments under the Roosevelt Administration.

Coupled with the theory of requiring loans to be reduced annually, it is held to offer a major regulatory influence over the creation of new credit, and further, to provide funds for fruitful purposes on a realistic basis.

It is a saying among economists that someone's profits are the bankruptcy of someone else. The bankruptcy may be unavoidable, but the possibility of providing reserve funds from which the lender may be paid would reduce the need for drastic deflation, proponents of this method say, in that lenders would have their money and that the reserve fund would enable orderly liquidation.

The present Administration is working out this experiment on a huge basis in the housing program. Here the Government insures loans with funds provided from part of the interest the borrower pays. The Government lends no money, but simply guarantees a portion of the loan.

Now it is reported that this insurance plan is being studied for extension to the industrial field for loans on plant modernization. Such funds are often difficult to get because it is hard to see how resulting economies will enable payment of the debt. With insurance, however, part of the risk is taken by the Government.

The idea that large loans are to be paid off in full on a certain date is also condemned in this theory. Under it, the loan should be made to pay itself off when the machinery needs to be replaced. Many companies today are still paying for equipment that long since has been worn out or obsolete.

Savings Bank Opens New Branch Office

Capital Transit Company Reports Net Income of $90,238.

By Karl von Lewinski.

The Bank of Commerce and Savings announces today that its branch office at North Capitol and H streets northwest will be opened for business tomorrow at 8:30 a. m., the doors to remain open until 8 p. m.

SWETNAM.

Will R. Swetman, recently elected assistant cashier of the bank, has been chosen as manager of the new office.

The bank office is that of the former North Capitol Savings Bank. Extensive alterations and improvement of both the exterior and the interior of the building have been made.

Banking hours after tomorrow will be the same as those followed by other banking houses of the District, 8:30 a. m. until 3 p. m. After the second of January, 1935, the bank will be governed by the Washington Clearing House's new regulations respecting hours, 8:30 a. m. until 2 p. m. except on Government pay days and Saturdays.

The opening of the branch bank at this location will be of considerable interest to the employes of the Government Printing Office and city postoffice, located in the immediate vicinity, as well as to the business men and residents of this section.

The Bank of Commerce & Savings was organized in 1907, and several of the original directors still remain members of the board. Dividends on the stock of the bank were commenced in 1912 and an unbroken dividend record has been maintained since that date.

The officers and directors are as follows: M. D. Rosenberg, president; Joseph Sanders, vice president; Irvin Owings, vice president; John M. Riordon, executive vice president; Thomas J. Groom, vice president and cashier; Oliver B. Exline, Francis E. Robey and Will R. Swetnam, assistant cashiers; Joseph H. Milans, secretary; Dr. Clarence A. Weaver, auditor. The other directors are Thomas N. Beavers, William L. Bush, J. E. Colliflower, E. T. Chewning, R. L. Elliott, A. S. Gatley, Harry E. Mayer, J. F. Maury, Vernon G. Owen and Frank Owings.

Capital Transit Reports Net.

The Capital Transit Co. in its monthly financial statement filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission reports its net profits for the month of October $90,238.92. This represents a gain of nearly 60 per cent in earnings over the month of September, when the company reported a net of $55,874.

Total net earnings for the year are now in excess of $891,000. The par share earnings of the Capital Traction Co. since the street car merger went into effect are now $3.83.

Recent criticism of the $1 dividend declared by the Transit Company has been justified by the directors on the ground that only about a fourth of the total earnings will be paid in the dividend. A large part of the other three-fourths will be used to retire obsolete equipment and to provide much needed repairs.

The Capital Transit Company reported also that 12,479,981 revenue passengers had been carried during the month of October.

In its operation the street car system covered 1,684,000 car miles during the month. The buses operated by the system contributed an additional 514,000 miles.

Columbia Paper Elects.

Directors of the District of Columbia Paper Co. have elected two new members to the board, according to an announcement made by President G. L. Nicholson.

John Harrison Davis, manager of Judd & Detweiler, and B. Wykoff, manager of the Nation's Business Magazine, are the members elected to the board. Both are business men of long standing and unusual prominence and will materially add to the present directorate.

The newly elected members will fill the vacancy caused by the death of Robert D. Weaver and that of his brother, who expressed the wish to be relieved of further duties after his brother's death.

Local Stock Trading.

Mergenthaler Linotype soared to a new high of 35 on the Washington Stock Exchange yesterday in the first transaction of that stock reported since the recent directors' meeting. The previous sale was reported at 26½.

Last Saturday while the stock was being offered on the local exchange at 31 without takers, several sales were made on the Boston exchange at 32.

Capital Transit Co. also was in demand, 57 shares crossing the board at 28½, off ½ from the previous top of 29. Closing bid was 28 and 29 asked.

Peoples Drug preferred moved at 111½, Potomac Power 5½ per cent sold at 112, and Railway & Electric Co. at 100¾.

Canada Sells More Products In United States

Volume Exported Almost Doubles That of 1933; Feed Heads List.

Ottawa, Nov. 27 (AP).—Despite high tariffs against them, the products of Canadian farms are being exported to the United States this year in almost double the volume of last year.

A tabulation compiled by the department of trade and commerce shows Canadian farm products and goods manufactured from farm products to the value of $2,646,848 were shipped to the United States during October this year, compared with exports of $1,397,848 in October last year.

The figures for the four months ended October were: 1934, $9,006,545; 1933, $4,661,073.

Feed Causes Increase.

Shortage of feed owing to drought in parts of the United States is responsible, in part, for the increase.

Hay has been admitted free of duty since the end of August when imported for feed in the drought-affected area, and 5,789 tons, valued at $56,224, were shipped in October this year, compared with 84 tons, valued at $909, in October last year.

The same condition is believed to have had something to do with the increased exports of grains, notably wheat, barley and oats. Comparative figures for these grains for October, with the figures for last year in brackets, follow: Wheat, 833,512 bushels (99,411); barley, 1,180,192 bushels (none); oats, 880,233 bushels (14,011). For the four months ended October the same figures were: Wheat, 4,174,015 bushels (164,189); barley, 3,055,835 bushels (none); oats, 1,286,967 bushels (99,431).

Maple Sugar Exports.

A big increase in exports of maple sugar is also noted. For the four-month period this year 1,442,507 pounds valued at $202,806 compared with 814,433 pounds valued at $146,758 crossed the border. The figures for October were: 207,261 pounds valued at $24,874, and last year, 7,002 pounds valued at $423.

Increases were also noted in exports to the United States of cattle, bran shorts and middlings, beef, pork, cheese and grass seed.

Rye exports showed a sharp decline both in October and in the four-month period compared with 1933. Other decreases registered were in horses, bacon, potatoes, sugar beets and wool.

Gasoline Prices Firmer.

New York, Nov. 26 (AP).—Reports from the spot gasoline market indicate a firmer price trend in response to more stable retail markets and buying of east Texas gasoline by some of the major companies. Low octane material is reported quoted at 3⅞-4⅛ cents a gallon against the recent low of 3¾ cents.

Commercial Failures Up.

New York, Nov. 27.—Commercial failures during the week ended November 22 totaled 229, against 208 for the five business days of the preceding week and 301 a year ago, according to Dun & Bradstreet.

Walt Mason

Electric Light.

All sorts of folks, the poor and rich, enjoy electric light; they merely turn a little switch when comes the darkening night. And then a soft and pleasant glow o'er everything is shed, and they can read six hours or so before they go to bed. The light gives no unseemly smell, no smoke offends the eye; it still glows on and all is well, the goose is hanging high. One little blessing we have here, we don't appreciate; we use the lights year after year and seldom celebate. Sometimes a storm blows down the wires, the lights refuse to gleam, and then the customer perspires, the town can hear him scream. Resorting to the telephone, he talks an hour or two, and uses language pink and roan, and purple, green and blue. Then workmen in the storm-swept night go out to make repairs, and everything's again all right, and not a patron swears. When I recall the coal-oil lamp we used when I was young, with icy sweat my brow is damp and language fails my tongue. When we had done our daily toil and journeyed home at night, we filled the old fat lamp with oil and set the wick alight. The light could scarce disperse the gloom, it was so dim and weak, and greasy smoke filled all the room, a fierce and beastly reek. Sometimes the thing would explode, with frightful crash and roar, and blow our whiskers up the road a half a mile or more. And I am thankful every night that old-time things are dead, as I enjoy electric light until I go to bed.

Arlington Folk Rally to Oppose Plan for Boxing

Brough, Boundary Commissioner to Address Joint Club Session.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Proponents of legalized boxing will meet with strong opposition when they appear before the county board at its meeting today seeking favorable action on an ordinance permitting boxing in the county, it was revealed last night.

In addition to a large delegation of citizens from Virginia Highlands and Aurora Hills, who will attend the meeting, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will again renew its protest.

The matter was before the board about two years ago and was fought bitterly by the women of the county and they say they are prepared to again strongly oppose any move to permit legal boxing.

At the last meeting of the board, Sheriff Fields stated that if he was to be called upon to police boxing, that he was opposed to it. He stated last night that he is of the same opinion.

Elmer Newell, county auditor, will explain the recently completed audit made for the year 1933-1934 by T. Coleman Andrews, former State auditor.

Charles Brough, former Governor of Arkansas and chairman of the Virginia-District of Columbia Boundary Commission, will be the guest speaker at the annual joint luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis, Rotary and Monarch clubs today. The meeting will be held at 12:30 o'clock at Windsor Arms, on Glebe road. Frank Rowe, president of the Kiwanis Club, will preside.

The program of entertainment will include a number of vocal solos by Henry Nestor, of the Traffic Bureau of the Metropolitan Police Department.

The Arlington County schools will close this afternoon, to resume studies next Monday morning, for the Thanksgiving holidays. All offices at the courthouse will also be closed tomorrow.

The Arlington County Zoning Appeal Board will meet tonight at the courthouse at 8 o'clock. The meeting is being held for the purpose of reconsidering the request of property owners of Country Club Grove section for a rezoning from local business to residential A of a certain number of lots.

Reports from the office of county treasurer indicate that there is a heavy payment of taxes being made. On all tax bills unpaid after December 5, the penalty of 5 per cent will be added. The office at the courthouse is open each day excepting Saturdays from 9 to 4:30 o'clock. On Saturdays the office closes at 1 o'clock.

Fairfax County Teachers Rate High Standard

Report Shows 148 Boast Certificates in Normal Department.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 126-J.

Educational standards of teachers in the white schools of Fairfax County have been increased, according to a report submitted by Superintendent of Schools W. T. Woodson to the State department of education. During the present session, of the total of 155 teachers employed in both high and elementary schools, 148 hold certificates of the normal professional grade or higher.

The report shows that 44 high school and elementary teachers hold collegiate professional certificates, which are the highest offered in the State. Collegiate certificates are held by 15, and normal professional certificates are held by 85 elementary teachers. Old elementary certificates are held by three teachers, and the provisional elementary certificate is held by one. In the high school department three hold special certificates.

A comparison of the current report with the report for 1922-1923 shows that of the 145 teachers employed that session only 27 held normal professional certificates or higher.

Other statistical information contained in the superintendent's report shows 26 teachers are graduates or have attended the University of Virginia; 12 are graduates of the College of William and Mary; 11 attended Farmville State Teachers' College; 36 Harrisonburg State Teachers' College; eight Radford State Teachers' College; one Virginia Polytechnic Institute; four Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and 11 went to Virginia universities, colleges and normal schools. Twenty-two are listed from out-of-State institutions.

A total of 25 colored elementary teachers is employed in the county for the present session, of which group 11 hold the normal professional certificates; seven of the elementary certificate and seven the provisional elementary certificate.

A silver cup was awarded to Lee-Jackson High School at the George Washington University press conference for the best school paper in the metropolitan area of Maryland and Virginia. The award was presented to Miss Virginia Clapp, editor in chief of the school paper, Student Echo, by Miss Eleanor Heller, chairman of the conference. The local school won over Alexandria, Warren County, Roosevelt and Silver Spring high schools. Delegates from Lee-Jackson were Miss Clapp, Miss Betty Flaherty, assistant editor, and Wade Lewis, advertising manager.

The Fairfax County Educational Association will send five delegates to Richmond at Thanksgiving for the annual meetings of the Virginia Educational Association. The delegates elected at the last county meeting are Harris Nipe, principal of Oakton High School; Miss Irma Adams, Oakton High School; Thomas P. Chapman, jr., principal, Fairfax School; Miss Frances Nevitt, Groveton; Miss Lucy LeGallais, Centerville.

Alternates are J. H. Rice, principal of Herndon High School, Miss Adele Pfalzgraf, McLean High School; G. F. Poteet, principal of the Floris School; Miss Kathleen Clarke, Annandale, and Miss Dorothey Callis, Falls Church.

Coroner's Jury To Sift Wells' Death Monday

Richardson Sole Defendant in Move to Fathom Barroom Fight.

A Prince Georges County coroner's jury next Monday will inquire into the death of Bennett A. Wells, 28, of Capitol Heights, Md., it was announced late yesterday.

Thomas (Slim) Richardson, Capitol Heights bartender, will apparently be the sole defendant to be brought before that body as it attempts to catalogue the details of last Sunday morning's bar room fight that led to Wells' death.

The inquest will be held at the Capitol Heights fire house. Acting Coroner Oscar Poore will preside. Richardson is being held in the Hyattsville lockup. County police said the charge of "carrying a concealed weapon" had been dropped in lieu of his being held for the coroner's jury.

Meanwhile Capitol Heights remained quiet as town officials, aided by more stringent laws, clamped down on "Washington roughnecks" who, they charge, are the cause of the bar room fights.

Under the new ordinance, enacted Monday night, all business establishments selling alcoholic beverages whatsoever were forced to close at 1 a. m. yesterday and remain closed until 7 a. m. Sunday they must remain closed until 9 a. m.

Wells, whose death was laid to a clot on the brain, caused by a blow struck during the bar room encounter, was buried yesterday in the Forestville Episcopal Cemetery.

Fusion Party Takes Control In Montgomery

Board Votes Unanimously to Retain All Employes Until Jan. 1.

The Fusion Party, which six months ago was formed through a merger of progressive Democrats and Republicans, yesterday took control of the board of commissioners in Montgomery County, ending the 15-year regime of the Democratic organization.

After the taking of the oath of office by members of the board—three Fusionists and two Democrats—it was voted unanimously to retain all county employes until the first of the year.

The new commissioners then appointed Ira Whitacre, former vice president of the Silver Spring National Bank and defeated Fusion candidate for county treasurer, as their clerk.

Latimer Retained.

Charles Y. Latimer, the old clerk, was retained in an advisory capacity, at the pleasure of the board.

Richard H. Lansdale, Democrat, then proposed Walter W. Dawson, Republican, be retained as counsel of the board, at a salary of $4,000 per year. The motion was seconded by Robert D. Hagner, but defeated 3 to 2.

Commissioner Paul Coughlin then proposed Edward Peter as attorney to the board at a salary of $5,000 a year. The motion was seconded by Charles E. King, and carried 3 to 2.

The new commissioners took their oath of office before Clerk of Circuit Court Clayton K. Watkins shortly after their commissions were issued by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie.

Karn Heads Board.

Frank H. Karn, of Rockville, Fusion nominee, was named president of the board.

While the Fusionists control the county board through the election of three of its commissioner candidates, a legal contest which might unseat two of its nominees is pending in Montgomery County Circuit Court.

Raleigh S. Chinn and John B. Diamond, Democratic candidates, who were defeated by Karn and Charles E. King, are contesting the election of these two Fusion candidates in petitions for a recount of the vote cast in their respective counties.

Poultrymen Form County Association

H. D. Copeland Will Head Prince Georges Group.

H. D. Copeland, of Clinton, Md., was yesterday elected president of the Prince Georges County Poultry Association as the poultrymen held their first meeting at Upper Marlboro.

R. W. Cochrane was elected vice president, and John Cowan, secretary and treasurer. Clarence M. Roberts, W. H. Rice, and Cochrane were appointed a committee to frame a constitution, to be adopted at the next meeting. The meeting will be held Tuesday, December 11.

The association also voted to support the State Poultry Council in its effort to obtain the passage in the Maryland Legislature of a uniform egg law.

1935 Alexandria Budget Set At $780,220; Tax Is Boosted

Rate Increased 60 Cents to $3; Public Hearing Slated Friday.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

The anual budget of the City of Alexandria for 1935 amounts to $780,220, of which $575.98 is represented by real estate taxes, and $65,217 by taxes on personal property. The budget is based on a tax rate of $3 per $100 valuation, which is an increase of 60 cents, the former rate on both real estate and personal property being $2.40. The assessed valuation of real property is placed at $19,131,587, and of personal property, $2,173,882.

A public hearing on the budget will be held at 7:30 p. m. Friday.

The council considered the request of the West Brick Co. for rezoning of a tract of 19 acres on North Washington street extended, from residential to industrial, stating that the tract contains clay suitable for building tile, and that this is the only clay of this kind in this section. The company, through Attorney Gardner L. Boothe, submitted that they had an investment of approximately $50,000 in this property, which would be useless unless the rezoning is granted.

To Be Reconsidered.

The vote on the rezoning was divided 4 to 4 and the motion to grant the rezoning lost. Councilman Barley, however, moved reconsideration so that Councilman Clift, who was absent, might have an opportunity to vote on it. This motion was carried and the matter was held over.

Attorney John Barton Phillips informed the council that a recent survey of the property at 110 Wolfe street indicated that the building is encroaching on Potomac street a distance of 8½ feet. He said the house is more than 100 years old, and his client, who desired to purchase it, asked this easement to clear the title. The council agreed to give the easement, provided the purchaser would give the city a deed to the 8½ feet, which would become effective if and when the building might be removed. It is understood a number of similar cases have been developed by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation in searching titles.

Judge William P. Woolls, of the Corporation Court, reported that the city jail is particularly vulnerable to attack from without, the outside doors being of wood, and requested that the council take action to replace these with iron or steel doors. The matter was referred to the city manager.

Tax Hearings Ready.

Alan B. Prosise, secretary of the board of tax equalization, reported to the council that the board is now ready to hold hearings and hear complaints as to any inequalities in the assessment recently made. Thomas J. Fannon is chairman of the board.

Gilbert J. Cox, secretary of the city school board, reported that there is a deficit of $16,441.17 in the appropriation for the current year, and requested that this amount be appropriated so that teachers' salaries for December may be paid prior to the Christmas holiday. On motion of Councilman Barley, the matter was held over to be considered in connection with the 1935 budget. Mr. Cox stated there was an understanding between the board and the council that any deficiency would be appropriated when reported to the council.

The council appropriated $75 for medical expenses of Policeman Wesley Snoots, who was injured in line of duty, and the city health officer reported that this amount would be required annually.
